Anzac Troops Swell British Strength.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Feb. 12 (AP).—Arrival of a large contingent of Australian and New Zealand troops at Suez today and increased military activity of four Balkan nations heightened the strong belief here that a new war front will be opened either in the Caucasus or the Balkans this spring.

The landing of the Anzacs at Suez—they were said here to number 30,000—brought the total strength of British, French and Turkish forces in the near east to nearly 1,000,000 men. Altogether the three allies, Turkey being a nonbelligerent partner, were estimated to have a potential near eastern strength of 3,000,000 men.

May Go to Palestine.

In addition to the Anzacs who arrived today it was understood that Australian and New Zealand air force pilots now training in England would join the near east forces soon. The Anzacs were expected to be moved to Palestine.

This military activity in the near east was matched by similar action in the Balkans. Jugo-Slavia, Bulgaria, Greece, and Hungary called up men for spring training, while Rumania, whose oil is coveted by Germany as well as by Britain and France, prepared to swell her army to 1,600,000 men by March 1.

In addition, advices from the frontier town of Jesenice, Jugo-Slavia, said that Italy was speeding fortifications both in the Udine region opposite Jugo-Slavia and in the Brenner pass zone opposite Germany.

Eye Rumania's Oil.

With Germany and Britain and France stalemated on the western front, both sides entrenched behind the greatest fortifications the world has ever known, military experts turned special attention to the strategic southeast as the key to Europe's back door and, specifically, to Rumania's oil.

Competent military observers said that on the basis of carefully checked figures the British-French forces in the near east now total at least 570,000 men. Turkey has 350,000 men under arms, making the tripower strength 920,000 men.

Sources close to the British and French military missions said that France plans to have 700,000 more men in Syria before long. It was also reported by competent authorities that Britain is planning to mobilize 100,000 Arabs and 40,000 Jews in Palestine.

Army of 2,910,000 Visioned.

Turkey could bring her total force to 1,500,000 men, it was said, and thus the potential near eastern strength of the three powers would be 2,910,000 men.

The present British-French strength of 570,000 men was said to be made up as follows:

1. Two hundred thousand troops from Egyptian bases, composed mainly of Indians and Moslems in highly mechanized, motorized infantry units officered by both British and Indians with war experience in the near east and the Balkans.

2. Three hundred thousand troops in Syria massed by France. These include one division of the Foreign Legion and Senegalese. Madagascans, and Algerian regiments. These forces are being rapidly increased and, according to some estimates, are considerably higher.

3. Forty thousand troops, mainly British, in Palestine.

4. The 30,000 Anzacs who arrived at Suez today.

Anzacs Reach Suez.

SUEZ, Egypt, Feb. 12 (AP).—Great Britain established a huge man power reservoir of Australian and New Zealand troops today in this military and maritime keystone of the near east.

Thousands of fighting men from down under disembarked from gray luxury liners which had carried them 10,000 miles from the antipodes in what was said to be one of the greatest troopship convoy in history.

There was only one casualty en route from Australia—a former football player who died of heart disease.

Sing "Roll Out the Barrel."

The Anzacs were all over 5 feet 8 inches tall and most under 27 years of age. The troops were recruited on a volunteer basis for active overseas service.

STORM ALBANY 12 HOURS; URGE BUDGET SLASH

Rip Lehman Request for $396,700,000.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 12 [Special].—A mass protest of thousands of taxpayers opposed to Democratic Gov. Herbert H. Lehman's proposed $396,700,000 budget for the fiscal year beginning next July 1 descended on the state capital here today like a tidal wave.

Gov. Lehman.

Coming here aboard special trains and by buses and automobiles, nearly 8,000 representatives of 829 protesting groups paraded thru downtown streets to the big armory, three blocks from the state capitol. There they staged the greatest demonstration against taxation measures in the history of the state. The occasion was the customary hearing before legislative committees.

As the marchers entered the armory they were compelled by police to give up their banners—emblazoned with tax protests. This was done on instructions by members of the legislature, which is controled by Republicans, in order to lessen confusion inside. Those unable to jam into the armory, which seats more than 6,000, listened to the proceedings thru an amplifying system outside.

Demand Breathing Spell.

The hearing began at 11 a. m. and lasted for more than 12 hours. More than 225 spoke. Speaker after speaker urged drastic cuts in state expenses and demanded a breathing spell from taxation.

They reminded the legislators that taxation without representation led to the revolutionary war. They blamed rising taxes for the migration of business from New York City and the state. Several thousand of the protesters were from New York City.

A minority group, including parent-teacher representatives, automobile club spokesmen, and state pay rollers, also was on hand. They pleaded that the contemplated spending program be kept intact in order to afford improved educational facilities and better roads and to continue mandatory salary boosts for state employés.

Question Up to Legislature.

With the completion of the speeches attacking the bulging budget or defending it, the question was up to the legislature. Economy advocates hoped they had found a sympathetic ear, since the Republican majorities in the assembly and senate last year sliced 25 million dollars from the governor's proposed budget.

New York state's spending program leaped nearly 100 million dollars while Franklin D. Roosevelt was governor from 1929 to 1932. When Gov. Lehman entered office in 1933 he found he had inherited a 100 million dollar deficit. This was shaved down from year to year, principally thru increased taxes, until last year a balanced budget was achieved. However, expenditures again began to jump upward.

Calls for $13,500,000 Cut.

Specific recommendations for economies in the new budget at today's hearing were laid before the legislators by George H. McCaffrey of New York City, representing the most influential groups of merchants, industries, realtors, and taxpayers in the state. He proposed a $13,500,000 cut in a state aid for education and a slash in state employés' salaries.

Speaking on the other side of the question, Mrs. May Healy, heading the joint committee of teachers' organizations, declared there could be no economy because of the influx of refugee children from abroad.

To this, Clarke G. Daily, chairman of the Manhattan chapter of the Taxpayers' Federation, Inc., demanded that citizens "refuse longer to bow down before the sacred cow of education."

William Martin Jr., president of the New York Stock exchange, pleaded for a reduction in the stock transfer tax. This levy, he asserted, is driving a growing portion of the securities business to organized exchanges in other states.

Germans Burn Ship Trapped on Brazil Coast

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Feb. 12 (AP).—Crewmen from the British cruiser Hawkins tonight declared the German freighter Wakama was set afire by her own crew when three British warships overhauled her and presumably she sank.

The seamen said the Hawkins and the cruisers Shropshire and Dorsetshire were close by when the torch was put to the Wakama.

[Neutral observers last night said it was possible the British cruisers had violated American nations' 300 mile neutrality belt in stopping the Wakama off the Brazilian coast.]

Seaman Tells His Story.

One of the seaman from the Hawkins told this story:

"We were proceeding toward Rio, expecting to arrive at 8 a. m., Monday, when I suddenly realized we were going rapidly in the opposite direction. An officer told me, 'We must be chasing the Wakama.' Then we saw her. But soon we saw fire coming from her, and we turned around and came back. I found out that the Dorsetshire, which has planes aboard, sent one over the Wakama and told the German ship to surrender.

"She didn't surrender, but the crew got into lifeboats, and the boat was set afire. We saw both the Dorsetshire and Shropshire afterwards.

Crew Believed Still in Boats.

"As far as I know, the crew of the Wakama still is in small boats because in wartime when a ship sets herself afire or scuttles herself a warship has no obligation to rescue the men. At least, definitely, they are not aboard the Hawkins."

The Hawkins was the only one of the three British cruisers to put into Rio de Janeiro.

The 3,771 ton Wakama, which slipped out of Rio de Janeiro harbor last midnight, broadcast an SOS this afternoon. Shortly afterward two rescue ships which raced to the scene reported they found nothing afloat.

The Wakama carried no passengers when she left this port. Altho the exact number in her crew was unknown, a vessel of her size usually carries between 30 and 35 men.

U-Boat Sinks British Freighter.

ROME, Feb. 12.—The 5,265 ton British freighter Somme was reported sunk by a German submarine today off Morocco. No details were learned regarding the crew's fate.

Estonian Steamer Sunk.

LONDON, Feb. 12 (AP).—A Reuters, British news agency, dispatch from Kopervik, Norway, today reported the sinking of the Estonian steamer Linda, 1,213 tons, by a mine or torpedo. She was en route from England to Gotheburg, Sweden. The loss was disclosed with the landing of the crew by the Swedish steamer Birgitta. One crewman died of injuries.

The exhausted crew of 10 from the 224 ton British trawler, Theresa Boyle, sunk by a German bomber in the North sea Saturday, was brought to a northeast British port tonight.

The Belgian steamer Flanders, 5,827 tons, reported holed in a collision with an unidentified vessel, was beached today on the southeast coast. The ship was run aground just in time to prevent her sinking. She was en route from Antwerp to Montevideo.

COST OF LIVING LEAPS IN ITALY; FOOD PRICE INCREASE SET AT 30%

ROME, Feb. 12.—A new list of maximum prices for staple foods was issued today, thus giving the government's reluctant consent to a rise in the cost of living which is assuming dizzy proportions. The motive for the new rise has been the imposition of the new 2 per cent turnover tax, which took effect Feb. 8 and which in every possible case has been passed on to the consumer.

However, the rises almost invariably exceed 2 per cent. They are the culmination of a steady series of increases that began just after the war in Ethiopia. The rises have gained momentum during the present war. One housewife said that food prices had risen 25 per cent since September, without counting today's increases. Other housewives set the figure at 30 per cent.

The price of bread has risen 2 per cent, which is the minimum. Coffee or drinks in cafés cost 10 per cent more than last week. An increase on foreign cigarets amounts to 12½ per cent. A package of any of the well known American brands costs the equivalent of 46 cents.

DISCOVER FIRST NEW AMERICAN BIRD IN 21 YEARS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12 (AP).—Discovery of the first new species of bird in the continental United States in 21 years was reported today by the Smithsonian institution.

The woodland songster, member of the family of warblers, was given the scientific name of Dendroica Potomac, or Sutton's Warbler. The first bird was seen in the "Panhandle" district of West Virginia by Karl W. Haller, ornithologist of Bethany college.

Scientists say the bird may be a new creation, the rarely observed phenomenon in nature of a fertile cross between two species.

500 Enraged as Polish War Film Is Seized

Police raided a hall at 3310 South Morgan street last night, breaking up the exhibition of a motion picture showing the German invasion of Poland, and sending home some 500 irate men and women of Polish descent.

The picture was sponsored by the Polish American Citizens' league, headed by Boles Patzkoski, 32 years old, 2040 Humboldt boulevard. He was arrested. The film was confiscated. Police charged that the league had no police permit to show the film.

Police Censor Leads Raid.

Only one reel of the three reel picture, entitled "The Invasion of Poland by Hitler," had been run off when police appeared. The police were headed by Lieut. Harry M. Costello of the police film censorship detail. He immediately stopped the exhibition and placed Patzkoski in custody. Previously, a picture had been shown depicting Poland as it was before the German invasion.

The raid caused bitter resentment among the audience, and for a time there were some threats against the police. Cooler heads, according to one who was present, checked what might have resulted in a serious disturbance.

Patzkoski was booked at the Deering street station on a charge of exhibiting an uncensored film without a police permit. He was released on $100 bail, and is to appear in police court this morning.

Charges Raid Is Unfair.

Later Patzkoski charged that the raid was unfair. He said the film was of the 16 millimeter type used in homes and clubs, and issued by the Castle Films company. It had already been shown three times before more than 2,000 persons. It was designed for Poles or Polish-Americans only. An admission fee of 25 cents was being charged.

Charges also were made that politics might have been behind the raid, one man pointing out that during the showing of the film the banner of a Republican candidate for ward committeeman was being displayed.

Tried to Warn Exhibitor.

Lieut. Costello declared that the only motive was the league's lack of a police permit. Complaint was made to that effect by a neighborhood movie, police said. Police were not concerned with the film's subject.

"I myself tried to warn Patzkoski," said Lieut. Costello. "I telephoned the hall and asked for him to tell him of the violation, but I was told they didn't have to talk with me. There was nothing for me to do then but to go to the hall with police."

Dewey Lashes New Deal for Its Failures

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Portland, Ore., Feb. 12.—America is suffering from an erosion of capital that has worn down the nation's entire productive plant seven billion dollars in seven New Deal years, Thomas E. Dewey charged here tonight at a Lincoln day celebration.

The racket busting prosecutor from New York, candidate for the Republican nomination for President, declared there was no wonder that one-third of the population is ill-clothed, ill-housed, and ill-fed, as President Roosevelt has said and that nine million men and women are out of work.

Lashes Out at New Deal.

Lashing out at the New Deal for its failure to recapture prosperity and end unemployment, Dewey took as his theme "Uniting a House Divided." He quoted Abraham Lincoln's scriptural warning in the slavery crisis that "a house divided against itself cannot stand." Dewey applied the same warning to present conditions declaring that the division of the American people now over political and economic principles is bringing tragic results to the nation.

The strategy of the New Deal, Dewey charged, is the opposite of Lincoln's warning—it is "divide and rule." The consequent disruption, friction, and bickering between government and the citizens, he said, have caused continued idleness of millions.

Idleness Big Issue.

Asserting that employment and recovery are the major issues, Dewey declared that America's productive plant—factories, mills, mines, and farms—is worth from 170 to 200 billion. Erosion of capital, or wearing down of productive equipment, he estimated at the rate of 6 billion dollars a year in needed repairs and replacements.

"That is our annual erosion of capital," he said. "Let us get this straight. We have to put back into the plant we now have 6 billion dollars a year to avoid going backwards.

"But, under the New Deal, we are not even standing still. In six years from 1933 to the end of 1938, we needed 36 billion dollars for replacement alone. The grand total of capital put into our productive plant in those years was only 29 billion dollars—not even enough to make up for wear and tear. Several billion dollars short of holding our own. Our productive plant and equipment have been running down at the heel at the rate of more than one billion dollars a year."

Shackling of Industry.

Shackling of industry and initiative, distrust of shifting New Deal policies, punitive taxes, harassment of business by burocrats, he charged had caused unemployment and held back recovery.

"What should we do about it?" Dewey asked. "Stop the erosion of our plant. Start expanding it again. Stop government squandering of the savings of a nation. Release these savings to the vital work of creating jobs. Stop government by discord.

"Proclaim our single purpose that employment and recovery must again come first."

Points to Farmer's Ills.

Turning to agriculture, Dewey declared there had been a New Deal failure to restore a reasonable parity between industrial and farm prices, and as a consequence the economic life of America has been kept off balance.

Dewey quoted from both branches of organized labor, the American Federation of Labor and John L. Lewis' C. I. O., criticisms of New Deal poli-

PRESIDENT TO TAKE ANOTHER VACATION; LEAVES THIS WEEK

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12 (AP).—President Roosevelt will leave this week on a midwinter vacation trip which is expected to develop into a cruise in southern waters. The White House declined to comment on the trip. It was learned on good authority, however, that the President would disclose details at a press conference tomorrow.

Since he has made it an annual custom to take a fishing trip around February, it was assumed he would again use a navy cruiser and sail southward along the Atlantic coast or possibly enter the Gulf of Mexico.

One reason for the secrecy surrounding the trip, it appeared, was the fact that belligerent war vessels have been reported in the Caribbean from time to time. Mr. Roosevelt himself reported last fall that a submarine had been sighted off Miami, Fla., and another near Key West, Fla.

SUPREME COURT ADDS TO POWER OF LABOR BOARD

Sole Judge of Facts, Decision Holds.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—The United States Supreme court held today that the National Labor Relations board is not subject to judicial supervision with respect to its findings of facts, even tho the facts may be disputed. The decision was unanimous, with Justice Frank Murphy not participating.

Justice H. L. Black.

The court's opinion, delivered by Justice Hugo L. Black, rebuked the United States Court of Appeals for the 5th circuit for substituting its judgment on disputed facts for the board's judgment and said that power to do that has been denied the courts by congress.

Circuit Court Hits Evidence.

The circuit court had set aside a labor board order against the Waterman Steamship corporation, of Mobile, Ala., on the ground that it was based upon mere suspicion and was not supported by substantial evidence. The order directed the company, which had an employment contract with the International Seamen's union of the American Federation of Labor, to cease alleged discriminations against members of the National Maritime union of the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Justice Black's opinion reversed the Circuit court and directed the enforcement of the labor board's order in its entirety.

The Wagner labor relations act provides that "the findings of the board as to the facts, if supported by evidence, shall . . . be conclusive." Altho the labor board has contended that this means any evidence, the Supreme court heretofore has ruled that the term "substantial evidence" is implied, as it is expressed in the federal trade commission act and other statutes creating federal administrative agencies, and that the labor board is bound by the well established rule that administrative findings must be supported by preponderant evidence.

Given Final Authority.

Today's decision, however, apparently construes the Wagner act to vest final and absolute authority with respect to the facts in the labor board. It follows the trend of a series of decisions recently announced by the reconstructed Supreme court, the effect of which is to confirm the autocracy of the quasi-legislative, quasi-judicial agencies which formulate their own laws and, acting as prosecutor, judge, and jury, enforce them.

In the Pacific coast longshoremen's case, the Supreme court held that the Wagner act prohibits judicial review of all labor board orders with respect to the conduct of elections for employé representation and to the designation of employé units for collective bargaining purposes. This was the case in which the labor board certified the union headed by Harry Bridges, revolutionary C. I. O. leader, as the bargaining agency for all the longshore workers on the Pacific coast, including those in localities where the A. F. of L. union had majorities.

FCC Procedure Upheld.

Two weeks ago the court upheld, in the case of the Pottsville Broadcasting company, that the administrative procedure of the Federal Communications commission is not subject to judicial interference. Justice Felix Frankfurter, writing the opinion in that case, said:

"It is always easy to conjure up extreme and even oppressive possibilities in the exertion of authority. But courts are not charged with general guardianship against all potential mischiefs in the complicated tasks of government. The present case makes timely the reminder that legislatures are ultimate guardians of the liberties and welfare of the people in quite as great a degree as the courts'."

Today's decision, and the others of a similar character, are expected to give impetus in congress not only to demands for revision of the Wagner act but also to the pending Walter-Logan administrative law bill, which is intended to place the federal regulatory agencies under strict judicial supervision and halt what proponents of the legislation call the drift toward totalitarianism.

Citing the provision of the Wagner act which vests conclusive authority in the labor board to determine the facts, Justice Black's opinion said:

"It is of paramount importance that courts not encroach upon this exclusive power of the board if effect is to be given the intention of congress to apply an orderly, informed and specialized procedure to the complex, administrative problems arising in the solution of industrial disputes. As it did in setting up other administrative bodies, congress has left questions of law which arise before the board—but not more—ultimately to the traditional review of the judiciary.

"Not by accident, but in line with a general policy, congress has deemed it wise to entrust the finding of facts to these specialized agencies. It is essential that courts regard this division of responsibility which congress as a matter of policy has embodied in the very statute from which the court of appeals derived its jurisdiction to act.

Court Substitutes Its Judgment.

"The Court of Appeals' failure to enforce the board's order resulted from the substitute of its judgment on disputed facts for the board's judgment—and power to do that has been denied the courts by congress. Whether the court would reach the same conclusion as the board from the conflicting evidence is immaterial and the court's disagreement with the board could not warrant the disregard of the statutory division of authority set up by congress."

The labor board, on complaint of the C. I. O. union, held hearings and found that the company laid up the ships Bienville [27 days] and Fairland [seven days] for dry docking and repairs and violated the Wagner act by [1] discharging and refusing to reinstate, because of membership in the C. I. O. union, the entire unlicensed crew and the chief steward of the Bienville and all but three of the crew of the Fairland; [2] discharged the second engineer of the Azalea City because of his activities in representing aggrieved members of the Marine Engineers' Beneficial association, another C. I. O. union; [3] and, pending an election directed by the board, refused to grant ships' passes to representatives of the C. I. O. union while granting them to the A. F. of L. union.

Ordered to Reinstate Men.

The board ordered the company to reinstate the C. I. O. men and cease other alleged unfair labor practices.

The company contended that the employé relationship of the C. I. O. crew members terminated when, after their last voyage, they received their wages and signed off the ships' articles in compliance with the seamen's act. The act provides that the master and each seaman shall "in the presence of the shipping commissioner . . . sign a mutual release of all claims for wages in respect of the past voyage or engagement" and that such release "shall operate as a mutual discharge and settlement of all demands for wages between the parties."

Since vacancies were created as the men signed off, the company contended, it was obligated by the terms of its contract with the A. F. of L. union to fill the vacancies with members of the A. F. of L. union. The contract provided that "as vacancies occur, members of the International Seamen's Union of America, who are citizens of the United States, shall be given preference of employment, if they can satisfactorily qualify to fill the respective positions."

The labor board, however, argued that the employé relationship of the C. I. O. crew members terminated only with respect to the last voyage, and found that there was a continuing relationship, term, tenure, or condition of employment between the company and its men.

Costa Rica Totals Show Landslide for Dr. Guardia

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Feb. 12.—Final results of yesterday's presidential election showed that Dr. Calderon Guardia polled 90,005 votes against 11,001 for the communists and 6,860 for the Confraternidad party. All senatorial candidates running on Dr. Guardia's National Republican ticket also were swept into office.

4 NEGROES SAVED FROM DEATH BY SUPREME COURT

Black, Former Klansman, Delivers Opinion.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12 (AP).—The Supreme court spoke out sharply today against "secret, inquisitorial" police methods in reversing the conviction of four Florida Negroes sentenced to death for the robbery-slaying of a white man.

In a Lincoln's birthday session, the court found that confessions obtained from the prisoners thru five days of continuous grilling, even if unaccompanied by physical mistreatment, violated their constitutional right to "due process of law."

The circumstances were such, the court said, as to fill the prisoners with "terror" and "the haunting fear of mob violence was around them."

Klan Controversy Recalled.

The unanimous opinion was read by Justice Hugo L. Black, whose appointment to the bench precipitated an angry controversy because of his one time membership in the Ku Klux Klan. He acknowledged at the time that he once was a klan member, but added that he resigned.

"Under our constitutional system, courts stand against any winds that blow as havens of refuge for those who might otherwise suffer because they are helpless, weak, outnumbered, or because they are nonconforming victims of prejudice and public excitement," said Black.

"Due process of law, preserved for all by our constitution, commands that no such practice as that disclosed by this record shall send any accused to his death.

Reviews Court's Duty.

"No higher duty rests upon this court than that of maintaining this constitutional shield for the benefit of every human being subject to our constitution—of whatever race, creed, or persuasion."

The Negroes are Isiah [Izell] Chambers, Jack Williamson, Charlie Davis, and Walter Woodward [Woodard]. They were rounded up with more than 20 other Negroes immediately after the killing of elderly Robert Darcy at Pompano, Fla., in 1933. No charges were filed until after confessions were obtained the following week.

"Here the record develops a sharp conflict upon the issue of physical violence and mistreatment," the Supreme court found, "but shows, without conflict, the dragnet methods of arrest on suspicion without warrant, and the protracted questioning and cross-questioning of these ignorant young colored tenant farmers by state officers and other white citizens, in a fourth floor jail room, where as prisoners they were without friends, advisers, or counselors, and under circumstances calculated to break the strongest nerves and the stoutest resistance."

The decision upsets a ruling by the Florida Supreme court denying the four defendants a new trial. They may be tried again or they may be freed if the Florida authorities believe it impossible to convict them again without their confessions.

Tried Three Times.

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Feb. 12 [Special].—The four Negroes reprieved from death today by a United States Supreme court decision were convicted in 1933 for the slaying of Robert Darcy, a white man who operated a fish market at Pompano. He was killed while on his way home. His day's receipts, amounting to $80, were taken by his assailants. The first trial for the Negroes was before a judge here, the second before a Broward county jury and the third, on a change of venue, was before a Palm Beach county jury.

RELEASE PELLEY ON BOND PENDING HEARING MARCH 12

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12 (AP).—William Dudley Pelley, head of the silver shirt legion, was placed under $2,500 bond today pending a hearing March 12 to determine whether he should be sent back to North Carolina to face a charge of violation of probation.

The leader of the silver shirts, which the house committee on un-American activities has called a Fascist organization, was brought to police court in a patrol wagon from the precinct station where he had spent the week-end behind the bars. He had been taken into custody for North Carolina authorities after completing testimony Saturday before the Dies committee.

Pelley was convicted in 1935 of violating the North Carolina blue sky securities law and received a conditional release.

WAR IS CERTAIN IF NEW DEALERS WIN, SAYS FISH

Representative Hamilton Fish [R., New York] said last night he is convinced that if President Roosevelt is reëlected, or any of the New Deal internationalists get into office, we will be at war three months after the new inauguration.

Representative Fish spoke at a meeting arranged by the 47th ward Republicans in the Ravenswood Masonic temple at Wilson avenue and Paulina street.

"The Democratic party under President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull," Fish said, "has become the party of internationalism and is rapidly becoming the war party in the United States. The American people have been fooled once by the internationalists with promises to keep out of foreign wars, and refuse to be deceived again."

REPUBLICANS DINE FOR 25 CENTS, AND SAVE $99.75

Economy Is Keynote of Naperville Affair.

Republicans of the 11th Illinois district—nearly 5,000 of them—sat down to a Lincoln dinner last night which was a direct contrast to the elaborate $100 a plate Jackson day banquets served to the Democrats.

The Republicans paid 25 cents—a saving of $99.75—as they filed into Merner field house of North Central college in Naperville. The menu featured barbecued beef sandwiches, cole slaw, and coffee. As favors every woman received an old fashioned stick of candy and every man a corn cob pipe.

Speakers Dwell on Economy.

The thread of economy and common sense was carried thru the evening by the speakers. Congressman Charles A. Plumley [R., Vt.] told of the consequences of New Deal spending and the soaring national debt.

Wayland Brooks, candidate for the United States senate, and Dwight H. Green and Richard J. Lyons, who are seeking the nomination for governor, were present.

Congressman Plumley said he had been asked to speak on the procedure to follow "to keep a state from going 'haywire' in an election year." The answer, he said, was to follow the examples of Vermont and Maine, only states to go Republican in the 1936 presidential election.

Proud of Republicanism.

"We Vermonters are Republicans and proud of it," said Plumley. "We are opposed to the profligate spending of our hard earned money, and we know the Republican party stands for economy in government, for sound currency, and full value money. No complicated scheme of relief, no plan of government price fixing, no resort to the public treasury will be of any permanent value in reëstablishing industry, assisting agriculture, or bringing back genuine and permanent prosperity.

"Those of us who serve on the appropriations committee are confronted by this administration's eighth successive deficit budget. Now comes the secretary of the treasury admitting that the 45 billion dollar debt limit has been reached and suggesting it be increased to 50 billion dollars. The people are entitled to know all about this financial juggling that has been going on; but they cannot know it all, for nobody in this administration knows where it actually stands."

The speaker lashed out at the plight of the farmers under the New Deal. He termed the so-called reciprocal trade treaties a blow to agriculture.

Farm Market "Given Away."

"The New Dealers are squirming with the mess they have made of their agricultural program," Plumley declared. "They gave the farmers' market away and put him in competition with the peasants of Europe, the peons of South America, and the slave labor of some foreign lands."

"In the seven New Deal years we have exported only 5 billion dollars of agricultural products and have imported over $7,400,000,000 worth. The farmer has an unfavorable trade balance of 47 per cent.

"The New Deal has put an invisible mortgage on every acre of crop land in America. The farmer may think his farm is paid for and that there isn't any mortgage on record, but the mortgage must be paid by the production of crops off this farm.

"The public debt has been increased by over 20 billion dollars the last six years, to say nothing about the millions of losses the government will take on its business and agricultural loans now being carried at full value. Of this 20 billion dollar increase in debt the farmers, who represent 25 per cent of the people, will have to repay over 5 billion dollars thru their farm operations.

"Mr. Wallace may have made farmers believe that he has been a Santa Claus and doled out 2½ billion dollars during the last six years, but the facts are that the farmers have over 5 billion to be paid back."

Democrats Drop McGarry from Judiciary Ticket

BY PARKE BROWN.

Municipal Judge Eugene L. McGarry, against whom a conspiracy case is pending in the Appellate court, has been dropped from the regular Democratic organization's slate of candidates for the April 9 primary.

Judge Eugene McGarry

Judge McGarry is one of twelve Democrats on the city bench whose terms expire this year. The eleven others have been slated, but Judge McGarry's name has been omitted and the twelfth man is John J. Griffin of the law firm of Arnd, Griffin & Hanley, a veteran of more than 25 years' Chicago practice, who is believed to stand well in the eyes of the Chicago Bar association.

Quilici Also on Slate.

One other new name appears on the organization ticket, but that is in connection with a vacancy. George L. Quilici, a former Republican, is slated for the two year vacancy caused by the election of Judge Joseph A. Graber to the Superior court last year. Quilici was warmly praised by the Chicago Bar association and was indorsed in its primaries of 1930 and 1934 when he was a candidate for this same court on the Republican ticket.

The 11 Democratic judges supported for renomination are the following:

Stephen Adamowski	Matthew D. Hartigan
Francis Borrelli	Joseph B. Hermes
J. M. Braude	Harold P. O'Connell
Joseph J. Drucker	Frank M. Padden
Gibson E. Gorman	George B. Weiss
LeRoy Hackett

Suspended from Court Work.

Judge McGarry has been suspended from court work since early last December, when he was indicted by a Cook county grand jury on charges of malfeasance and conspiracy to accept false bail bond acknowledgments. The indictments were dismissed by Judge Graber in the Criminal court upon a ruling that a judge cannot be indicted for acts that come within his discretion as a judge. State's Attorney Courtney carried the case to the Appellate court, which gave Judge McGarry's counsel until next Friday to file a brief.

The Chicago Bar association also has been investigating Judge McGarry's conduct, and its committee on judiciary has held several hearings in closed meetings. The question of disbarment proceedings is under consideration.

GREEN AND LUND BLAST BUNGLING BY DEMOCRATS

Republican Candidates Make Radio Speeches.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Altho the Illinois state primary is eight weeks away, Republican candidates have begun using radio stations so frequently that two of them — Dwight H. Green, governorship aspirant, and Arnold L. Lund, running for lieutenant-governor—were on the air last night.

Green, who delivered the second of a series of Monday night talks, took Abraham Lincoln as his subject but brought the present war situation and national conditions into his speech by comparing this period with the prewar days of 1865 and 1916.

Lund, whose talk was his first big public address, centered his remarks upon Gov. Horner and the Democratic state administration. He had challenged the governor to make use of time on the same station which had been reserved by Lund for that purpose. Having had no reply from Horner and his associates, Lund criticized in detail many of the expenditures of the state under Horner.

Initiative Throttled, He Says.

Green said:

"Now again we are faced with a world war and a crisis at home which is almost as bad as war. For more than nine years, or ever since a Democratic majority was elected to congress in 1930, we have been in the throes of a depression that has become chronic.

"We go neither one way nor the other. We are tied up in a harness of ill considered legislation that has throttled the initiative of the American people. And, even worse than that, we are faced with a breakdown of statesmanship just as we were in the 1850s.

"Our governments, both in the states and the nation, confess they do not know which way to turn. They keep asking for new plans. As long as the money held out they were willing to try anything, and they have tried almost all of the age-old panaceas which always have been proved worthless or worse.

Nation Being Made Over.

"Hundreds upon hundreds of thousands of young men are beginning to believe that working for the government is the only way in which they can make a living. In a few short years our favored land has been made over into a country where, unless there is a change this year, we shall all sooner or later be working for the government."

Lund, in his talk, repeated many of the detailed criticisms of state appropriations and expenditures contained in his press releases during recent weeks. He also summed up many of his previous charges in a more general attack. Lump sum appropriations, travel costs, and other subjects were handled in this way. So was the subject of increased state revenues.

Points to Increased Revenue.

"It is true," Lund said on this last topic, "that the state doesn't get the 21 million dollars annually from direct property taxes that it did in 1933. I also grant that it gets 2 million less from the inheritance tax and allots about 4 million more on motor fuel grants. That's a total of 27 million less.

"But what of the sums it gets now but didn't get then? It gets 81 million from sales tax. It also gets 9 million from the public utility tax, 7 million more from the motor vehicle tax and about 12 million more from other taxes—a total of 120 millions.

"The state is getting 93 million more now than it did in 1933."

ROBBED OF CAR AND $14.

Joseph Levy, 8043 Rhodes avenue, County hospital assistant head laundryman, was robbed of $14 and his automobile by a colored gunman at 60th street and South Park way last night.

Testifies in Mink

Sonja Henie as she appeared after testifying in office of court referee in New York yesterday.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

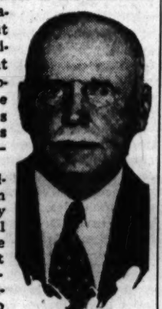
New York, Feb. 12. — Sonja Henie, ice skater and film actress, yesterday testified that she does not owe Dennis R. Scanlon $92,000. Attired in mink, Miss Henie appeared in midmorning at the office of Supreme Court Referee J. Hampden Dougherty. Behind closed doors, she answered a list of questions prepared by Lloyd F. Thanhauser, attorney for Scanlon, a sports promoter who claims to have been Miss Henie's manager in 1935 and 1936.

The examination of the skater was held upon the order of Supreme Court Justice Philip J. McCook, before whom Scanlon's suit for $92,000 is to be tried. Scanlon contends that one of the services he performed for Miss Henie was using his influence to have persons "not unfavorable to the defendant appointed judges at the 1936 winter Olympics in Germany."

ADVISES DOCTORS TO USE POLITICAL WEAPONS—VOTES

Next A. M. A. Head Talks on Health Program.

Dr. Nathan B. Van Etten of New York, president-elect of the American Medical association, last night advised physicians to fight moves toward socialized medicine with weapons that legislators understand—votes.



Dr. Nathan B. Van Etten.

"It is a serious reflection upon the virility of the medical profession," he said, "that it seems to be necessary for political theorists to propagandize regimentation of medical service in order to arouse physicians to action."

Discusses A. M. A. Program.

Dr. Van Etten spoke before a dinner meeting of the Federation of State Medical boards in the Palmer House. He discussed the national health program advocated by the A. M. A., which calls for coördination of all government health functions under a secretary of health, use of federal funds for medical care, and disease prevention only on proof of need, development of local responsibility for local health problems and encouragement of private medical practice in harmony with the democratic system of free enterprise.

During the afternoon Dr. Van Etten spoke before the 36th annual congress on medical education and licensure in the Palmer House. He asked that medical school education be aimed at increasing the practical, clinical education of the student.

Hits "Smattering of Specialties."

"Medical students are confused young people when they get their degrees," said Dr. Van Etten, "because so much time is taken from the serious business of teaching practical clinical doctoring of real people by diverting their attention to smatterings of specialties.

"The general practitioner is one of the most valuable citizens of this republic and the right kind of education must be aimed at him. The force of opinion may demand a better practical education so that the general practicioner may be able to render better medical service to low income people."

Need a Broad Education.

Dr. George D. Stoddard, dean of the Graduate college of the State University of Iowa, said that medical students need more liberal education.

"The doctor should be a social scientist and a leading spirit in governmental affairs," he said. "With the increasing government sponsorship of the acitivities of physicians, there will come a reciprocal relation of the physician to the government. He will not dominate a government of laws, but his may be the determining voice."

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the A. M. A. journal, criticized the recent proposal of leaders in the Association of American Medical Colleges that medical colleges establish supervisory control over all hospitals in which their graduates become interns.

Chief Function of Hospital.

"Have not those who proposed this scheme," he asked, "forgotten that the chief function of a hospital is not the teaching of interns but the care of sick patients? Will any considerable number of the 750 hospitals of this country now approved for internship by the council on medical education and hospital [A. M. A.] submit to such preposterous dictation?"

Dr. Fishbein said elimination of proprietary medical schools and diploma mills has reduced the number of American medical schools from 154 in 1905 to 76 approved schools in 1940. The modern schools, he continued, "compare more than favorably with the educational institutions for medicine in England, France, Germany, Austria, and even Sweden."

ETIQUET BE HANGED! TOOTHPICK APPROVED BY HALF OF DENTISTS

The toothpick is an instrument of dental hygiene—regardless of etiquet—in the opinion of 48 per cent of the 500 dentists attending the midwinter meeting of the Chicago Dental society. Forty-seven per cent of those attending, however, took an opposite stand.

Sixty per cent of the dentists thought the use of mouth wash commendable. Thirty per cent were against it, and 10 per cent suggested it be used occasionally. When it came to the merits of tooth powder and tooth paste, 40 per cent favored powder, 30 per cent paste, and the remainder said it didn't matter.

Fifty per cent said you should wear your dentures [false teeth] while sleeping. Seventy-nine per cent think you can retain your teeth thruout life if you have adequate home and professional care.

The breath-o-meter put in busy day. It is the instrument developed at Northwestern university to calculate pO, more commonly known as the degree of unpleasantry in your breath, and is on display among the scientific exhibits. Placards point out that 55 per cent of all people have an offensive breath, 9.6 per cent of them even after brushing the teeth. The technical name for disagreeable breath, incidentally, is feter-ex'ore.

Miss Eleanora Schumann, a Milwaukee, Wis., dental assistant, has made an elaborate vitamin house which is on exhibit. Its walls are of oatmeal, its lawn of split peas, the garden chairs of whole wheat crackers, the bird bath of cod liver oil, the flagstones of calcium tablets, and the front walk of lima beans. It is pure vitamin thruout, from living room lamp to kitchen wall paper.

Cicero to Pick Township Office Candidates Today

Cicero voters will go to the polls today to nominate township candidates in a primary election. There is a contest for only one office—that of township trustee. The Democratic ticket is made up of George Stedronsky for president; Anton G. Krupicka for clerk; Jerry Viterna for collector; Leo Kasperski for supervisor; Henry R. Schwarzel for assessor, and Edward Grisko, Felix Zdrcyweczski, and Edward Backofen for trustee. The Republican ticket is made up of Frank E. Svoboda for president; John C. Stoffel for clerk; Jerry Dolezal for collector; Frank A. Marek for supervisor; Frank J. Christenson for assessor, and Jerry A. Holecek for trustee.

DENTAL SURVEY TRACES TOOTH DECAY TO SUGAR

Finds Dietary Changes Have Little Effect.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Practically everything the layman thinks he knows about the decay of his teeth is wrong.

This became evident yesterday at the 76th annual midwinter meeting of the Chicago Dental society, held in the Stevens hotel. Dr. Leonard S. Fosdick, head of the chemistry department of Northwestern university dental school, announced the findings of a 10 year study of dental decay.

The study shows tooth decay is caused by acids, originating from sugar taken into the mouth. It also shows, with scientific evidence to support it, that the only way to control dental decay is to avoid the intake of sugar.

Study Reveals Oddities.

The study revealed many oddities concerning tooth decay. It showed that:

1. Tooth decay is not a continuous process, but an intermittent one.

2. The brushing of teeth morning and night does little to prevent decay, despite the old belief that a clean tooth never decays. To be effective, brushing must be done immediately after eating.

3. There is no relation between soft and hard teeth and tooth decay. In fact, there is little difference in the hardness of teeth.

4. Dietary changes have no direct influence on the tooth enamel. It is in this enamel that decay begins.

5. Eating hard foods will not prevent decay.

6. Decay may increase during pregnancy, but this is not because of lack of calcium or phosphorus. It probably occurs because the woman is hungrier and eats more carbohydrates and sugar.

7. No matter how much calcium or phosphorus an adult eats [milk, orange juice, leafy vegetables], it does not decrease decay.

2,500 Mouths Examined.

Dr. Fosdick's study was based on experimentation in the mouths of 2,500 persons since 1930. He used an instrument known as the microglass electrode to measure the exact acidity in decayed teeth.

The action of sugar in causing tooth decay is similar to or identical with the formation of alcohol by yeast, Dr. Fosdick explained. The sugar is broken down into acids and the acids corrode the tooth. He said some persons are immune to decay because their saliva has a higher acid neutralizing power, a higher degree of supersaturation of calcium phosphate, a larger carbon dioxide combining power, and a larger flow.

$300 STOLEN FROM HOME.

A friend repaid a $300 loan to David Schalk on Saturday. Schalk, a butcher, hid the money in a suitcase in his home at 4949 Oakdale avenue, intending to take it to the bank today. But he reported to the police yesterday that some one had broken into his home and taken the money and his radio.

Common Sense About Constipation

A doctor would tell you that the best thing to do with constipation is get at its cause. That way you don't have to endure it first and try to "cure" it afterward—you can avoid having it.

Chances are you won't have to look far for the cause if you eat the super-refined foods most people do. Most likely you don't get enough "bulk"! And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines.

If this is what you lack, try crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains just the "bulk" you need.

Eat All-Bran often, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

TWO GOVERNORS POMMEL NEW DEAL AS FAILURE

Call for a Leader Having Lincoln's Ideals.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 12.—The Lincoln day banquet in the Civic auditorium here tonight became an event of national significance. The cause was the presence of two candidates for the Republican presidential nomination and of a third figure who may be the keynoter at the Republican national convention, expected to be held in Chicago in June.

The three Republican leaders are: Gov. Arthur H. James of Pennsylvania, who is expected to control his state's delegation to the Republican national convention and who took this occasion to loose an indictment of the New Deal.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, who gave his own nomination platform last Saturday night in St. Paul, Minn., and who presided at tonight's Lincoln banquet.

Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, regarded as a probable selection for keynote speaker at the Republican convention.

Both Governors Speak.

Because it is not impossible that Pennsylvania and Minnesota might determine the question of the Republican nomination, the presence of James and Stassen in Vandenberg's home town was of importance to political observers. The Lincoln banquet was a love feast, foreshadowing possibilities of a combination later.

Both Gov. James and Gov. Stassen delivered addresses to the 1,500 persons gathered at the banquet board and to the 2,000 others who looked down from the balconies. Gov. Luren D. Dickinson of Michigan, many other state officials and Republican district leaders from thruout the state attended.

Both Blast New Deal.

The governors loosed a dual attack on the Roosevelt administration, offering Abraham Lincoln and his ideals in contrast. The New Deal was condemned for playing politics with relief, interfering with state rights, needlessly expanding the federal pay rolls, and embroiling labor in unnecessary strikes.

In seven years, Gov. James charged, the Roosevelt administration has failed completely to find a cure for unemployment, advancing only one solution—war. "We have been fed rumors of war and threats of war for literally years in a desperate effort to cover the colossal failure of the New Deal really to meet the problems of this nation," he said

The New Deal, James asserted, corrupts the spirit of the American people, giving them charity at the expense of liberty. He called for a new birth of freedom in this country, and a return to the compass of constitutional democracy instead of federal dictatorship.

Foresees Big Opportunity.

"In 1940 the Republican party has the greatest opportunity in its history to lead our groping people to the light—but with opportunity goes responsibility," he declared. "Our party furnished the leader, whose birthday this is, the man who met the national crisis of his day. In the coming months it must furnish leadership and inspiration to meet the crisis of our time.

"The party must drive home, as perhaps never before in history, not only the futility of surrendering American principles of government as a measure of expediency in a time of distress, but the still more important fact that those principles of government offer the best possible guide out of the difficulties which beset us.

"Lincoln, if he returned today, would find a nation ruled by those who have so long cultivated poverty and misery and hate that they can vision no other crop. He would find the future of this nation lightly held in the hands of those who can continue to rule for only so long as they can keep the hearts of America's men and women heavy with fear of starvation, with fear of the present and the future alike, with jealousies and rivalries that are suckled from the breast of untruth.

James Attacks Burocracy.

"There is another tug-of-war that Lincoln would find, In his life the words, states' rights, raised the question of whether states were strong enough to destroy the union. In America today the question is whether the federal government is strong enough to destroy the states."

Recalling major New Deal defeats such as court packing and reorganization, Gov. James said that the latest threat has come chiefly thru the extension of burocratic authority.

"It is thru the agency of these burocrats," he said, "that the New Deal now is attempting to chain the states. This is the front upon which now must be fought the next battle to preserve American pattern of representative democracy.

"I do not suppose that there is any one of the 48 states' governors who has not been told in virtually so many words what that state's governor and legislature must surrender to the national administration as a condition for funds, rights, and privileges to which the state is entitled as a member of the Union.

Charges Abuses Are Scandal.

"The abuses by the national government in this field are a gigantic scandal. Nothing in American history is more despicable than has been the tying of political strings upon money which was raised so that fellow Americans might not go hungry.

"The federal government already has demonstrated that it has the power to withhold WPA funds from states which displease it politically. It is at present trying to establish the same power, under laws already passed, over such various funds as unemployment compensation, aid to dependent children, old age assistance, and blind relief. One such law would put a faucet, so to speak, on the moneys distributed to the states for highway purposes—and place a political hand on that faucet. Other proposals obviously contemplate the resurrection piecemeal of the NRA, first and greatest of the New Deal's unsuccessful experiments.

Deplores Idleness of Dollars.

"The choice in America is not between one party which gives relief and another which would not give relief. The choice is between relief given at the price of political integrity and relief divorced from politics and given on a basis of need. We know that can be done because in some states it has been done.

"Republicans have always believed that the idleness of dollars is as deplorable as the idleness of men. We need reëmployment in America in two varieties—reëmployment of men and reëmployment of money. We will go far along the solution of the problems of the depression, of the machine age, of the postwar crisis, when we get those two kinds of jobs—when we not only get idle men back to work, but bring from bank vaults and put back into industrial use the millions of dollars driven into hiding by the New Deal's experiments and malice."

Calls for Lincoln's Principles.

In his address Gov. Stassen voiced the opinion that the Republicans have a good chance to win this fall.

"The men and women of this nation have had enough of government of the New Deal, by the New Deal, and for the New Deal," he declared. "From all walks of life they are turning to the party of Lincoln with a desire of securing government of the people, by the people, and for the people.'

"On this anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln we can sense a tide of public opinion, rising from the farms, factories, places of business, and homes of our people of all walks of life; an increasing demand that we move forward in meeting the great problems before this nation in keeping with the basic principles that Lincoln followed, and that to do this there must be a change in Washington."

Government must furnish a cushion, he said, against the harsher features of our economic system, but it cannot successfully furnish a bed in which society can go to sleep.

Demands Pay Roll Cut.

Federal pay rolls, Stassen asserted, could be reduced one-fourth without injury to the public service. On this point he declared:

"In our approach to the general functions of the national government we must resolve that it is essential to change the trend toward ever greater centralized powers and ever larger governmental pay rolls demanding an increasing percentage of our national income.

"If we placed in effect in Washington a consolidation and reorganization of our federal government, a simplification of its overlapping and duplication, and relied more upon local government, we could reduce by one-fourth the number of federal pay rolls and never miss them, so far as the actual functioning of government is concerned. This would be of tremendous good in reducing the burocratic tendencies and change the present trend toward a government that runs the people, rather than a government run by the people."

Cites Loss in Labor Conflicts.

On the relations between labor and business, based on his experience with the new Minnesota labor relations law, Stassen said:

"The conflict between labor and business is one of the great impeding forces to progress in the development of more jobs in the adjustment of our economic system. Lockouts, strikes, and violence cause a loss not only to the workers and their families, not only to business men and their stockholders, but indirectly a loss that reflects upon all the people.

"We have observed the unsuccessful and almost disastrous attempts to set up a governmental board to make rules, to investigate their violation and to prosecute for infractions, and to sit in judgment, all wrapped up in the same individuals.

Result: Labor Is Embroiled.

"The result has been to embroil both branches of organized labor, thousands of unorganized workers and business, in a series of unnecessary difficulties, incurring the disapproval of all and resulting in a loss to all.

"The role of government in labor relations rather should be to provide a simple waiting or cooling off period before strikes or lockouts are instituted to provide able consultation without the power of decision, to establish labor courts and support from the administrative and legislative side and to enact a simple, modest code of unfair practices as to both labor and employer.

"The entire approach of the government should be to recognize the force of public opinion as the greatest potential force for peace and progress in labor relations, far greater and far more constructive than either the forces of the National Guard or of administrative decrees and persecution.

"Our national capitol must become the fountain head of encouragement of industrial development which will result in more jobs in private employment, and must clearly and unmistakably lead the people toward unity, toward wiping out intolerance and bitterness and class hatreds."

Donald W. Hornbeck of Cleveland, O., president of the National Federation of Young Republican Clubs, was in Grand Rapids for today's Republican activities. He held conferences and attended a luncheon at which Senator Vandenberg presided.

Asks Lincolnlike Leader.

Pontiac, Mich., Feb. 12 (AP).—"The nation needs and must find, thru the medium of the Republican party, a leader who has at least some of the qualities of the great Lincoln," said Gov. Ralph Carr, Colorado Republican, in an address at a Lincoln day banquet here tonight. Gov. Carr declared that the problems before the country today approach, if they do not surpass, those faced by Lincoln when the nation was plunged into civil war.

CARLSTROM TELLS NATION TO READOPT IDEALS OF LINCOLN

Havana, Ill., Feb. 12 [Special].—Annual observance of the anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln gives occasion for all Americans to reconsecrate themselves to his ideals, Oscar E. Carlstrom of Aledo, candidate for the Republican nomination for attorney general, told the Rotary club at its annual Lincoln day dinner tonight.

"At no time in our national experience," said Carlstrom, "has such a reconsecration been more sorely needed. The elemental virtues of thrift, public as well as private, a true faith in God, coupled with integrity of purpose, are basically essential to any approach to the problems confronting us. All these attributes were personified by Abraham Lincoln. Their observance alone can protect our future.

"It is an admission of fatal weakness and moral cowardice to concede that, possessing our vast resources and the genius and intelligence of our people, we cannot rightly solve our difficulties, and at the same time avoid involvement in senseless war or foreign intrigue."

PRESIDENT ATTENDS PUBLIC SERVICES AT LINCOLN MEMORIAL

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12 (AP).—President and Mrs. Roosevelt today participated in brief rites at the Lincoln memorial commemorating the 131st anniversary of the birth of the civil war president. They stood at attention while the army band played "Hail to the Chief," a bugler sounded "to the colors" and a color guard presented arms.

Then Capt. Daniel J. Callaghan, presidential naval aide, marched up the long tier of steps to the memorial and placed a presidential wreath beside the huge marble statue of Abraham Lincoln. The President stood with bared head while the band played the national anthem.

Accompanying Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt were Mrs. David Gray, Mrs. Roosevelt's aunt, and Brig. Gen. E. W. Watson, presidential secretary and military aide.

HONOR LINCOLN IN GATHERINGS THRUOUT CITY

Emancipator's Life Retold in All Its Phases.

Abraham Lincoln—the boy, the young rail splitter, the lawyer, the emancipator—lived again in the minds of the nation yesterday, the 131st anniversary of his birth. In Chicago speakers at numerous gatherings retold the story of Lincoln in all its phases from the time of his birth in a Kentucky cabin to his years in the White House.

The famous Saint-Gaudens statue of Lincoln in Lincoln park was the center of several ceremonies. Boy Scouts, enjoying a vacation on the holiday which found schools, banks, and many public offices closed, marched to the statue in the morning.

Massey Lays a Wreath.

At noon the Chicago Historical society arranged another ceremony at the statue. Raymond Massey, who has the rôle of Lincoln in the play, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," laid a wreath on the statue. Then Massey visited the Lincoln rooms of the Historical society, where he saw for the first time many objects associated with the life of the man he portrays on the stage.

Thousands thronged the society's museum at Clark street and North avenue, fulfilling the society tradition that Lincoln's birthday is its busiest day of the year. The motion picture, "Young Mr. Lincoln," was shown continuously.

The 41st Lincoln birthday program of the Grand Army Hall and Memorial association was held in Memorial hall of the Public Library. Thomas Ambrose, president of the association and commander of the Illinois department of the G. A. R., welcomed an overflow crowd. The Gettysburg address—on thousands of lips yesterday—was read at this program by Albert E. Gage. Wayland Brooks, Republican candidate for United States senator, was the speaker.

Before the services Charles G. Dawes was host to the G. A. R. members and a number of other guests at a luncheon at the Hotel Sherman. Among those present was Milton H. Myers of Park Ridge, chaplain of the Illinois department. He is 98 years old.

Essay Trophies Awarded.

The American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and other patriotic organizations sponsored neighborhood observances of the day. The Advertising Men's post, at a luncheon meeting at the Hotel Sherman, awarded trophies and medals to the winning boys and girls in its essay contest on "Why I Am Glad to Be an American."

Robert M. Adams spoke on "Lincoln and the Story of the 1860 Convention" at the White Breakfast of the Gen. Henry Dearborn chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. It was held in the Congress hotel.

Judge John C. Lewe was the Lincoln day speaker at the luncheon of the Chicago Bar association. The Jewish Welfare board sponsored Lincoln programs in all community centers.

Add 2 Cents to Blended Milk Price Paid Farmers

Dairy farmers in the Chicago milk shed are to get a blended price of $1.77 a hundred pounds [3.8 cents a quart] for milk delivered in January, N. J. Cladakis, federal market administrator, announced yesterday. This is 2 cents a hundred more than the blended price for December. Cladakis said the increase results mainly from an increase in sales of class 1 [fluid] milk, which brings a premium over other classes.

TAFT VIEWS NEW DEAL VICTORY AS END OF REPUBLIC

Future Must Be Settled at Polls, Says Senator.

Greensboro, N. C., Feb. 12 (AP).—Senator Robert A. Taft, a Republican presidential candidate, declared here tonight that the United States must decide whether it will remain a republic of its historic pattern or become a government by a totalitarian executive.

Speaking at the Republican party's Lincoln day rally for North Carolina, the Ohio senator predicted that "if the New Deal were licensed to proceed in the 1940 election," the result would be a "modern, streamlined totalitarian dictatorship."

"This country, in 1860," Taft said in a prepared address, "faced the greatest crisis in its history—whether it should remain a nation or be broken up into two or more bitterly hostile states. Thru the calm determination of Abraham Lincoln, we were preserved a nation, but only after the frightful trial of civil war.

Brakes Applied by Voters.

"Again in 1940 we face a fundamental decision—whether this country shall remain the kind of country which our fathers made and Lincoln preserved—a republic protecting the inalienable rights, the freedom and liberty of its individual citizens—or a government by a totalitarian executive with unlimited power over the lives and activities of individuals and local governments alike.

"The New Deal has slowed up today because the people in 1938 elected a congress which, representing its constituents, disapproves of more government power and spending.

"If President Roosevelt should be reëlected in 1940, however, the flood gates would be opened.

On to Financial Collapse.

"We would see the course of the last six years accelerated—more power, more regulation of every phase of life, more billions borrowed and poured out to retain the spenders in power, until the government is the servant, not of the people, but of its pensioners. We could not stop until financial collapse and a subservient congress produced a totalitarian dictatorship.

"But it remains for the voters to decide in November. I have no fear of the result when the issue is thus clearly presented to the people. They are against vast government extravagance. They are against government regulation of farm and business. They are against the whole radical philosophy of the small group of inside New Dealers in Washington today. They are against a third term, against destroying the precedent established by George Washington which has preserved this nation as a constitutional republic for 150 years."

Natural Causes Blamed for Death of Watchman, 83

James Davis, 83 years old, 3239 Warren boulevard, a one armed watchman, died of a chornic heart ailment and bronchial pneumonia, according to the verdict yesterday of a coroner's jury. Davis died nine days after he reached his home on Feb. 1, under escort of a stranger, with a fractured rib, wrenched shoulder, and cuts on his head. Police said there was no evidence to indicate Davis had been struck by an automobile or robbed.

DEWEY ASSAILS NEW DEAL FOR ITS FAILURES

Declares Policies Sap U. S. Production.

cies and performances as shown in the huge volume of unemployment.

Dewey was introduced by Gov. Charles A. Sprague. Others on the program were David B. Simpson, chairman of the Lincoln celebration, Kern Crandall, Republican state chairman, and Tom Oakshott, Washington state chairman. Following the speeches there was a reception for Dewey at a hotel.

Oregon gave Dewey a great welcome. Crowds flocked to his hotel suite all day. Fifty-five hundred tickets to the auditorium were given out last week in two hours. Thousands of applications were turned down.

Speaker in Fine Form.

Dewey was in fine form as he lashed the New Deal. "In the confusion of the early thirties," he began, "we elected a Democratic administration. That, of course, has happened before. It may be a mistake, but it is not necessarily a fatal mistake. It is a mistake which can be cured.

"This time, however, a new element has injected itself into our political life. What was elected as a Democratic administration with a New Deal label, turned out to be a New Deal administration with a Democratic label.

"The result has been years of unbroken depression, an ever-increasing burden of debt and large continuous unemployment.

Says New Deal Doubts Self.

"Stripped of its glittering promises, the New Deal has begun to doubt itself. Rumor has it that in the last few weeks several New Dealers have been caught, shoes in hand, trying to sneak up the back stairs into the Democratic party.

"Now what is it that has been subtly undermining our national unity? Why is it that governmental policies have divided the country physically and intellectually into conflicting groups? It is because the political strategy of this administration is divide and rule. This strategy may help the administration but it can only hurt the country.

"At a time of crisis, when national unity is most needed, we suffer from politically-fomented hostilities. We resolve to keep out of the conflicts in Europe. But here at home we are embroiled in a dozen conflicts among ourselves. Government and business are in conflict. Labor and capital are in conflict; and labor is in conflict with itself. Collectivism has been pitted against individualism; centralization of power against local self-government; defeatism against courage.

Brake on Economic Machine.

"These divisions in our national house have resulted in wasted opportunities, futile bickerings, lost energy, and human suffering. Friction in government and between government and its citizens has acted as a brake upon the whole economic machine. It has brought about the continued idleness of nine million Americans.

"Here on the west coast you know what has happened in recent years. You know what has happened to your own industries—to employers and employés alike. But the blight is not confined to our industrial areas—it spreads across the country and plagues the household of every family in the land. It reaches not only the cities and towns but out onto the farms.

"The trouble on the farms has not been lack of production—it has not been poor harvests—for there have been record breaking harvests. And these record breaking harvests have proved to be price breaking harvests. The trouble is not so much with the farms. Much of it lies in the market in which the farmer must sell his crop. It lies in the disparity between the price of what the farmer sells and the price of what the farmer buys.

Fail to Restore Parity.

"Here is what I mean. Take the year 1926 compared with the beginning of this year. Things are cheaper today. But they are not cheaper in the same proportion. The price of what the farmer has to buy to run his farm has fallen 16 per cent. But the price the farmer gets for what he sells has dropped 34 per cent, or more than twice as much.

"Here is the heart of the problem. There has been a total failure to restore a reasonable parity between industrial and farm prices. And this failure is one of the causes of national discord. The economic life of a whole nation has been thrown off its balance and kept there. The farmer is employed. He is producing. But he can't sell at a profit while labor and capital in industry are both unemployed. That's what's the matter with the farmer's market. That's why the farmer gets no fair exchange for his labor.

"I say to you that any administration which pretends to be the friend of the people and yet neglects this problem is no friend of the people. More than that, any administration which cannot make peace between warring factions of labor, or even between itself and labor or business is a failure. And when such an administration cannot make peace even in its own ranks it ought to be put out to make way for a united Republican administration.

Capital Ebbing Away.

"The steady wearing down of our productive equipment has been called the 'constant erosion of capital.' It is going on day in and day out, year in and year out. We are giving much thought to the erosion of land. But what of the market for the products of land? What of the erosion of the plant and equipment which provide the jobs for a nation's workers? Here is what is going on:

"Our productive plant wears out at the rate of about six billion dollars a year. That is our annual erosion of capital. We must put back six billion dollars each year into the productive plant of this country merely to stand still. Let's get this straight. We have to put back into the plant we now have six billion dollars a year to avoid going backward."

Not Holding "Our" Own.

Here Dewey insisted that under the New Deal the country is not even standing still.

"Even if we were holding our own that would not be enough," he said. "In the last decade our population increased nearly one million people a year.

"After slipping backward for seven years, it is time to go forward. We must put in new money for expansion and improvement. And it's time we got down to business. Here is one thing we must do and do promptly. First, we must make up for the seven years of loss. Then we must build for the millions of Americans who came to maturity in those years. Then we can again start building for the future.

"Under the New Deal initiative has been shackled. We must strike off those shackles so that enterprise may once more be free.

"Now how will we get the means to go forward again? Where do we get the means to maintain and improve the plant?

"Part—a large part—comes out of the savings of enterprise itself—out of the income which prudent managers put aside against a rainy day. The remainder comes out of the savings of the people at large.

"But these savings come out only when the people have confidence—confidence in business and confidence in the conditions under which that business will be operated.

"But here and elsewhere in the United States development is lagging. Savings are not going into new enterprises.

"And why?

Vilifies Business Men.

"Because of the nation-wide undercurrent of distrust and fear of the shifting policies of the administration in Washington. Because the New Deal has vilified business men, levied punitive taxes, and in the name of legitimate reform, has sought to rule or ruin the commercial life of the country. It has recklessly borrowed and spent until it has built up the national debt to the staggering figure of 42 billion dollars. It has erected a burocracy of so-called administrators who have harassed and bedeviled every field of enterprise.

"Here are the facts. Nine million unemployed. One-third of a nation still denied a decent American standard of living. Our productive plant, which should be employing those men and producing the goods our people need, wearing out at the rate of 1 billion dollars a year."

Tells of Labor's Criticism.

In offering a solution of the country's ills, Dewey insisted that the erosion of the nation's plants must be stopped and expansion must begin again.

"I have here a significant pronouncement," he declared. "It is a declaration issued a few days ago by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor.

"It declares that unemployment is still 'the most acute problem of the nation.' It concludes that in spite of all the billions spent by the government for relief, the necessary steps to reduce and end unemployment have been neglected."

Then Dewey quoted Lewis, the C. I. O. dictator, as charging that the New Deal had failed to solve unemployment and bring back prosperity.

"The New Deal recovery policies have failed," he said. "On that at last both houses of labor have taken their stand. We are seeing the truth and can again work together. The time has come to act together."

MARTIN QUOTES LINCOLN TO SHOW NEW DEAL PERILS

Warns Nation's Dangers Lurk in Fallacies.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—Representative Joseph W. Martin Jr., of Massachusetts, Republican leader of the house of representatives, who figures as a Republican presidential possibility, delivered an address here tonght in which he singled out utterances of Abraham Lincoln to illuminate the fallacies and perils to the country of the New Deal.

"We have been hearing much in the last several months," he said, "of the dangers which face us from abroad unless we do this, or that, or the other thing about it; in other words, unless we become entangled in foreign quarrels and foreign intrigues.

Danger from Within.

"Lincoln put his finger on the danger which we face in this nation today. He said:

"'At what point then is the danger to be expected? I answer, if it ever reaches us, it must spring up among us. It cannot come from abroad. If destruction be our lot, we must ourselves be its author and finisher.'

"In those few words Abraham Lincoln defined the doctrine which we call the American way."

One Common Welfare.

For seven years, Martin continued, this country has been made a proving ground for reckless experiments, which have failed.

"For seven years," he said, "there has been rampant propaganda designed to lead the working man to believe that his interests are separate and apart from those of the employers, and thus to convince the employers that their interests are separate and apart from the interests of labor; to lead the farmer to believe that his interests are separate and apart from those of industry and of labor. There is not an atom of truth in that propaganda. All have a common interest and a common welfare.

"Just as Lincoln said this nation cannot permanently endure half slave and half free, so I say to you this nation cannot endure with the federal government running half the business in competition with the other half.

Urges Hands Off Business.

"Lincoln said something else that bears on our conditions of today with a peculiar significance. In the statement that I am going to quote he laid down a doctrine to which we must return if we again are to know that prosperity which this nation so richly deserves and for which its people have such a great capacity. Said Lincoln:

"'. . . I take it that it is best for all to leave each man free to acquire property as far as he can. Some will get wealthy. I don't believe in laws to prevent a man from getting rich. It would do more harm than good. So while we do not propose any war upon capital, we do wish to allow the humblest man an equal chance to get rich with everybody else.'

"In those few words Abraham Lincoln defined the doctrine which we call the American way."

FARLEY REOPENS OLD POSTOFFICE LINCOLN SERVED

Tribute Paid at Shrine in Rebuilt New Salem.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lincoln's New Salem, Ill., Feb. 12.—In the heart of the restored village where Abraham Lincoln began his great public career, the federal government, on the 131st anniversary of Lincoln's birth, today reestablished the postoffice which he served as postmaster from 1833 to 1836.

John W. Gellerman, New Postmaster.

Postmaster General James A. Farley personally dedicated the small cubicle in the replica of the Hill-McNamar general store where Lincoln clerked and held his first public office—a job with a salary of about $25 a year.

Stage Coach Delivers Mail.

Farley and the other speakers addressed a crowd of several thousand persons, part of whom jammed into a big, heated tent which enclosed the Hill-McNamar store and provided a bizarre and rather circusy background for the 13 other log huts sprawled irregularly on the banks of the Sangamon river.

A stage coach resurrected from somewhere delivered the first mail to the new postmaster, John W. Gellerman of Petersburg, Lincoln's direct successor. At the close of the program a shining air liner skimmed the tree tops above the cabins and dropped another bag of letters.

Farley, the newest Democratic Presidential candidate, perched himself atop the stage coach for the benefit of cameramen and drove the quaint vehicle to the tent. Newly lettered in red on its sides were the words "Springfield, New Salem, and Lewistown stage," the only transportation which served the village in its few years of life.

Third Termers Get Surprise.

Farley spoke from a platform filled with a group of other Democratic office holders who are Roosevelt third termers and who appeared somewhat embarrassed when, at the close of Farley's speech, an unidentified man in the audience rose and shouted: "The Democratic nominee for the Presidency of the United States has just spoken!"

The primary purpose in placing the village, to be known as Lincoln's New Salem, on the postal map again is not commercial, Farley said.

"The idea," he said, "is not to enhance the revenues of Uncle Sam. Rather it is a loftier motive. It is a wish to aid in rekindling the interest of the nation in New Salem.

"The fortunate people who come here will carry away more than a sense of historical association. They will realize again the sublime truth that human greatness is not born in success or material wealth, but in the hidden recesses of the soul of man."

Illinois Senators Also Speak.

Logan Hay of Springfield, president of the Abraham Lincoln association, presided at the dedication and the other speakers included Senators Scott W. Lucas and James M. Slattery. Lucas called the ceremony "one that has no parallel in history." Slattery said it was "an occasion of great eloquence."

Gov. Horner, who continued the restoration at New Salem which was started by his predecessor, former Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, was reported to be too ill to attend. He had wanted to introduce Postmaster General Farley, but had to turn this job over to Harry B. Hershey of Taylorville, choice of the Democratic leaders to succeed him.

During his years in Springfield, Gov. Horner, who has one of the largest Lincoln collections in the United States, has often visited New Salem, generally driving over in the evening and leaving his car at the gate while he walked among the cabins in the moonlight.

Lincoln Story Written.

Included in today's program was a short essay on "Lincoln as Postmaster" by Paul M. Angle, secretary of the Illinois Historical society and Lincoln authority.

Angle's essay related how Lincoln, the Whig, was named postmaster by President Andrew Jackson, the Democrat, and how Lincoln later explained that the office was "too significant" to make his own politics an objection.

"The duties of the office were not burdensome," Angle wrote. "There were only two mails a week, and the postal required the postmaster to have the office open only on the days when mails were due to arrive."

Altho figures were not available, the essay said, the best estimate places Lincoln's compensation at about $25 a year.

Legion Chief Pays Tribute.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 12 (AP).—Raymond J. Kelly, national commander of the American Legion, speaking at the tomb of Abraham Lincoln here today, said "our country and its people are today the hope of the civilized world because of the contribution that he made in preserving the union."

Commander Kelly spoke to Legionnaires who made the annual pilgrimage to the tomb in Oak Ridge cemetery. The granite spired monument within which the civil war president's body lies beneath a polished red marble catafalque was a mecca today for thousands.

Honor His Mother's Memory.

A tribute to Lincoln's mother, Nancy Hanks Lincoln, was voiced by Mrs. William Corwith, national president of the American Legion auxiliary.

"We of today who are unhappy and discouraged when we cannot give our children every modern advantage should remember Lincoln's mother," Mrs. Corwith said.

Speaking before the Abraham Lincoln association here tonight, William Allen White, Emporia, Kas., editor, asserted that "we should choose as our leader an humble and kindly man like Abraham Lincoln to cope with the unemployment "crisis." White drew a parallel between the "crisis" of 10 million unemployed today and Lincoln's problem of two million slaves in 1860.

"I feel," he said, "that 10 million jobless men in our land today present a problem no less menacing than was the problem of two million slaves. For 10 long years that tragic situation has stood before us challenging our best thought and appealing to our deepest sympathies."

Girl Scouts celebrated their holiday from school yesterday selling Valentine seals in booths at Mercy, St. Luke's, Women's and Children's, Presbyterian, and Grant hospitals. The seals help finance the Chicago Heart association's service to children with heart disease.

JURY CHAIR FIXED SO A WOMAN CAN LEAN BACK, TOO

Eleven men sat comfortably in the old fashioned swivel chairs in federal court yesterday, but Judge John P. Barnes noticed that the lone woman juror, Mrs. Lucy Mead, 4320 Central avenue, Western Springs, was squirming.

"What's the matter, madam?" asked the judge.

"My feet don't reach the floor from this chair," replied Mrs. Mead, "and I can't sit back and be comfortable."

Judge Barnes spoke to his bailiff. The bailiff left and came back with a cardboard carton, which he placed as a footrest for Mrs. Mead. She put her feet on it, reclined in her chair, and sighed in content. The case was resumed.

2 BANDITS ROB HOTEL.

Two bandits got $60 yesterday from the cash register at the desk of the Montrose hotel, 853 Montrose avenue. They first asked the price of rooms, then one drew a pistol and marched the clerk, James Davis, to a rear room.

NATION'S SAFETY HINGES ON JOBS, HOOVER ASSERTS

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 12 (AP).—Herbert Hoover posed before the nation tonight the problem of finding jobs for 9,000,000 unemployed and said that in solution of this problem lies the only safety of our republic.

The former President, in a Lincoln's birthday address, declared that until the problem is solved the government must continue to provide for relief.

"Americans cannot allow their fellow Americans to go hungry," he said. "Yet relief can not go on forever. The current cost of relief, in all its aspects—federal, state, and local—is nearly four billions yearly. We are borrowing the money. Taxes which would pay these deficits would asphyxiate the whole productive system. We must restore these people to self-support before relief fails."

"We must change from pessimism to faith in the future and greatness of America. We must resolutely turn from government spending to national thrift. We must keep out of war."

HAMILTON RAPS ROOSEVELT FOR IGNORING FACTS

New York, Feb. 12 (AP).—John Hamilton asserted tonight that "once recognizing his failure to restore the nation to economic well-being, Mr. Roosevelt now refuses even to face our domestic problem." The Republican national chairman in a speech at the New York Lincoln day dinner said the President takes refuge in statistics to prove all is well at home and turns his attention to the difficulties in foreign lands.

The dinner was arranged for Republicans of New York state, New Jersey and Connecticut.

SOMETIMES I WONDER

By CALEB

SOMETIMES I wonder if we, the preoccupied cityfolk of 1940, halfway—or even any way—appreciate the privileges of our sophisticated setting? Every day, as I enter the purlieus of the store in which I function . . . artistic; colorful; many-lighted; reflecting, mirror-like, the whole beautiful prodigality of the wide modern world and its wares . . . I think back to, say, Becker's Drygoods Emporium, in the town of my youth—

There were a half-dozen glass cases, I remember, on each side of the one main aisle, as you came in. There were counters in between them; a few show-tables in the aisle itself. Memory recalls the four clerks, in their shirt-waists, who always used to "wait" on customers, while small offspring of the latter eyed the glories of the place rather awe-strickenly.

There were bolts and bolts of yard-goods piled on shelves at the clerks' back. (No "salespeople" existed in those days.) There were some elementary display affairs on a few of the cases, mounting lace articles or sets of pins. And there was a great deal of obscurity in the establishment, particularly on cloudy days; only two show-windows next the street admitting any daylight.

Mr. Becker himself always presided—and mother being the wife of a physician whose office was on Main Street, he usually "waited" on her personally. He was our Sunday School Superintendent, of course, on the week's seventh day; and with genteel gestures he led choir-service during church. He was a frail, faded individual; one was constantly reminded of his resemblance to a bolt of his own goods—preferably some washed-out color in calico or muslin.

Long since, the years have taken Mr. Becker from the scenes of his career. The four clerks must have likewise grayed into their graves by now. Time has a habit of doing these things to the important people and scenes of a small-town boyhood.

But what a contrast that brief memory summons up! How our anemic little storekeeper of Lang Syne, indispensable as he was, would have actually shrunk, perhaps, from the ordered immensity, the smoothly clambering escalators, the orange-tree-bowered columns and palm-fringed aisles, the arrays of trimly gowned and groomed femininity, which the Field customer of today greets as a matter of course—when she steps inside revolving doors that our Mr. Becker might have feared even to negotiate!

Sometimes I wonder . . .

CHICAGO CADET DIES IN ST. JOHN'S ACADEMY FIRE

Diet Sends Youth to Room Where He Is Trapped.

Delafield, Wis., Feb. 12 [Special.]—Excused from luncheon because he was dieting to reduce his 208 pounds, Cadet William J. Birk Jr., burned to death shortly after noon today when fire destroyed De Koven hall, oldest dormitory at St. John's Military academy here.

W. J. Birk Jr. [Moffett Photo.]

Birk was the only cadet in the building at the time. All the other 334 cadets were at luncheon in an adjoining dining hall.

Birk was 14 years old and a son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Birk, 4141 Greenview avenue, Chicago. The boy's father is an official of the Birk Brothers Brewing company.

De Koven hall, a three story stone building, 50 by 140 feet, contained all executive offices of the academy and sleeping quarters for 90 of the cadets. The school dining hall is in a building attached by a corridor.

Instructor Attempts Rescue.

A few minutes after the fire was discovered, all cadets were marched out of the dining hall and roll was called. Only Birk of the 335 students was missing. Capt. John Wiltberger, an instructor in the school, donned a gas mask and went to the boy's room in the southeast corner of the third floor, but could not find him.

Flames and smoke forced Capt. Wiltberger to leave the building. When the fire had been extinguished by six fire companies from Delafield and surrounding villages, the body of Birk was found in the ruins of a bathroom in the central part of the third floor. A window which he might have opened or broken was intact.

Enrolled in September.

Birk graduated last spring from Ravenswood school in Chicago and entered St. John's last September, where he was enrolled for a general academic course. He frequently was excused from attending luncheon assembly because of his attempt to reduce his weight.

Col. Roy S. Farrand, headmaster of the school, theorized tonight that the fire started from a short circuit in the electrical wiring over the second floor ceiling. He estimated damage at $115,000, of which $75,000 represents loss on the building. Only the walls were left standing.

The boys who lived in De Koven hall lost all of their personal possessions, except the uniforms and clothing they wore to the dining hall. Furnishings of the building were destroyed with the exception of office equipment and records.

De Koven hall was built in 1906. It did not have fire escapes.

ARMY AIR CORPS ASKS MONEY TO BUILD TWO BIG BASES IN ALASKA

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12 (AP).—The war department announced today that two New York air corps stations would be located at Fairbanks and Anchorage, Alaska, if sufficient funds were approved by congress.

Arrows locate Elmendorf and Ladd fields in Alaska.

Funds totaling $12,734,000 have been requested in the 1941 budget.

The 1,000 acre Fairbanks site, for which approximately $4,000,000 has been appropriated to start the project, will be located just north of the city and construction will commence within the next few months. It will be named Ladd field in honor of Capt. Arthur K. Ladd, who was killed in an airplane accident at Dale, S. C., in 1935.

The field at Anchorage, to be located just south of the city, will cover 1,400 acres. It will be named in honor of Capt. Hugh M. Elmendorf, who was killed in an airplane accident at Wright field, Ohio, in 1933.

ARMIES MASS IN NEAR EAST; FEAR SPREAD OF WAR

30,000 Anzacs at Suez Swell British Strength.

"yippee"—they marched from a great armada of troopships.

At Kantara, Egypt, beside the Suez canal, the site of the big military base of the late Field Marshal Viscount Allenby during the world war, the Anzacs were landing tonight by the light of huge flares. They entrained for camps prepared for them at a location still undisclosed.

Maj. Gen. B. C. Freyberg headed the New Zealand forces. The Australians were in command of Lieut. Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey.

Eden Greets Troops.

Anthony Eden, dominions secretary, flew here from England to greet the troops on behalf of King George VI. The troops hailed him with shouts of "three cheers for Tony."

"I know full well the splendid tradition established by the armed forces of New Zealand and Australia will be upheld worthily by you who have left home to fight for the cause the whole empire has made its own," was the message Eden gave them from the king.

"Now that you have entered the field of active service I send you my warmest welcome together with best wishes for your welfare."

The arrival of the Anzacs tightened the empire's grip on the vital Suez waterway which connects Britain with India, Australia, and other far eastern sections of the empire.

The new troops were in a strategic position for Suez canal defense for quick movement into often troubled Palestine or for transport to Turkey if war broke out in the Balkans.

The way these problems are kept in mind by Britain was emphasized by a recent speech of Gen. Sir Charles Bonham, governor of Malta, to the clergy of the Mediterranean island base between Italy and Africa.

"As we have promised to support Rumania and Turkey in event of their being attacked," he said, "and as they are likely to be involved, Malta should be prepared to accept the fact that the island might soon become a center of operations as in 1914-'18."

[During the world war Malta was the base of allied naval squadrons and the site of a huge war hospital.]

Italian Count Among Ten Who Died in Plane Crash

ROME, Feb. 12 (AP).—Count Alfredo Dentice di Frasso, a senator and former president of the Lloyd Triestino Steamship lines, was one of ten persons killed Saturday in the flaming crash of an air liner, it was announced today.

ITALIANS WARNED TO GET READY "FOR EVERY RISK"

ADDIS ABABA, Feb. 12 (AP).—Gen. Attilio Teruzzi, minister for Italian Africa, told Black Shirt colonists today to prepare "for every risk" when Italy announces her intentions to the world.

Gen. Teruzzi, who has been making an extensive inspection tour of the Italian East African empire, spoke to Italian residents of the capital from the balcony of Fascist headquarters.

"All must be ready," he said, "so that when Italy shall have to utter her sacrosanct words to the world everyone, however distant from the mother country, may be prepared for every risk."

The minister's words echoed the warning of the secretary of the Fascist party, Ettore Muti, last Jan. 17 in Rome that Italians might at any moment have to take up arms and fight.

TELEGRAPH MESSENGER DIES.

Joseph Eberle, 55 years old, a telegraph messenger, died of a heart attack last night a moment after he delivered a telegram at 1853 Hudson avenue. He lived at 1510 Addison street.

CHIEF OF ANZAC ARMY HAILED AS GALLIPOLI HERO

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Maj. Gen. B. C. Freyberg, commander of the New Zealand expeditionary forces at Suez, is an outstanding figure of the world war in the near east.

In 1915 he was acclaimed a hero of the Gallipoli landing. Camouflaging his skin with khaki paint, Freyberg swam half a mile from a destroyer to the Turkish shore in the Dardanelles campaign. He carried flares which caught the attention of the Turks while British forces landed at other points.

U.S. ANTARCTIC EXPEDITION OFF FOR YEAR'S SURVEY

SLED DOGS... YEAR'S SUPPLY OF SLOW-BURNING CAMEL CIGARETTES ACCOMPANY ADMIRAL BYRD TO ANTARCTIC

OFF TO VOLUNTARY EXILE: If you were leaving today to live for a whole year on the barren ice of the Antarctic, and if right now you had to choose the one and only brand of cigarette you would smoke through those months—you'd make sure you picked the right brand. The men on the Antarctic expedition were in a situation like that. The picture above shows what happened: The expedition took Camels! Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, commanding, explained: "Slow-burning Camels are a great favorite with us. You can be sure we have plenty." You, yourself, may never go near the South Pole, but the right cigarette is important to you, too. Camels are made from finer, more expensive tobaccos. They give you extra mildness, extra coolness, and extra flavor—plus extra smoking in every pack. (See below.)

"MORE PLEASURE PER PUFF...MORE PUFFS PER PACK"...

That's how these three members of the U. S. Antarctic expedition tell of the advantages of their favorite cigarette... slow-burning Camels. Richard Moulton, senior dog-driver (center), sums up when he says: "Slow burning is my measure of a milder, cooler, more flavorful smoke. I'd sledge a mile for a Camel." Nothing destroys a cigarette's delicate elements of flavor and fragrance like the excess heat of too-fast burning. Cigarettes that burn fast also burn hot. Camels are slower-burning... milder, mellower, and—naturally—cooler! Try Camels. Find out for yourself how slow-burning Camels give you more pleasure per puff... and more puffs per pack—more actual smoking (see right).

CAMELS—FOR MILDNESS, COOLNESS, AND FLAVOR—SLOW-BURNING COSTLIER TOBACCOS

In recent laboratory tests, CAMELS burned 25% slower than the average of the 15 other of the largest-selling brands tested—slower than any of them. That means, on the average, a smoking plus equal to

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE

HITLER CUTS OFF FRITZ THYSSEN AS GERMAN CITIZEN

Ex-Steel King Now a Man Without a Country.

BERLIN, Feb. 12 (AP).—Fritz Thyssen, once one of the wealthiest men in Europe and an industrialist whose support did much to raise Adolf Hitler to power, became a man without a country today.

Fritz Thyssen. [Assoc. Press Wirephoto.]

A decree published in the official gazette, signed by Minister of Interior Wilhelm Frick with the approval of Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, deprived Thyssen and his wife of their German citizenship. Informed quarters described the action as the final break between the Nazis and their one-time supporter.

[Thyssen and his wife have been in voluntary exile in Switzerland since last November, living quietly at the best hotel in Locarno. In an interview with a correspondent of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE on Nov. 30, Thyssen disclosed he had fled from Germany after sending a telegram to Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, president of the reichstag, setting forth his opposition to Hitler's policies. As a member of the reichstag, Thyssen asserted he wanted to keep Germany out of war.]

Altho the former owner of the greatest steel corporation in Europe thus lost his German rights, Thyssen's vast Rhine valley industries continued working for Germany on a greatly accelerated schedule.

Thyssen's steel mills, mines, and other enterprises have been incorporated into Field Marshal Goering's four-year plan for economic independence. The holdings were confiscated by the Nazis after he reached Switzerland.

German authorities for a long time have refused to comment on persistent reports that Thyssen had fallen from grace, explaining his absence from Germany by saying he merely was traveling abroad. The decree thus confirmed the breach between Hitler and the industrialist.

[Anti-Nazi sources in Switzerland have said Thyssen bought his way out of Germany by turning over his entire fortune to the Nazis.]

FRENCH PREMIER AND ARMY CHIEFS SHAPE FRESH WAR PLANS

PARIS, Feb. 12 (AP).—Premier Edouard Daladier today presided over a French war council meeting at the headquarters of Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin, commander of the British-French forces, to map fresh war policy.

Generals at the head of forces on the western front attended the sessions. The decisions taken were not disclosed.

Tonight's communique of the British-French high command said there was nothing of importance to report in today's operations on the western front.

The morning communique said a German attack on a French outpost was repulsed.

[The German communique yesterday said: "No special events."]

Germans Fly Near Scotland.

LONDON, Feb. 12 (AP).—Two planes believed to be German were sighted today off northeast Scotland.

Thirteen Planes Over Luxemburg.

LUXEMBURG, Feb. 12 (AP).—Unidentified planes flew over Luxemburg today. Spectators said they counted 13 smoke trails.

DRINKING BANDITS ROB TAVERN.

Two men bought a drink of whisky yesterday in the Sportsmen's inn, 1550 East 75th street, then tied up the porter, Nick Cianci, with a vacuum cleaner cord and took $175 and $43 in checks from the desk in the office. Cianci said one robber carried a gun.

GERMANY SIGNS TREATY TO SPEED TRADE WITH REDS

Finn War Complicates Russian Problem.

BERLIN, Feb. 12 (AP).—Germany and Russia signed a new pact today to speed up their mutual trade, an agreement likely to find Russia's preoccupation with the Finnish war a handicap in meeting Germany's war needs.

As originally conceived by German and Russian leaders, the pact was to give Germany a great share of the raw materials of the soviet union and to let Russia import the manufactured products of industrialized Germany.

In early negotiations it was assumed here that the pact would be of greatest advantage to Germany, which expected to provide Russia chiefly with machinery for producing consumer goods.

War Shifts Reds' Needs.

Since then, however, Russia has embarked on a war and finds it necessary to step up her munitions industry and provide herself with precision instruments. What she needs more than anything else is spare and substitute parts for much of her munitions manufacturing equipment, especially for shopworn lathes and molds originally supplied by Germany.

As a result Germany may have greater difficulty in supplying the soviets' needs than Russia will have in sending raw materials to Germany.

Germany finds it difficult to produce munitions and instruments for its own war needs. There is unbounded determination in Germany, nevertheless, to master the Russian trade problem. Germany has great need of Russian materials such as manganese, iron and other ores, oil, timber, grain, paraffin, hemp, and flax.

Praise Russian Transport.

Well informed Germans say they have been agreeably surprised by the efficiency with which the Russian transportation system has functioned thus far in meeting demands of Russian-German trade collaboration.

In commenting on Turkey's seizure last week of German owned shipyards, authorized sources said that word received from German representatives in Turkey indicated that the liquidation of engineering contracts was proceeding to the satisfaction of both parties. These sources said the Krupp shipyards which were seized would be operated entirely by Turkey and German interest in them would be ended.

Britain Closes Turkish Pact.

LONDON, Feb. 12 (AP).—Britain today announced a new British-Turkish trade treaty will go into effect on Feb. 19 to remain in force for one year and successive annual periods unless abrogated by three months' notice. The agreement was reached in London on Feb. 3.

The pact, which consolidates one concluded in 1936, was signed by Foreign Minister Lord Halifax and the Turkish ambassador, Tevfik Rustu Aras. It provides that British exports to Turkey shall not exceed 80 per cent of Turkish exports to Britain, giving the Turks a favorable balance.

PEACE ADVOCATE DEFEATED, 4 TO 1, IN BRITISH VOTE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 12.—About one man in five voted for C. W. Searson, anti-war advocate, in the Southwark by-election for parliament, it was disclosed today in an announcement on Saturday's voting. Searson campaigned on getting the war wound up immediately. Because of the blackout less than a fourth of the electorate voted. J. H. Martin, Laborite, got 5,285 votes; Searson got 1,550, and Mrs. Violet Van Der Elst, National Independent, 1,381. Martin today said: "This is a vote for the defeat of Hitlerism but it is not a vote for the indefinite prolongation of the war."

REDS HURL FRESH DIVISIONS INTO ISTHMUS BATTLE

Finns Destroy 72 Tanks in Day's Fighting.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Feb. 12 (AP).—Throwing several divisions into the fray after a brief week-end lull which followed 11 days of continuous bitter fighting, the Russian army smashed heavily tonight at the Summa sector of the Mannerheim line.

As the Russians returned to the assault with new fury, their heavy artillery began a long range bombardment of the battered seaport of Viipuri [Viborg], 20 miles behind the battle front. Forty shells crashed into the city last night.

Artillery, tanks, and aircraft supported the Russian infantry in the new Summa sector offensive, which the nightly Finnish communique said was launched yesterday and was continuing unabated tonight.

Strike at Center and Flank.

While the main attack thundered against Summa, the Russians struck simultaneously at the center and the east flank of the Karelian isthmus front.

Near the River Vuoksi, northeast of Summa, 150 tanks supported the Russian assaults, while at Taipale, near the shore of Lake Ladoga, a four hour barrage preceded a heavy infantry attack.

The Finns said both attacks were repulsed and estimated that 72 Russian tanks had been destroyed in the day's fighting—the greatest one day haul since the war began.

The Russians were also said to have been repulsed in attempts to outflank the Mannerheim line by advancing across the frozen surface of the Gulf of Finland and Lake Ladoga.

Shore batteries scattered the attackers at both points, the Finns reported.

North of Lake Ladoga.

The Finns said the Russians had suffered "heavy losses" on the isthmus front, but again refrained from mentioning their own casualties.

"Northeast of Lake Ladoga, the communique said, the Russians had lost approximately 1,080 men in futile attacks during the last few days near Aittajoki and Kuhmo, where several machine gun nests were captured by the Finns.

In the artillery bombardment of Viipuri, one person was killed. Finns, examining shell fragments, said they were fired from a gun of about nine inch caliber, which they believed probably was mounted on a concrete emplacement well behind the Russian lines. Viipuri was shelled earlier in the war by six inch guns, apparently placed close to the front lines.

The Finnish communique said Finnish aircraft bombed enemy troop concentrations "repeatedly." Six Russian planes were officially reported downed.

Reds Claim More Forts.

MOSCOW, Feb. 13 [Tuesday] (AP).—The Russian army today declared 32 "defensive fortifications, including 12 more iron and concrete artillery forts," had been captured in fighting yesterday on the Karelian isthmus. The communique issued by Leningrad military headquarters said:

"Feb. 12, activities of scouts and in some areas animated actions of infantry units and artillery.

"On the Karelian isthmus, successful operations of soviet troops resulted in the capture of 32 defensive fortifications, including 12 iron and concrete artillery forts.

"Losses of the enemy in the last few days in areas of the defensive fortifications captured by the soviet troops include 230 machine guns and 82 guns.

"Due to unfavorable weather, soviet aviation made only reconnoitering flights."

This was the third communique to claim important gains against the Mannerheim line.

[The Finns have denied the two previous reports of Russian victories against the Mannerheim line.]

President Roosevelt's speech before the American Youth congress criticizing the soviet union as an absolute dictatorship was reported by the official Russian news agency, Tass, for the first time yesterday.

Tass declared that the audience on Saturday received the President's speech coldly and that there were attempts to boo when he criticized Youth congress objections to help given Finland.

Newspapers thus far have not commented on the speech.

LATVIA, ESTONIA FACE CRISIS IN DEALS WITH REDS

Military Chiefs Confer on Defense Plans.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Feb. 12 (AP).—Finnish leaders showed intense interest in reports reaching Helsingfors today stating that Latvia and Estonia were growing restive under their new military agreements with soviet Russia and possibly were approaching a crisis in their relations with Moscow.

Russia last fall won concessions from Latvia, Estonia, and Lithuania to establish military, air, and naval bases on their soil; failure to gain similar concessions from Finland led to the Russian-Finnish conflict.

The Finns were watching particularly military developments across the Gulf of Finland. Gen. Berkins, chief of the Latvian army, was reported to have gone to Estonia to negotiate with Gen. Johan Laidoner, commander in chief of the Estonian army, in connection with coöperation to strengthen the national defenses of the two states.

Hinted by President Ulmanis.

News dispatches reaching Finland said that a possible new crisis in the relations of the two Baltic states with Moscow was hinted at recently in a radio address by President Karl Ulmanis of Latvia, who declared publicly that "if a decisive emergency occurs our entire nation is ready to take up arms."

Finnish newspapers stated that President Ulmanis speaking concerning a new defense program declared that great sacrifices might be required in the near future and that every preparation for a sudden call to the colors must be made.

Ulmanis was said to have warned that "every one must have at least two shirts packed with extra underwear and a strong pair of shoes," and to have said that "if the situation were not serious I would not speak of these things at this moment."

"No Unsolvable Problems."

RIGA, Latvia, Feb. 12 (AP).—Latvian Foreign Minister William Munters said tonight that the placing of soviet Russian garrisons on Latvian soil and fulfilment of other conditions of the Latvian-Russian treaty of mutual assistance had not caused any unsolvable problems yet.

Rejecting descriptions abroad of Latvia as a Russian protectorate without independence, he said existing relations with the soviet were very satisfactory.

ONLY FEW ENLIST IN ENGLAND TO SERVE FOR FINNS

LONDON, Feb. 12 —(AP).—The Finnish legation, which is assisting British volunteers to go to Finland, said today that only a small number had enlisted so far. The legation indicated that these men probably would leave secretly soon.

Most of those applying at the legation were said to be adventurous youths or men too old or for other reasons unable to get into the British service.

150 Hungarian Volunteers.

ROUEN, France, Feb. 12 (AP).—A contingent of 150 Hungarian volunteers for service in Finland passed thru here today en route to Helsingfors. They carried their own equipment.

FINNS CAPTURE RED TANKS; USE THEM AS FORTS

Heaps of Russian Dead Slow Up Attacks.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIIPURI, Finland, Feb. 12.—Russian losses during the latest offensive on the Karelian isthmus have resulted in casualties running well into five figures. The troops making fresh attacks at Kirkkojarvi, Punnus, and Vuoksi, and on the Taipale river are having great difficulties to advance over the bodies of the many thousands of men who have fallen during the last 11 days.

Reports from officers on the Finnish front lines state that the Russians are not concerned about their masses of dead and that soviet stretcher bearers seldom appear on the battlefields seeking the wounded.

At night Finnish patrols have surprised some Russian detachments cutting holes in the ice, into which they were thrusting the bodies of their comrades after removing their boots and coats.

Use Captured Material.

Each new soviet offensive is making the Mannerheim line stronger, according to the Finns, who have converted many captured soviet tanks into pillboxes. Even armored sledges have been dismembered and their walls are providing reinforcements to the exposed Finnish positions.

At many points the Finnish trenches during the last weeks have been buttressed by the clumsy shields mounted on toboggans which gangs of Russians have pushed forward to the Finnish lines where one short burst of machine gun fire sufficed to deal death to the attackers.

Another trick which consistently has failed, but which the Russians never seem to tire of playing, is to advance in a solid mass of soldiers whose front ranks come forward with upraised arms shouting their wish to surrender.

Screen for Gunners.

Thru megaphones the Finns command them in Russian to break ranks, but this order invariably is disobeyed and the Finns open fire, disclosing that within the phalanx are Russians armed with grenades and light machine guns.

The chief weight of the isthmus battle now seems to have turned to the Taipale sector where fresh masses of Red troops are being thrown against the Finnish positions every day. The Russian attacks generally cease with nightfall. Then powerfully armed Finnish patrols start forward their counter-attacks, inflicting losses which sometimes compare with the battle casualties during the day.

Armed with grenades and light machine guns, the Finns seek out the Russians' camp, emptying their guns and grenade pouches before returning to their lines.

Patrol Work a Lark.

Capt. Arvo Peutti, serving on the Taipale sector, told me his men were eager to go out on patrol even if they had been fighting all day in the trenches. Patrol work, he said, was not considered by his men as fighting, but as sport and they regarded it as recreation to go out on an all night trip behind the Russian lines.

One of the patrols returned bringing a copy of the Krasnaya Sveda—the official newspaper of the Red army—which was published in Moscow on Feb. 4.

"The battles in Finland are often very cruel," the newspaper said. "Both the Finns and the Red army frequently capture prisoners, but it has been noted that the Finns fight until they have shot their last cartridge and resist being taken alive. It is the duty of our commanding staff to see that in the training of our soldiers they should also be taught to resist capture with the same fortitude.

The Dangers of Success.

"We also warn our heroic fighters that even if they capture some of the Finnish positions on the isthmus, this does not mean the war is over. Such a belief can cause danger. In one instance where our forces succeeded in penetrating the Finnish lines they were suddenly attacked on both flanks by detachments of Finns and only thru using many reserves and thru the fire of our heavy artillery could the lives of the men be saved."

The Sveda admitted that the task of the Red army is not easy and said that in some cases the quicker moving Finns had cut off Russian forces which had to fight to the last man.

The newspaper denied that Kronstadt, the Russian naval base near Leningrad, had been bombarded and that ships of the Red fleet had been damaged by the Finns.

THE TRIBUNE has learned that 30 Finnish planes a fortnight ago bombarded Kronstadt steadily for six hours and caused great damage to the navy yards and the ships frozen in the ice and set the administrative buildings on fire.

KILLED BY LOCOMOTIVE.

A colored man about 40 years of age was killed yesterday by a locomotive as he walked on the Rock Island railroad tracks at 26th street. The engineer, J. W. Abrams, said he attempted to stop the locomotive with the emergency brake when the victim failed to heed a warning blast of the whistle.

ROYAL DANES GIVE UP HOT BATHS AS PALACE FEELS FUEL SHORTAGE

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Feb. 12 (AP).—Denmark's royal family waived the luxury of hot baths today along with Danish subjects because of the coal shortage. The curtailment in fuel imports, which has caused drastic heating restrictions for several days, finally chilled the palace boilers. Restaurants, taxed with orders for hot broth, comforted patrons with blankets.

BRITON'S RADIO SERMON STIRS NEW ROW ON WAR

Soldiers Protest Prayer as Pacifistic.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The attitude of churchmen toward Europe's war is becoming the subject of critical appraisal by those who believe the time has come for it to be waged against all the people in enemy countries, civilians as well as fighting men. Such a war was urged recently by L. C. M. S. Amery, former cabinet minister, who advocated the bombing of Berlin.

The public utterances of the archbishops of Canterbury and York indicate that these two heads of the church share the official views of the German aggression and favor prosecution of the war until Nazi power has been ended.

On the other hand, the Rt. Rev. Ernest William Barnes, bishop of Birmingham, recently caused a stir by proposing at a church conference the removal of food bound for Germany from the list of British contraband. His proposal was turned down. Among the clergymen of lesser rank there are others who hold pacifist or "humane" views about the war.

Listeners Assail Cleric.

The latest incident indicating that the church has difficulty in making up its mind on the subject of war was reported today by the press. It was stated that listeners, particularly men in the armed services, telephoned protests against a sermon and a prayer broadcast last night by the Rev. Leyton Richards, former pastor of the Congregational church at Birmingham.

The objections were leveled against the Rev. Mr. Richards, it was said, because he broadcast not only a prayer for those in uniform but also "for those with a wider allegiance." the Rev. Mr. Richards is alleged to be a pacifist, and his service over facilities of the British Broadcasting corporation was said to discourage soldiers.

"His sermon, and particularly his prayer, showed strong sympathy toward conscientious objection and was not of much encouragement to those of us who have given up good jobs to fight for our country," one soldier told the broadcasting corporation.

Preached Gospel, Says Minister.

Mr. Richards told reporters:

"I am not surprised. My sermon was a Christian declaration and I claim that it was an explanation of the Gospel. I have a shrewd suspicion of what they are complaining about. I was asked by the B. B. C. to preach a sermon and they picked the subject, 'Christ Triumphant.'"

He would not admit that the words, "for those with wider allegiance" referred to conscientious objectors, but added:

"They are in harmony with the gospel and people should remember that the gospel is not limited to a national outlook or to any one country. Let the people object if they want to, but I stand firm by the fact that I was there to proclaim the gospel."

An official of the British Broadcasting corporation said:

"The B. B. C. approved the script and the Rev. Mr. Richards kept faithfully to it. We consider he held the scales very evenly."

NAZIS BAN MINOR PAIN AS EXCUSE TO STAY IN BED

BERLIN, Feb. 12 (AP).—The German who combines a frosty morning and a minor pain as an excuse to stay in bed had better snap out of it. Posters sent by the Labor Front today for display in factories, offices, and stores warn that:

"Whoever absents himself from work without being seriously ill grossly violates his duties toward the commonweal."

In heavy type the posters lead with the phrase "take care of your health!" They then admonish workers to "remember that unnecessary calls upon doctors make it difficult for them to give assistance where it is really needed. By iron discipline see to it that legal punitive measures must be resorted to as little as possible."

HITLER INSTALLS POLITICAL ARMY IN BIG FACTORIES

Seeks to Maintain High Morale on Home Front.

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—Political shock troops are being installed in large factories thruout Germany, it was reported tonight. Nazi party members are being selected for this duty in plants where they work, it was said. The new organization is expected to function along the lines of the werkscharen [factory squads] which were disbanded last year when their members were absorbed in the Labor Front as "political leaders." The factory squads were supposed to set an example for other workers as good Nazis and German citizens. They also arranged lunch hour entertainment and so-called educational meetings usually addressed by factory heads.

Seek High Morale.

In explaining the duties of the new political shock troops, one Berlin plant manager assured his employés that they "are not outsiders to be looked upon with distrust but are solely concerned with maintaining a high morale on the home front." He said that to insure Germany's victory, maintenance of a high morale among workers was as important as among troops.

It was recalled here that in Bohemia and Moravia, German protectorate in former Czecho-Slovakia, Germans have been placed in key factory positions formerly held by Czechs.

It was reported that many workers in Berlin plants have been invited to join the Schutz Staffel [Hitler's élite guards], even tho they are not members of the Nazi party. It was presumed it has been necessary to add to the personnel of the Hitler guards because of the various additional duties assigned to them in former Czecho-Slovakia and Poland and on the western front.

DOLLARS FOR HIRE
$8,000 looking for opportunity to put a good man to work in a business enterprise. Moderate profit expected. See Investment Banker for details.
MIDDLE-AGED MAN

"That hits me where I live!"

They tell me the boss had to get eight thousand dollars to set me up in the plant with the equipment to do my job.

No eight thousand—no job!

A lot of people with savings had to be sold the idea that I could produce a profit on that much money, before they'd come across with it.

The fellow that did the selling was an investment banker, and I'm for him all the way. More power to him!

I wish the politicians would quit shoving the investment bankers around and tying them up with a lot of screwy rules and regulations.

We need more money invested in jobs, not less. And I don't mean the kind the politicians spend tax money for.

I mean jobs making things that people want, and buy. That's where the rosy future is.

If anyone knows a banker or any other business man who's doing the wrong thing—why not name him and bring him to trial?

But let's not stop the whole parade because somebody's out of step. Seems to me it's time to give business the green light.

I'm wise now. I work for a living with eight thousand iron men behind me, so I'm in business myself.

And what helps business helps me!

GEORGE WASHINGTON SAID:

"Europe has a set of primary interests which to us have none or a very remote relation. Hence she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns. Hence, therefore, it must be unwise in us to implicate ourselves by artificial ties in the ordinary vicissitudes of her politics or the ordinary combinations and collisions of her friendships or enmities."—From the Farewell Address.

SPEEDING MR. WELLES TO EUROPE.

Mr. Roosevelt chose a very strange way to speed his latest dove of peace, Undersecretary Sumner Welles, on his way to Europe. Mr. Welles is charged with a mission to Rome and Berlin as well as to Paris and London. He is to talk with Mussolini and Hitler as well as with Chamberlain and Daladier. If he is to have any usefulness he must appear as a trustworthy if not friendly neutral, seeking without prejudice to discover if there is any ground where the belligerents could meet to discuss peace before they make this a real war in the spring.

Before Mr. Welles could get out of town, Mr. Roosevelt, finding it politically expedient to tell the people that he no longer thinks well and affectionately of the communists, coupled Stalin and Hitler as twin atrocities and spoke of his hostility to the tyrannies of Europe. That, by inference, allows Mussolini to have a piece of Mr. Roosevelt's opinion.

The timing of these remarks disclosed domestic political opportunism and a desire to get away from a long record of trafficking with the Russian terror, which in no way first betrayed itself when Finland was invaded. But more than that, the remarks were calculated to make Mr. Welles persona non grata before he stepped on board ship. When Col. House went to Europe on a similar mission, to see if the kaiser's government would consent to enter a peace conference and stop the war, both he and Mr. Wilson knew in advance that there was hardly one chance in a hundred of any success for this errand to the central powers.

Germany believed it was winning the war at that time. Col. House thought, and Mr. Wilson came around to his point of view, that if it could be demonstrated that the allies were willing to make an effort for peace and that Germany cold bloodedly refused to consider what could be published as just terms, public sentiment in the United States would be better prepared to support Mr. Wilson if, having thus intervened to make peace, he then intervened to make war.

People who fear that the administration in Washington is picking up the old trail of 1916 and '17 ask themselves whether a mission prearranged for a calculated failure is being undertaken. The notes of Col. House revealed that he knew exactly what he was doing and that the probable outcome would be the sending of American troops to France. The gentlemen of the present day no doubt are making notes in preparation for their memoirs and collected works. When it is too late the people will learn what has been going on.

THROWING YOUR WEIGHT ABOUT.

On the sporting page the other day appeared a nice piece of writing by Mr. Robert Cromie, describing the sixth annual tournament for novice weight-lifters under the auspices of the Central A. A. U. Mr. Cromie wrote frankly as one who didn't know much about weight-lifting but was willing to learn and to communicate his findings for what they might be worth. He was deeply impressed—if we may read his thought between the lines—with what he had seen, but he couldn't persuade himself that the competition came properly under the head of sport. This item, he seemed to be saying, appears on the sporting page not because weight lifting is properly a sport but only because the subject seems not to fall within the purview of other experts such as Mr. Barry, Mr. Smith, Miss Tinée, Dr. Cutter, Miss Provines, Mme. Cass, Mr. Collins, Mr. Culbertson, or the Legal Friend of the People.

Mr. Cromie's instinct was sound. Weight-lifting is competitive, but it is only in a most limited sense a sport. The pages over which Mr. Arch Ward presides with such distinction are devoted to the description of endeavors which to the practical mind must seem absurd. Pole vaulting, for example, is an admirable sport because no one in a long and varied life is likely to have occasion to employ the art. To be sure, it might be used by a farmer seeking to escape from an enraged bull, but the ordinary farmer does not carry a 14 foot bamboo pole while going about his chores, and if he had one might prefer to use it to poke the bull rather than to vault the fence.

The golf club is a notoriously impractical instrument with which to clout a golfball and, except on the golf course, there is no place for the use of the golf technique in daily life. The late Prof. Veblen once remarked that football is to physical culture as bull fighting is to agriculture and that seems to tell the whole story. Analyses of such impractical occupations as six-day bicycle racing, tennis, polo, etc., can accordingly be omitted.

It is true, of course, that weight-lifting is not, in our day, at least, the most useful of occupations, but there come times in every man's life when the art can be employed to advantage. Women never seem wholly content with the places they have previously assigned to the heavier pieces of furniture. There are households in which the grand piano is always on the move and in the weight-lifter's family it is not necessary to call in the neighbors on both sides to assist. Besides, one never knows these days when the ability to pick up an automobile and set it back on the road will come in handy; the only certainty is that the skill is likely to prove of considerable value.

JOHN BUCHAN, LORD TWEEDSMUIR.

The death of Lord Tweedsmuir deprives Canada of a governor general who was a most capable representative of his king. The people of this country share the loss. We knew Lord Tweedsmuir as the friendly representative of our friendly neighbor to the north, but we knew him, too, as John Buchan, the son of a Scottish manse, whose literary craftsmanship in fiction and biography won him a place in the esteem of readers of English in many lands.

Altho John Buchan was a member of the bar and held a number of public posts, including a seat in the house of commons, before he was dispatched to Canada and raised to the peerage in 1935, he was first and foremost a professional writing man. His versatility was remarkable. His work extended from such thrillers as "The Thirty-Nine Steps" to history and biography, with short excursions into taxation and other fields. Buchan will perhaps be read longest in his biographies, particularly those of Cromwell and Montrose, which go to show that historical writing not only need not but should not be dull. He did not neglect scholarship, but he refused to let its materials dull his pen.

Great Britain has been fortunate and students of her history in particular have been blessed that so many of her public men have had a talent for literature. It should be less surprising, therefore, that her literary men should from time to time show considerable talent for public service.

Lord Tweedsmuir was not an amateur in government when he was sent to Canada. As a young man he had been secretary to Lord Milner in South Africa, and during the last war the nation made use of his talents, as it did of those of so many of its literary men, in the ministry of information.

His assignment to Canada was most important. The threat of conflict was apparent in Europe and the fabric of free commonwealths set up by the statute of Westminster was approaching its first great test. As representative of the king, doing in the name of the king all that the king would do himself if present in the dominion, Lord Tweedsmuir undertook a multitude of tasks with grace and industry. He did not permit his health, which had suffered considerably before the unfortunate accident that resulted in his death, to interfere with this round of duties, greatly increased by Canada's entrance into the war. The official loss is Canada's, but the death of a charming friend will be mourned on both sides of the border.

MONEY AND MORE MONEY.

The latest statement of the federal reserve board shows that there is close to 7½ billion dollars of money in circulation in this country. The increase in the last year has amounted to about three-quarters of a billion dollars.

The United States has always had rather more than its quota of money cranks in and out of the colleges. They are always writing letters to the papers and occasionally one of these letters is printed. A few years ago the wizards waltzed into the White House and were treated as major prophets.

Almost all of them start with the notion that the prosperity of a nation is determined by the amount of outstanding cash. The more cash, the more prosperity. The less cash, the less prosperity. The more sophisticated among the money manipulators discourse learnedly about the quantity theory and the price level. They have observed that prices tend to rise when business is good and they conclude that if prices can be made to rise by printing and coining more money, then unexampled prosperity will sweep upon us. The logic is bad, but no amount of argument has ever convinced a thorogoing money crank of error in his reasoning. They go right along advocating more cash as the remedy for whatever may all the country.

It is probably futile, then, to call attention to the fact that today the amount of money in circulation is two or three times as great as in the boom years of the 'twenties. There never had been up to that time as much money available in this country as there was at the time of the panic in '33. Since then the amount has risen steadily, but without producing any such improvement as would be expected if the theories of the cranks had any validity.

Editorial of the Day

FILL 'EM UP WITH DUMMIES.

[Detroit News.]

The difficulty of navigating at night in the darkened city has cut attendance at Paris theaters, and a wartime order against selling seats in top balconies, as an air raid precaution, contributes to their forlorn appearance. Knowing that actors play better to packed houses, and audiences have a better time, one manager fills his upper boxes and front seats in the gallery with cardboard cutouts, representing soldiers and sailors, and allied celebrities, Gort and Mistinguette, Chamberlain, and Josephine Baker, et al. Hilarious theatergoers pass the time between acts identifying the notables in effigy. The whole effect is very cozy.

It comes to us that here is a possible solution of the case of the St. Louis Browns. It may be that the Little Brownies have built up an inferiority complex solely thru the public's inattention. Like Wordsworth's Lucy, when they languish no one knows or seems to care. But also no one is there to see on the occasions when they win. Where areas of vacant seats now yawn the management could set up stuffed figures, preferably wired for sound and rigged to get up and stretch in the seventh. Who knows—the Browns might respond to the illusion—and the dummies themselves act as decoys to the occasional passerby who, hearing the roar of an imaginary crowd, might be tempted to pay an admission to look into it. If the franchise is to remain in St. Louis, and apparently it is, something of the sort must soon be tried.

MR. PEPYS BECOMES MODERN.

12th Feb.—Did resolve to be modern for a change, and so did traipse thru the melting snow to the great art gallery to see the Picassos there and thus shake off my old-fashionedness. For this man Picasso, altho about as old as myself, leads all the youth movements in painting, and his influence has put many a paint-smeared lad into the WPA.

They have gathered maybe 400 Picassos of all sizes and styles into the galleries, and I did look at them in wonder and say, "Now I know why Europe has gone out of its senses." The colors are mostly mighty fine and often as bold and glaring as you see on the advertising billboards, but the designs are most strange and to a layman without meaning except craziness.

I did see a lecturer, perhaps an artist himself, explaining some of the pictures to a group of consternated young folk, and did follow him. I did discover that he said practically nothing, but made motions with his hands to show how these lines went this way and those curves went that way, and he did use more gestures than a deaf and dumb man, sometimes imitating a man stropping a razor and other times a man milking a cow; and he ended by sticking his two thumbs up in the air, which is a most insulting gesture, but maybe he didn't mean it.

So I said to a person beside me, "What do all these hand waggings mean?" and she answered in scorn, "Sh! Significant form!"

I did come away at last thinking, "How good it is not to be rich and modern like the Walter Chryslers, who loaned many of these pictures, and not to have a lot of Picassos staring me in the face at home." I did observe that hundreds of people had come to see these pictures and that they were all moving rapidly, as if to get it over with as soon as possible.

Upon returning to my lodgings, feeling no more modern than before, I did read the handsome catalog that I had bought for a ducat and found in Picasso's own writings this statement:

"When I begin a picture there is somebody who works with me."

And I thought, "The other fellow's name must be Pecanno."

LESSON IN BIOLOGY.

I remember how we started, well enough.
How charmingly O. K. we thought it was
That you and I should share the same implausible convictions versus love and stuff.
We shunned the corners where the urge might lurk.
We bandied words like "friendship" and "platonic";
We had it settled. But to be laconic
It simmers down to this: it didn't work!

It didn't work and we stuck out our necks.
We stuffed ourselves to here with theories.
It's funny how we overlooked with ease
One single item: dat ole debbil sex.
Well, alibis are this year's market's drug.
Let's face it bravely. Darling, pass a hug.

GIFTS WITHOUT GIVER.

you gave me all these things to hold the gentle patter of soft rain a star fast-frozen in the cold rich fields of dancing wind-swept grain violets and lovely drenchéd fern you gave me all these things to keep tall trees unbending bare and stern and now you wonder why I weep

my heart was filled to overflowing at gift of golden velvet sands for sight of things forever growing why am I left with empty hands

you made me think the moon was mine the clouds were mine you often said alone I drink my bitter wine

FIGHTING ILLNESS WITH OXYGEN.

A FEW years ago the suggestion was made that oxygen would be helpful in pneumonia. This gas has more than lived up to expectations and we have learned how and when to use it and in what volume.

The reasons for resorting to it should be clear. With a goodly portion of the absorbing surface of the lungs out of commission—inflamed and filled with cells and fluid—we can understand why life may ebb away just because the tissues are unable to secure enough of this vital substance. In such a situation the important organs cannot perform at normal efficiency and subsequent failure on their part is the rule. A 50 to 60 percentage of this revivifying gas—instead of the 20 per cent in ordinary air—speedily rectifies the deficit in the cells. We can say with certainty that thousands of individuals have been saved thru its favorable influence.

We recognize today numerous disease conditions in which oxygen is of value. For example, whenever the blood is insufficiently supplied, some plan—designed to allow the breathing of an increased quantity—is indicated. Its salutary effects have been observed in coronary thrombosis and other cardiac disorders. Furthermore, it is of the greatest utility in certain thyroid derangements, in what is called "shock," and in poisoning—especially that from carbon monoxide and morphine. In consequence, hospitals everywhere are prepared to administer this rich form of air. The devices vary from rubber catheters inserted in the nostrils to oxygen tents or rooms. In the latter, the sufferer can be cared for without the bother of being surrounded with a hoodlike enclosure.

Some patients who are given sulfapyridine—the new drug so useful in pneumonia—will exhibit nausea, cyanosis [blueness] with a lowering of hemoglobin. The red cells may not only decrease in number, but the red coloring may be affected also. In such cases—if oxygen can be employed—these symptoms may not appear.

While all the accepted equipment is satisfactory, the oxygen room offers better control over the patient. There is no feeling of suffocation. The nurse proceeds with her work as tho she were in an ordinary room and physicians and assistants may enter and leave the chamber by means of an air lock. There is also more accurate adjustment of humidity and temperature—elements which require careful watching.

How much should be utilized and for how long? If the gas is reasonably well moistened there is no danger in raising the percentage to 80 or even more. In fact, the older thought that 40 or 50 per cent was about as high as one should go has been disproved. Slight pressure also helps. We have learned too that the compartment should be cool as should the temperature of the gas. By and large, the results will not be good with any type of apparatus unless the heat of the expired air—as well as the excess carbon dioxide—can be absorbed promptly.

Not the least of the many benefits is the sense of comfort which ensues. Effort on the part of the chest muscles is eased substantially, and hence fatigue becomes but a relatively minor problem. In many instances restful sleep and a drop in fever follow.

It must be remembered that this gas is not a cure. It does, however, supply a real aid in restoring functions that have been seriously disturbed. The patient is placed in a far better position for convalescence because the operation of the body's own repair forces are set in motion.

We must look upon this agent as capable of tiding a seriously ill person over a few critical hours as well as sustaining a heart victim—perhaps for days. In the treatment of cardiac weakness, we are able to relieve a considerable amount of strain upon the pumping organ—often long enough to allow for recovery.

VACCINATION WON'T "TAKE."

J. C. writes: I have been unsuccessfully vaccinated against smallpox 11 times. Does this mean that I have bad blood? I always get an infection at the site of injection and healing takes about two months. Is there any connection between the two?

REPLY.

The inability to get a positive "take" probably means that you have a natural immunity to the disease. It has no relation to slow healing, which is due to some other cause. It may be due to poor technique on the part of the vaccinator. This is no indication of below par blood unless all cuts and scratches behave in like manner.

CLAUSTROPHOBIA.

D. J. B. writes: I have a terrible fear of being in a closed place. Altho there may be plenty of fresh air, I feel as tho I were suffocating.

1. Is this claustrophobia?
2. What causes it?

REPLY.

1. Yes.
2. Some nervous or emotional instability is the basis of your trouble. Overcoming fear is a difficult procedure but with patience and persistence it may be accomplished.

DRY CLIMATE.

A. B. writes: Would a stay of three months in a warm, dry climate cure a case of chronic bronchitis or would the patient have to live there permanently?

REPLY.

Helpful if not curative. Certainly the malady would be improved by even a short stay.

THE WAR OF 1813.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—The war of 1812 had no more to do with imperialism than it had to do with the politics of Sweden, the opinion of Mr. Frederic Frost in his long English-hating letter to THE TRIBUNE to the contrary notwithstanding. England was at war with Napoleon, called "the world's greatest bandit," and he had issued a decree ordering the seizure of any vessel that had touched a British port. In self-defense England replied with an order in council forbidding neutral vessels to trade with any country under Napoleon's control. Then congress under Jefferson passed the embargo act of 1807, forbidding all ships to leave American harbors for foreign ports, but the merchants of New England preferred the loss of a few lives and vessels to seeing their ships tied to the wharves and their merchandise spoiling in warehouses, so they brought pressure to bear and had the hated act repealed in 1809.

Then came Madison and the war hawks—Clay, Calhoun, and others—to fan the flames of the war spirit in congress by shouting that Canada could be conquered in six weeks.

Pressed hard by the hawks and unwilling to admit that he had been duped by Napoleon, Madison asked congress for a declaration of war on England, it being said such a declaration was a condition of Madison's renomination. On June 18 congress bowed to Madison and the war hawks and America joined the tyrant who was overriding and enslaving the whole of Europe.

It was a sorry affair from the beginning. New England, rapidly changing from a maritime to a manufacturing section, was disloyal almost to the point of treason, discouraging enlistment, refusing the services of militia, declining to subscribe to government bonds, even calling a convention for the purpose of secession. Both nations finally grew weary of a war which was bringing neither glory nor gain to either of them, and peace was made at Ghent with nothing said about any of the grievances complained of when hostilities began. England did not want war with America, and had there been a trans-Atlantic cable there would have been none, for parliament had suspended the objectionable order in council two days before congress declared war.

The Tories of England have a lot to answer for, but to give the devil his due and in view of the above taken from the histories of John Richard Green, David Saville Muzzey, and James Truslow Adams, it's hard to see how they can be blamed for the war of 1812.

COMPETITION FOR CORN.

Galesburg, Ill., Feb. 7.—I have read your article in regard to imports of starch from Java. I trust that you will continue to handle all of Mr. Hull's trade treaties in the same manner that you have handled this subject, as I think that these treaties have much to do with the present low prices of our farm products.

I noticed in a recent article that there had been a trainload of blackstrap molasses shipped direct from New Orleans to Peoria. I take it for granted that this shipment was imported and also that it was to be used in the manufacture of alcohol. It will be interesting to know how many thousand bushels of corn this one shipment of molasses will displace.

SOMEWHAT TEMPERED GRATITUDE.

Chicago, Feb. 7.—It certainly was nice of the person who picked up my husband's wallet the afternoon of Feb. 6 to take the trouble to put it in the window of the car. Especially nice of him, too, to bother to remove the two dollars in the bill compartment. But, of course, little would he know that those two dollars were all we had to our name and had to help buy gasoline for the car to enable my husband to get around to try to sell his merchandise to make a living. Again, thank you for at least returning the wallet.

HOW TO ADDRESS A HORSE.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—A. H. takes issue with Dr. Crane regarding using "gee" and "haw" to horses. A. H. had better find out how farmers handled their horses when plowing corn with the old fashioned one row walking cultivators. I have cultivated with one 12 hours a day and used the lines only when I turned the team at the ends of corn rows a half mile long. I looped the lines over my shoulder and controled the team by shouting gee and haw. Both hands were busy manipulating the cultivator.

MORTGAGE OBLIGATION.

Aurora, Ill., Feb. 6 [Legal Friend of the People].—Mr. A. has a mortgage on a building owned by Mr. P. Mr. P. dies, with some of the mortgage paid off to Mr. A. Several years before Mr. P. died he neglected to pay the taxes and insurance on this building, so [1] Mr. A., who had the mortgage, paid it for him. Mr. P. died in 1935.

2. An administrator was appointed for Mr. P.'s estate. Nothing was done about paying off the mortgage to Mr. A. Later Mr. A. died in 1937. So that left the mortgage to be paid to the heirs of Mr. A. Now the heirs of Mr. P.'s estate wish to settle in this manner: [3] for the amount of balance on mortgage, which was due on June 6, 1935.

4. Taxes [paid by Mr. A.] plus interest and insurance plus interest up to June 6, 1935, are due.

5. Heirs [to Mr. A.'s estate] believe they should have interest on all this from June 6, 1935, to the present time or the day they settle.

6. The lawyer for Mr. P.'s estate says no interest has to be paid [after June 6, 1935], since it is in probate. Who is right? Please answer immediately if possible.

7. If no interest can be collected after June 6, 1935, please explain fully why. [Heirs of Mr. A. have no lawyer.]

M. A.

1. We assume that the mortgage contained the common wording authorizing the addition of such payments to the mortgage debt.

2. If A. did not file a claim in the probate proceedings his right to reach other assets would have been lost in one year [present period nine months], but his right against the pledged security would continue.

3. It seems probable that they are not denying that A.'s heirs can foreclose for a full interest. They are merely offering a settlement in lieu of foreclosure.

4. There is no rule of law that the agreed interest would not continue to accrue after the death of the mortgage debtors.

5. We agree as far as their legal rights are concerned. We are not in a position to pass upon the adequacy of this security.

6. See 4. We doubt if a lawyer said this. Ask him to put it in writing.

How Our States Got Their Names

32. NORTH DAKOTA.

North Dakota was named after the Dakota Indians, and historians say the word Dakota meant "friends" or "allies." North Dakota was admitted to the Union on Nov. 2, 1889.

North Dakota state seal. Bundles of wheat surrounding tree on open plain. In foreground are bow and arrows, plow, and sledge. In background Indian on horseback pursues buffalo toward setting sun. At top are 43 stars and state motto. In outer circle is date of statehood.

The state motto is "Liberty and Union, Now and Forever, One and Inseparable." The wild prairie rose is the state flower. Nicknames given North Dakota include the Flickertail, Great Central, and Sioux state, and the Land of the Dakotas. Flickertail is the common name for a species of ground squirrel native to the state. The Great Central nickname is said to refer to North Dakota's location in the heart of the western wheat district. The other two names refer to the early Indian dwellers in the territory. They called themselves Dakotas and their enemies referred to them as Sioux.

JAP PARLIAMENT IN UPROAR OVER CHINA WAR COST

Secrecy Assailed in Row Over Budget.

TOKIO, Feb. 13, Tuesday (AP).—Outright criticism of the army broke out in the Japanese diet today, with a member of the house budget committee assailing the secrecy surrounding the military expense account and demanding a detailed explanation.

War Minister Shunroku Hata bluntly refused and the controversy became so heated at one point that Hata ordered stenographic recording of the proceedings to be halted.

"The people are uneasy," the questioner, Ryozo Makino, member of the Seiyukai party, said, "and to remove that uneasiness it is necessary that the armament plan must be explained concretely to some extent. The people are barred from making political criticism, but they are criticizing nevertheless in other ways. They still want to know why Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye had to resign."

Called Common Sense Budget.

Hata replied that army estimates were based on "common sense" and reiterated that hostilities were continuing in China on a large scale. He said the army budget was designed to meet the international situation "for three or four years hence."

"We cannot discharge our duties if the army continues to make such vague replies regarding this enormous expense," Makino retorted, "nor do I consider the war minister is discharging his. We cannot meet our tasks if all we have is the army's request to have faith."

On Feb. 1 the army and navy presented for the approval of parliament a seven year arms program costing about $671,000,000, after which the war minister declared the army was keeping its eyes on soviet Russia.

The appropriation, in addition to a total of $1,862,017,680 already approved for the purpose, was asked for "replenishment and rehabilitation of arms."

Puppet Army Takes Town.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 13 [Tuesday] (AP).—A Chinese army supporting former Premier Wang Ching-Wei has landed on the southern coast of Fukien province and is fighting the forces of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, Japanese military authorities here stated today.

Without mentioning where the troops came from, the Japanese said they had landed Monday at an unnamed spot "with the coöperation of the Japanese army and navy."

The Japanese, who are supporting Wang in his program to form a new central Chinese government in cooperation with Tokio and in opposition to Gen. Chiang's Chungking regime, called the force the "peace and national reconstruction army."

This army, the existence of which has not been mentioned before, was said to have captured the town Shaoan, in Fukien province near the Kwangtung border.

Official Chinese military dispatches received at Chungking said the Chinese had reoccupied the town of Pingyang 50 miles northeast of Nanning, Kwangsi capital, on Sunday and nearby Wuming the day before.

OF CHECK PASSER LEADS TO ARREST MEMORY OF FACE

Clinton W. Howe, vice president of the Old Republic Life Insurance company, was boarding an Illinois Central suburban train at the Van Buren street station last night when he saw a man he recognized. But once the insurance executive was on the train, he could not find his man.

Howe got off at 53d street and called Hyde Park police. He told them he wanted their help in capturing a man who had given him two worthless checks for $10 each last November. Detective Patrick Ryan hurried over. He and Howe boarded the next train from the loop and found Charles Flowers, 38 years old, an oil lease broker living at 6429 Harper avenue. Howe identified him as the check passer and Flowers admitted writing the checks, according to the policeman. Flowers was locked up. Howe went on home to 2315 East 69th street.

The War in China

(Story in adjoining column.)

A Chinese puppet army supporting former Premier Wang against Generalissimo Chiang yesterday was said to have captured Shaoan (1). Official Chinese dispatches announced the recapture of Pingyang (2) from the Japanese. In western Suiyuan province (3) the Japanese claim they have killed 11,000 Chinese since Jan. 31.

JAPS TERMINATE PACT WITH DUTCH ON WORLD COURT

TOKIO, Feb. 12 (AP).—Japan announced today that she was terminating her arbitration treaty with the Netherlands, whose valuable oil and rubber producing colonies in the East Indies have been a source of anxiety since Japan began expanding in South China.

A foreign office spokesman said "the sole purpose of terminating the treaty lies in a desire not to be bound by it in case conversations for treaty revision do not reach a conclusion by Aug. 11."

He added that both nations had agreed to negotiate for revision of the old treaty, which provides for arbitration of disputes thru the world court, to which Japan no longer belongs. The foreign office said no political significance attended the action and it was not to be considered as abrogating the treaty.

The Netherlands government has announced that three battle cruisers would be built for the defense of her rich far eastern possessions, including Java, Borneo, Sumatra, New Guinea, and other islands.

AIR CORPS TELLS CAPABILITIES OF ITS NEW BOMBER

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12 (AP).—The air corps announced today its new bombardment airplane, technically known as the XB-24, is expected to have a speed of over 300 miles an hour, a range of approximately 3,000 miles, and a bomb carrying capacity of approximately 4 tons.

The new plane, which recently made its initial flight at San Diego, Cal., is of all-metal construction, built by the Consolidated Aircraft corporation. Power is furnished by four Pratt & Whitney 18 cylinder twin row radial air cooled engines rated at 1,200 horse power each.

The approximate gross weight of the airplane is 40,000 pounds, the wing span 110 feet, and overall height 19 feet. It will carry a crew of from six to nine men.

YOUNG HECKLERS VISIT CONGRESS, HISS MEMBERS

Rayburn Threatens He'll Have Them Ousted.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12 (AP).—Members of the American Youth congress, primed by three days of cheering and jeering at their own meeting, flocked to the capitol today to heckle and applaud the national congress at work.

Before being squelched by Acting Speaker Sam Rayburn [D., Tex.], who threatened to have them ejected from house galleries, the boys and girls:

Hissed Representative William P. Lambertson [R., Kas.] when he expressed approval of Republican Chairman John Hamilton's refusal to send a representative to the Youth congress.

Turned thumbs down on remarks critical of the Congress of Industrial organizations by Representative Clare Hoffman [R., Mich.], and Burst into applause when Representative Vito Marcantonio [A. L., N. Y.] declared Lincoln would not be throwing stones at young people.

Praises Anti-Red Move.

Before the house got around to other subjects, Representative Jack Nichols [D., Okla.] praised those in the Youth congress who were trying to purge it of communist tendencies.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt also touched on that subject at a press conference. She said: "I think one of the regrettable things is that we think so much of communism—which seems to be so little in the minds of the great mass of young people—that it has submerged the really important thing, that is, jobs." Mrs. Roosevelt had her say about communism at the closing session of the congress last night.

Urges Labor Coöperation.

Meanwhile, her young second cousin, Archibald Roosevelt Jr., who unsuccessfully attempted to put thru anti-communist resolutions in the congress, departed for New York with his colleagues. One of them, Murray Flavner, declared: "The congress has demonstrated that it is a communist front." Besides rejecting young Roosevelt's resolutions, the congress cheered an assertion by Frances Williams, administrative secretary, that communists were welcome.

Meeting today, the congress' assembly, a group of about 100 leaders, recommended political coöperation with organized labor.

The assembly also ruled out of order a resolution by Miss Robin Meyers, a Socialist delegate, which would have barred all supporters of totalitarian governments from the American Youth congress. It adopted a program with the avowed aims of keeping this country out of war, getting jobs and governmental aid for young people and safeguarding civil liberties.

MAIL FROM AMERICA TO CHINA VANISHES; OFFICIALS PUZZLED

SHANGHAI, Feb. 12.—Mystery surrounds the apparent disappearance of American mail to China in the period of 15 days from Dec. 19 to Jan. 2, inclusive. Letters, newspapers, magazines, and parcels mailed from America to China on those dates never arrived and officials profess to know nothing of the matter.

Three mails have arrived on subsequent dates with letters postmarked in America from Jan. 3 to 17 inclusive. As far as is known the only vessel sunk in the Pacific has been the President Quezon which carried no mail. If other sinkings have occurred the British and French have kept the news suppressed.

Some quarters here suspect that the missing mails reached the British censors in Hongkong and have been detained there, but this is considered unlikely. Japan, it is believed, has not attempted to hold up or censor mails going thru Japanese ports to China.

ONLY 7 OF 300 ON SHIP SUNK BY MINE SAVED

FOOCHOW, China, Feb. 12 (AP).—Seven survivors struggled into Foochow today with a story of the sudden death of 300 men, women, and children when a 100 ton coastal steamer was blown up by a mine at the mouth of the Min river.

The explosion occurred on the night of Jan. 26 as the packed vessel steamed for Foochow. The passengers included 100 Chinese students from foreign mission schools who were on their way to spend the Chinese new year's celebration with their parents here.

As far as is known, the seven who reached here today were the only survivors. The whereabouts of the small ship had been a mystery since it failed to arrive late last month. The survivors said they were blown into the water, but clung to débris on which they managed to reach shore. The mine was believed to have been laid by the Chinese late in 1937 after the Chinese-Japanese war started.

DR. F. M. EDWARDS' DISCOVERY FOR CONSTIPATION

Benefits Nation of Sufferers!

COLUMBUS, OHIO: For over 20 years, Dr. F. M. Edwards [widely known physician] successfully treated scores of patients for constipation and the headaches, lack of energy and mental dullness which often result.

This wise Doctor knew liver bile must flow freely every day into your intestines or fatty foods can't be properly digested and you may become constipated. So he kept this in mind when he perfected his famous Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Olive Tablets, being purely vegetable, are wonderful, yet they assure gentle, thorough bowel movements and ALSO help stimulate bile flow. Test their goodness TONIGHT. 15c, 30c, 60c.

WHOSE HOME IS THIS, ANYWAY? 2 PARTIES DIFFER

It All Depends on Your Point of View.

There are two ways of looking at what has been going on in the house at 7951 Crandon avenue:

THE SQUIRREL'S — Mrs. Clara Smith and her daughter, Rosemary, are living in my house—the house I discovered. While the Smiths are gracious about sharing their popcorn and pecans, they have worn out their welcome. Moreover, they're rather free with their invitations to nosy friends in blue uniforms, considering the fact that they haven't any invitation themselves.

THE SMITHS'—We've been living in this house for years. And then this animated nut cracker came down the chimney one day last week. He popped right out of the fireplace that we've always reserved for fires, and Santa Claus. Of course we have no objection to the squirrel's manners. He never wears a hat in the house, doesn't track soot, and refrains from nibbling the tennis rackets.

Now Issue Is Joined.

Of course two such opposing views as these were bound to clash. And soon the issue was definitely joined. It came when the squirrel jumped around on the tables for a while and then took a snooze in a chair. The Smiths telephoned the firemen to come over. The firemen recommended their friends, the police. Policemen Harry Pelton and James Dunleavy came.

The squirrel gave them the fishy eye and scurried back up the chimney. The policemen borrowed Mrs. Smith's laundry bag and waited for the squirrel to come back down and jump in. He didn't.

"That settles it," said the police. "We've scared him, all right. He won't be back."

But Police Are Wrong.

But he was back down the chimney, like Santa Claus without his pack, by the time they'd got out the door. Then Mrs. Smith caught him in a rat trap, but he pushed back the spring, let himself out, and looked at her reprovingly. Then he went back up the chimney in a huff. So the Smiths barricaded the fireplace. He climbed back down, removed the barricades, and moved in again.

Then the Smiths sprinkled popcorn and pecans all the way to the front door and out. When he picked up the last of the popcorn they slammed the door on him. He climbed a tree and dropped down the chimney again, chattering as if to say:

"Hi-ya, folks!"

"And I suppose," said Mrs. Smith last night, "he'll be back tomorrow."

HUSBAND SOUGHT AFTER WIFE ENDS LIFE WITH POISON

Police yesterday began a search for Jake Marble, 30 years old, despite the finding of a suicide note which indicated he had taken his life after his wife, Mary, 28, killed herself. Mrs. Marble was found dead from poison in their home at 745 Dickens avenue, Friday.

On Saturday a suicide note, bearing Marble's signature, was found on the bank of the Calumet river near 95th street. Marble's body was not found in the river. Yesterday police said they located friends of Marble who told of seeing him Saturday night.

Marble, according to this information, said he planned to take a train east. The inquest into his wife's death was continued to Feb. 29.

A. L. BOWEN GOES ON TRIAL TODAY AT KANKAKEE

A. L. Bowen, state director of public welfare, will go on trial today in the Kankakee county Circuit court on a charge of malfeasance growing out of the 1939 Manteno state hospital typhoid fever epidemic which cost 53 lives. Selection of a jury is expected to take several days.

The trial, according to State's Attorney Samuel H. Shapiro, who will prosecute the case, is expected to gauge the extent of a state official's responsibility to wards in public supported institutions. Bowen has charge of 28 state institutions. He is 70 years old.

Two co-defendants, Dr. Ralph T. Hinton, suspended managing officer of the hospital, and Mrs. Lillian Williams, dietitian, will be tried later. All three failed to obtain a change of venue out of the county, but succeeded in having the trial transferred from Judge Luther Bratton of Kankakee. Judge James V. Bartley of Joliet will preside over Bowen's trial.

INDIANA TRACES NEW BOMB PLOT AGAINST UTILITY

South Bend, Ind., Feb. 12 [Special].—Police today revealed discovery of evidence of a new plot to damage a substation of the Indiana and Michigan Electric company. Five men have been arrested and two have pleaded guilty of nine acts of sabotage against the power company. Police announced that a cache of seven sticks of dynamite, percussion caps, and fuses had been found near the south Main street substation of the power company on Saturday by a small boy. The plant was dynamited Nov. 24, 1938.

John A. Marks of Michigan City, assistant business agent of the A. F. of L. Electrical Workers, who is in jail here in default of $100,000 federal bond and $30,000 state bonds, was further involved in a plot to damage company property in a statement made today by Earl Freeman of South Bend.

Freeman is a brother of Parrish E. Freeman of Joliet, Ill., who with Frank S. Lung, South Bend, has pleaded guilty to state and federal charges growing out of the plot. Lawrence L. Yax of Kalamazoo, Mich., the fifth man held, also has signed a statement admitting a part in the dynamite destruction.

Thieves Take Gems Given to Wife by Polish Prisoner

Police yesterday were trying to find a wedding ring and a wrist watch belonging to Mrs. Harriet Kask which were given to her by her husband, who is a Polish prisoner of war in a German prison camp. The articles, which she values far above their intrinsic worth, were stolen Sunday from the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Kubicki, 4819 Patterson avenue, with whom she lives. Mrs. Kask came to Chicago a year ago when her husband joined the Polish army.

GANGSTER TELLS COURT OF RACKET PAYOFF TO A TAMMANY BOSS

New York, Feb. 12 [Special].—Max Rubin, a hard bitten little gangster who survived a bullet meant to silence him, was a witness at the conspiracy trial of Louis [Lepke] Buchalter today. He pointed at William Solomon, Tammany district leader, as the recipient of $1,500 of the $15,000 paid to the Lepke racketeering gang to settle a bakery strike.

Rubin gave such damaging testimony against Max Silverman, a co-defendant of Lepke, that Silverman fainted and would have toppled to the floor if Lepke hadn't grabbed him. him.

Rubin, who was shot thru the head in October, 1937, after leaving for home from District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's office, said he was the collector for the gang in the flour racket and met with Sam Miller, a director of the Gottfried Baking company, Solomon, and Lepke in Solomon's office.

A price of $15,000 was agreed upon to end a strike in the bakery, the witness continued, and payment was made in two instalments, $10,000 and $5,000, both in cash. Rubin said he gave Solomon $1,000 from the first payment and $500 from the second.

'THE CAT' LEAVES HIS CARD AFTER TWO BURGLARIES

An elusive burglar who believes in the value of advertising was being sought yesterday by the Evanston police. In the last week the thief has committed two burglaries in the suburb. In each crime he has left a crudely penciled signature, "The Cat."

Last Wednesday night he broke into Ben Platt's gasoline station at 1566 Elmwood avenue and took a telephone coin box containing $30. His signature was found on a scrap of paper pinned to the wall.

The police discovered Sunday night that the home of David T. Buffington at 1232 Asbury avenue had been ransacked and clothing and jewelry stolen. On a wall in the butler's pantry they found The Cat's signature. Buffington, retired sales manager of a steel company, now is in Florida.

When EPIDEMICS rage.. keep within this "Circle of Protection!"

THE new epidemic is now upon us, but there's no need to become panicky. People usually escape illness if they fortify themselves with the "Circle of Protection," that is, take the following precautions:

1. Get at least eight hours' sleep every night. 2. Open windows wide before retiring so as to get plenty of fresh air. But avoid drafts. 3. Refrain from overeating, especially sweets. Keep the bowels open. 4. Exercise at least fifteen minutes in the open every day. 5. Wash hands frequently so as to keep them free from germs as far as possible. 6. Avoid overheating in home or office.

IMPORTANT

Never breathe through the mouth. Only the nose can warm up cold air before it strikes the tender membranes. Only the nose can filter out irritating dust and other impurities which break down resistance to disease.

If your nostrils are clogged-up due to a cold or nasal catarrh, insert Mentholatum in them night and morning. Mentholatum will soothe the irritated membranes and help relieve the local congestion in the nostrils, thus enabling you to breathe more freely through the nose instead of the mouth.

N. B. If any member of your family has sore throat, fever (over 99 degrees), chills, headache, extreme weakness, and aching of back and limbs, put him to bed and call your physician at once.

REACH TENTATIVE PACT ON HIGHWAY THRU POSTOFFICE

Plan for Truck Overpass Employing Ramps.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—Officials of Chicago and the Federal Works agency today reached a working agreement for the opening of Congress street in Chicago as an arterial superhighway thru the United States postoffice building between Canal street and the Chicago river.

Phillip Harrington.

The agreement was announced after a conference between a Chicago delegation and officials of the works agency. The agreement is subject to adjustment of legal, engineering and financial problems involved.

The Chicago group consisted of Phillip Harrington, commissioner of subways and superhighways; Alderman George Kells, chairman of the joint committee on superhighways; William H. Sexton, special counsel for the city, and Charles De Leuw, consulting engineer on superhighways.

Plan Overpass for Trucks.

The discussion hinged on a practical means to eliminate heavy cross-traffic of postoffice trucks from the north to the south postoffice building units. Expansion of postoffice operations beyond a point envisioned when the building was planned in 1931 offers a traffic complication if the street is to become an arterial highway.

An outline plan, modified from the original proposal by the postoffice department, calls for an overpass for postal trucks, connecting with the two building units by curved ramps. This plan was discussed with Federal Works Administrator John M. Carmody; Smith W. Purdum, fourth assistant postmaster general; E. W. Clark, acting public works commissioner; W. E. Reynolds, public buildings commissioner, and W. E. Toms, of the Public Roads administration.

Time Element Involved.

Thru Harrington, the Chicago group advised federal officials that prompt agreement on a general plan was needed under existing enabling legislation passed by the Illinois legislature. This legislation permits the city to finance the highway construction from anticipated motor fuel tax revenues, but requires that general plans for such construction be filed with the Illinois state department of highways by March 1, 1940.

The general agreement was accepted by Acting Commissioner Clark for the Public Works administration and by Commissioner Reynolds for the Public Buildings administration, subject to adjustment of specific legal, engineering, and financial questions.

Elevated Crash Delays Traffic from North Side

Elevated traffic into the loop from the north side was delayed yesterday when a North Shore Lines train bumped the rear end of a southbound Englewood elevated train at 8:40 a. m. at the Roosevelt road station. None of the passengers on either train was injured, but elevated trains were backed up to Chicago avenue when a broken drawbar on the Englewood train jammed and could not be removed for some time.

ILL, HE ENDS OWN LIFE.

2 YOUNG STARS LOOK FORWARD TO W-G-N SHOW

Mitzi Green, Mary Brian to Be Heard Sunday.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Footlights, movie cameras, and microphones are no novelties to Mitzi Green and Mary Brian, but the two young and beautiful actresses were excited yesterday about the prospect of their Chicago network radio debut next Sunday. They will be guest headliners on the Fifth Row Center broadcast on W-G-N and the coast to coast Mutual broadcasting system in "Maidens' Million," a comedy written for this broadcast by Noel B. Gerson of the W-G-N staff. The broadcast runs from 5 to 5:30 p. m.

"I like to act," Miss Brian declared. "I don't care whether I am behind the footlights, in front of a microphone or a camera. As long as I'm acting I am happy."

Mitzi Likes Them All.

"It's hard for me to say which medium I like best—stage, screen, or radio," said Mitzi, the child wonder star, who is now a talented comedienne of 19. "I get a kick out of all of them."

Both actresses are appearing here in "Three After Three," a musical comedy at the Erlanger theater, along with Simone Simon, who made a guest appearance on Fifth Row Center.

Two Hampered Romances.

In "Maidens' Million" Mitzi and Mary will take the parts of sisters whose romances are hampered and complicated by a peculiar will left by their father. They are to get the fortune only if certain conditions are met. Numerous difficulties pile up before the conditions are fulfilled.

Harold Stokes and the W-G-N Dance orchestra will provide the musical setting. In addition Harold will take a part in the play. He will, in fact, portray himself. Blair Walliser will direct the production, which will be presented before an audience in W-G-N's 600 seat studio.

Fifth Row Center is one of the programs in W-G-N's 1940 series dedicated to giving the listening public the best in entertainment.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

"I have more pep and energy than ever before.. and the Vitality Boost is doing it!"

MRS. MERRY LOU STAYCOFF, 240 W. 61ST ST., is one of the many Chicagoans who are enjoying remarkable results from the VITALITY BOOST. "My daily activities keep me very busy," she says, "but since I've been drinking that nightly glass of Bowman's they don't tire me out half as much as before."

"HOUSEWORK, ESPECIALLY, used to wear me down, and taking care of our little boy. The VITALITY BOOST has done wonders to get me through quicker and fresher. I have time for riding and other things I like to do for recreation during the day."

"THE DAY'S WORK FINISHED, I used to be exhausted. Now I enjoy going out in the evening. I'm better company, feel better myself. It's amazing what that one glass of Bowman milk each night can do!"

If daily duties leave you tired out . . . if you want more fun out of life . . . try the VITALITY BOOST!

●It is amazing to many people how quickly and in how many different ways the VITALITY BOOST works! That glass of Bowman Milk, hot or cold, each night at bedtime, really has a marked effect on how they feel all day long, and on how they sleep. And yet this simple, economical idea is based on known scientific facts. It should and will work for you.

1) You take the milk when your stomach is empty. Preventing hunger pangs during the night, it helps you get more restful sleep.

2) It reduces the tax on your energy store that even sleeping takes. (Your body's need of fuel each sleeping hour is actually 40% of the average for all your waking, working hours! That's because your heart keeps pumping, breathing continues, "relaxed" muscles are always under tension.)

3) It gives your body, in easily digestible form, a greater variety of nutritional essentials than any other food can provide!

FRANK J. WALSH, CORONER SINCE '31, DIES IN WEST

In Ill Health Since Last Fall; Long Political Career

Frank J. Walsh, coroner of Cook county for the last eight and one-half years and Democratic committeeman of the 17th ward since 1910, died yesterday in the Huntington Memorial hospital in Pasadena, Cal. He observed his 63d birthday Sunday.

Frank J. Walsh.

Coroner Walsh had been in poor health since last fall. He spent five weeks in St. Bernard's hospital for rest and general observation, and two months ago went to the home of a relative in Sierra Madre. He was a patient in the Pasadena hospital for six weeks before his death. Dr. John G. Frost, who attended him here, said he had been suffering from a complication of ailments.

Born in Bridgeport District.

Walsh was born at Archer avenue and Throop street, in the old Bridgeport district, and went to work in 1896 as a clerk for the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad. He worked as a teller in the United States subtreasury here from 1903 to 1910, and in the latter year was elected clerk of the Criminal court, serving two terms until 1918.

In 1917 the Wilson administration appointed him chief clerk in the internal revenue department here, and in 1920 he was appointed naval officer of customs, a post now designated controler of customs.

In 1931 he was appointed to fill out the unexpired term of Dr. Herman N. Bundesen as coroner after Dr. Bundesen relinquished the position to confine his activities to president of the board of health, a post he also held. Walsh was elected coroner for a four year term in 1932 and was reelected in 1936.

Engaged in Insurance Business.

Walsh lived at 6435 Yale avenue and engaged in the insurance business until he became coroner. He also owned a South Dakota ranch.

He leaves his widow, Alma, who was in California with him; a brother, William Walsh, employed by the Sanitary district, and two sisters, Misses Mary and Julia Walsh.

Coroner Walsh's body, accompanied by the widow, Alma, will be placed aboard the Super-Chief today and will arrive in Chicago Thursday. The funeral will be held Saturday at 10 a. m. in St. Bernard's church, 340 West 66th street. The body will then be returned to Los Angeles for burial in Forest Lawn Memorial park.

BOARD MEETS TODAY

The Cook county board is to meet at 3 p. m. today to appoint a successor to Coroner Frank J. Walsh, who died in California yesterday.

Reports last night indicated that Anthony Prusinski, chief deputy coroner for the last three years, was favored for the post. Also under consideration, the report said, is John A. Szumnarski, Democartic committeeman of the 35th ward. Clayton Smith, president of the board, said both men had been mentioned as prospects.

The appointment, which must have the indorsement of the Democratic county organization, will be only temporary, but it is almost certain that whoever gets the post will be slated as the party's regular candidate for the full term.

PUPILS TO MEET TODAY IN BURNED SCHOOL BUILDING

William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, said yesterday that pupils of the Alice L. Barnard elementary school at 10354 Charles street should report to the auditorium of the school this morning. The main building was destroyed in a $150,000 fire that began Sunday evening. The auditorium and gymnasium are in a fireproof annex which was not damaged.

Earl R. Downes, assistant corporation counsel in charge of fire investigations, and Morgan Park police began an investigation of the cause of the fire.

Johnson said tentative plans have been made for taking six portable school buildings from Tilden High school grounds to the Barnard grounds. Children living on the edges of the Barnard district will be sent to other nearby schools.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Two Wrongs Make a Right?

CANADA BEGINS 7 DAY MOURNING FOR TWEEDSMUIR

Halt Election Activity; Funeral Wednesday.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 12.—Canada today began a week of mourning for the death of Lord Tweedsmuir, its governor general, famed statesman, novelist, and lawyer.

This capital of the dominion was draped in black as it awaited arrival of the body of the 64 year old representative of the king at noon tomorrow. It was to be brought by special train from Montreal where Lord Tweedsmuir died yesterday after a third operation had been performed to relieve a brain concussion sustained when he fell in his official residence here last Tuesday.

Funeral on Wednesday.

The body will lie in state in the senate chamber until funeral services are held at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Following the rites, the body will be returned to Montreal for cremation. The ashes will be taken back to Lord Tweedsmuir's birthplace in Scotland for burial.

All political and government activities in the dominion were suspended for the duration of the mourning period. Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King recalled his ministers now campaigning for the coming general elections and canceled his own nomination meeting set for Friday.

President Sends Message.

Hundreds of messages were received today by Lady Tweedsmuir, among them one from President Roosevelt who said he was "shocked and greatly grieved" at her husband's death.

Other expressions of sympathy also came from London where King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth said they had followed the governor general's illness "with the keenest anxiety."

Pending appointment of a successor by the king, the duties of the governor general were taken over by Sir Lyman Duff, chief justice of the dominion. Reports from London said the duke of Devonshire, the marquess of Aberdeen, the earl of Athlone, and the earl of Elgin were among those mentioned as likely to be named to the post.

TAKES OWN LIFE WITH REVOLVER AT WIFE'S GRAVE

Since the death of his wife, Sophie, last November, John E. Lehmann, 71 years old, had paid a weekly visit to her grave in the Montrose cemetery, 5400 North Pulaski road. At his last visit on Saturday he cleared away the snow and laid some hyacinths across the sod.

Yesterday morning Lehmann dressed himself in his new suit, purchased for his 46th wedding anniversary last October. Then he walked out of the home at 4622 Shakespeare avenue, where he lived with a daughter, Mrs. Clarence De Shon.

In the afternoon Mrs. De Shon, alarmed at her father's absence, went to his room and discovered that his revolver was missing. She telephoned her brother Aubrey.

The son's first thought was the cemetery. And there he found his father. Lehmann's body, a bullet thru his head, lay across his wife's grave, one hand touching the still fresh flowers.

HEARING RETURNS TO GIRL, 18, DEAF FOR 13 MONTHS

Grafton, W. Va., Feb. 12 (AP).—After being totally deaf for 13 months, hearing unaccountably returned last night to Eloise Lockard, 18 years old. The girl's father, Police Captain A. E. Lockard, told today how the family was spending a quiet evening at home, with Eloise keeping abreast of the conversation by lip reading. Suddenly she asked a brother: "What did you say? I believe I heard you." He repeated the statement and Eloise found that her hearing was perfect. Her deafness began during her junior year in Grafton High school, but specialists said they could not help her because nerves in her ears had been paralyzed. She returned to school and was graduated last June despite the handicap.

Movie Titles.

Willis Gordon, Hollywood scenarist visiting in Chicago, was discussing with some friends the liking of producers for catchy titles. Sydney Harris suggested the Lane sisters' next picture ought to be called Four Divorcées. Gordon related Dorothy Parker's suggestion for the title of Hedy Lamarr's new picture. It was made several months ago, titled I Take This Woman, then shelved because of some unsatisfactory sequences. A short time ago it was decided to take some new scenes and issue the picture. Miss Parker's title suggestion: I Re-Take This Woman.

The following is from yesterday's noonday sermon of Dr. T. F. Gullixson of St. Paul, Minn., at the Erlanger theater:

"Let us not kid ourselves this Lenten season about sin, brutality, and wickedness, about hell and fiendishness, about the awful capabilities that swell in human beings tho they have scientifically disciplined minds and emotional souls, artistic fingers and trained hands.

"No one can dispose of sin with a jest, or of evil by calling it an illusion. Observe, please, the place of murder in statecraft, of lies in international policy, of deceit in diplomacy, of falsehood in propaganda, of half truths in political party policies, of truth and virtue everywhere crushed."

Mexico Wins Full Share of Our Travelers

BY JUDITH CASS.

SOME like it hot, some like it cold, some like it in a spot with atmosphere old. Mexico, Guatemala, and Jamaica, promising pleasant climate and romantic surroundings, are calling many of our travel minded Chicagoans. Mexico and Guatemala, lands of contrasts, where the primitive rubs elbows with 20th century civilization, have been picked by many as vacation spots.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas H. Strawn and their son-in-law and daughter, the Wesley M. Dixons, left yesterday for New Orleans with the Robert P. Hixons and the Clarence C. Prentices. The group is sailing tomorrow on the Ulua and by Saturday they land at Puerto Barrios in Guatemala.

The travelers will have exchanged the crowded thorofares of Chicago for narrow, flagstone streets down which trot mules and burros laden with market produce. Native women, gracefully balancing huge loads on their heads and garbed in the gayly colored costumes of their tribes, will have supplanted the fur coated, booted Chicagoan, scurrying to an appointment.

After a few days in the Central American country the Strawns and their companions are flying to Mexico. Their itinerary is indefinite, but they may stop in Mexico City.

The Strawns and the Dixons will fly from Mexico to Brownsville, Tex., where they will take a train home. They and the Hixons will be away for about two weeks.

Prentices Will Return in April.

The Prentices do not plan to return before April. At that time Mrs. Prentice will go east to see her two sons, Harry and Leslie Wheeler Jr., who are at Yale. The boys, in the meantime, will have done some traveling of their own. Harry is going to Nassau with the Yale rugby team while Leslie will go to Florida and the Carolinas with the university's tennis team.

Mrs. Philip Maher, Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson, and Miss Margaret Fisher are hoping to take a trip to Mexico about March 1. They will drive to Cuernavaca, where they will see the famous Borda gardens, planned almost two hundred years ago by a Frenchman whose fortune was made in silver mines. The trio will occupy Mrs. John Bitter's home in Cuernavaca. Mrs. Bitter, Mrs. Maher's sister, is spending the winter in New York and in Florida, where her husband is conductor of a symphony orchestra.

Seymour Blair started the migration toward Jamaica. At the beginning of the year he took a house there and now is tempting his brother and sister with descriptions of the country. William McCormick Blair and the Howard Linns [Lucy Blair] soon will see for themselves the rugged mountains and the seacoast of the island. Moonlight swimming parties, fishing for marlin, and shooting crocodiles are some of the amusements planned for visitors to Jamaica.

William Blair is flying to Jamaica at the beginning of March to be gone two weeks. Mrs. Blair, who does not care for fishing, probably will go to Boca Grande, Fla., during the Easter vacation with their son, Bowen, who is at Yale. The Linns plan to leave for Jamaica about April 1.

Thru the LOOKING GLASS

The woman with dry skin should use a makeup foundation that benefits as well as beautifies here parched complexion. Choose a preparation that lessens dryness while it serves as a flattering, lasting base.

The more we see of this cold weather and what it does to the complexion the more we fancy the kind of makeup foundation preparation that is a soother as well as a base for powder, rouge, et al.

We've been doing some experimenting lately that's been most interesting, and we think there are facts about foundations that the dry skinned woman, in particular, ought to know. There are preparations that merely film the skin, providing a base that is flatteringly receptive to makeup and conducive to a suave face finish for hours on end. But for extremely dry skin, especially in the kind of weather that parches it more than ever, these qualities, while excellent, aren't quite enough.

We've decided that the makeup base that benefits—by oiling the skin, even infinitesimally—is perhaps a wiser choice for the thin skinned woman than the one that merely beautifies. One we've been using seemed to us a real find for cold weather.

This product has stood up wonderfully under some exacting dry skin tests. It's a "runny" kind of a cream that doesn't obviously coat the skin. It blends in, and is taken up by the dry, flaky skin. In a small way it's a softener and its immediate effect when you apply it is to moisten the skin and to supple it. Apply powder to the skin surface thus softened and your makeup is more natural, less drying, and really prettier! "Velvety" is the word for it!

This makeup film—tho it isn't a film in the sense that it's merely a coating—is in two shades, one for the fair skin, one for the olive types. It lasts a long time and is a good winter investment.

St. Olaf Choir Still Worthy of Great Name

BY CECIL SMITH.

The St. Olaf Lutheran choir apparently does not operate according to the law of averages, for it never has an off season. Almost every college singing organization, with its constant shifting of student personnel, has good years and lean years—except the St. Olaf choir, which has only good years. The polished singing of the group in Orchestra hall last night was all the more remarkable, in that the choir had already appeared in the afternoon and might have been expected to sound tired.

Dr. F. Melius Christiansen, who founded the choir many years ago and has been its only director ever since, must be accounted one of the great figures in American musical education. In his work with the choir he had always maintained a lofty ideal of polished ensemble performance, and he has been able to fire his students with a desire to measure up to that ideal.

The technique of the choir is a complete joy. Nothing is left to chance. Every note is in the right place at the right time, with just the volume and color Dr. Christiansen wishes for his interpretative purpose. The pitch is uncannily exact; it is not too much to call the intonation of the St. Olaf choir the most perfect in America.

Dr. Christiansen has his own preference in choral tone—a thin, somewhat piercing soprano tone without vibrato, suggesting the quality of English boy sopranos' voices, contrasting with a lusty, exuberant tone in the male voices. It is not the only satisfactory choral texture, and it is not my favorite one. Yet it does make for clarity in all the parts, and it brings to religious music an impersonality devoid of all secular connotations.

The concert was a benefit for the Chicago Bible society, and was attended by a capacity audience.

PRAISE FOR GOLDBERG

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Albert Goldberg's musicianship and personal charm have often, in his appearances as conductor, been partially neutralized by a certain stiffness and by a matter-of-fact, pedestrian quality.

Last night, as he directed the Illinois Symphony orchestra at the Studebaker theater in Deems Taylor's "Through the Looking Glass" suite, he let the music lash him into a mild frenzy. Every vestige of stiffness was gone by the time the wistful movement dedicated to "The White Knight" came along, and the performance took on a remarkable flexibility and beauty of detail. To borrow an adjective from Lewis Carroll himself, it was a most frabjous occasion.

After the intermission Bertha Ostrar appeared as soloist in the Shostakovich piano concerto, with Pierino Margadonna playing the trumpet obbligato.

The perverse poetry of the second movement Miss Ostrar projected in so plausible a manner that at least one member of the audience found himself suddenly trying to revaluate Mr. Shostakovich and his piece. For this, it seemed, was something a great deal more important than the clever, youthful, lusty, bold music which we are accustomed to hear flowing from this composer's pen. This was music with depth and thoughtfulness and some knowledge of the world.

In the delightful, unblushing vulgarity of the last movement Shostakovich the enfant terrible came back into his own.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

Death of a Champion

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 12.—In failing to include Spencer Tracy, winner of the academy award for the last two years, in the list of five actors who will battle it out for the 1939 championship, I think that the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences has defined its own limits and exposed the weakness of this annual Hollywood rodeo. The academy, in other words, says: "This annual award is not for acting ability; it is an award to the actor who is lucky enough to get a fat rôle in an important picture."

This construction must be placed upon the academy awards, because Tracy, champion of 1937 and 1938, is a better actor today than he was two years ago. Muni, champion of 1936, is a better actor today than he was three years ago. Victor McLaglen, champion of 1934, has learned more about the art than he knew five years back.

This is not a rap at the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, mind. It is only a suggestion that instead of gold "Oscars," they present golden statuettes of Lady Luck to the actors and actresses who are voted the best of breed. Because these awards are based on luck, rather than a cold analysis of talent. Out of an annual grab-bag of several thousands of rôles the players fortunate enough to get juicy parts reach the finals.

Let us recognize this lottery factor, and then you understand why Tracy, double academy winner, has been dropped like a hot potato this year without even reaching the finals; why Luise Ranier, another double winner, is not employed at the moment; why Katharine Hepburn and Helen Hayes, academy winners, have been on the stage rather than the screen. Their luck in rôles was not on a par with their acting ability.

Charles Laughton, in a recent interview in this space, pointed out wisely that the finest performer in Hollywood, Charlie Chaplin, never has received an academy award. You might go beyond that and point out that Raimu, of France, who is some shucks as a performer, never has been mentioned for it. In fact, you could accummulate a staggering load of evidence that the awards are not mathematically or artistically exact.

This academy championship is the only championship, I believe, in which the contenders do not start from the same line, run the same course, and with the same equipment. In a golf championship, for instance, the players tour the same course, use the same number of clubs and golf balls of equivalent quality.

But not in the movies. The $5,000,000 "Gone With the Wind" competes on even terms against pictures that have cost $1,000,000, and the players who are lucky enough to get important rôles in the $5,000,000 picture immediately have a big edge on those in the lower budgeted flickers. But conceding that even this valid distinction is beyond the point of this treatise, the fact remains that actors and actresses are not given the common yardstick of an identical rôle.

For instance, what would Paul Muni have accomplished with the rôle of Mr. Chips? What would Gary Cooper have done with the rôle of Mr. Smith? What would Bette Davis have done with the rôle of Scarlett O'Hara? What would Katharine Hepburn have projected in the top rôle of "Dark Victory"?

Performers, because of studio contracts, do not even make the same number of pictures. In a golf championship, if one player were permitted to pick the best of four scores and post it on the scoreboard, while other players were permitted only the best score of three rounds, and others limited to one round, we'd ridicule the results of such lopsided competition. Unfortunately that is the way in which academy award competition must be conducted. Some players make four pictures in a season and thus get four shots at the prize; others make one picture and get only one shot at it. The academy is not responsible for this; the judges are innocent bystanders.

This attitude is not aired in a captious spirit, but simply as a reassurance to those many fine movie players who never have won an academy award and possibly never will, because they are not that lucky in snagging the sort of rôle that commands attention.

The Girl in the Shadows

By Roy Vickers

[Copyright: 1940: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

INSTALMENT XXXII.
THE BLACKMAILER RETURNS.

Sir William Merrowbridge was feeling extremely pleased with himself these days. It is not every one who can get a beautiful girl released by Scotland Yard with apologies and a protection certificate, but Sir William had done it. It was on a Friday, a week or so after his visit to the Manor, that, on a shopping expedition to Taunton, he fell in with a very pleasant and interesting American. And towards the close of the short winter's day he found himself, with his acquaintance, beside the roaring fire in the parlor of The George, discoursing on the difference between American and British police methods, greatly to the disadvantage of the former.

Mr. Reuben E. Treitser—as his card called him—disagreed just sufficiently to spur the general into proving his words. He proved them by recounting his recent experiences at the Yard.

"Just like one of your films, it was," he declared. "Only instead of G-men or whatever you call 'em, there were some very civil-spoken fellers. Of course they were obstinate at first, for there's no denying there was this likeness between the escaped convict and the lady I was escorting. But once they were convinced by plain facts like dates and places—well, there was no more nonsense."

Mr. Treitser was flatteringly impressed. He was the more interested, he said, because he thought it possible that he had already met the lady in the case. Was she not a Miss Brentiford? Yes, by Jove, she was, said Sir William, or rather she had been. She was now Mrs. Michael Alloway. And so they passed by easy stages to an appreciative contemplation of old Devonshire families such as the Alloways, and the fact that the more modern members of them did not rusticate all the year round in their sleepy manors but spent quite a lot of time in London. As, for instance, Miss Marion Alloway, who had just taken over her sister-in-law's flat for a month or two and was learning basket making or something, for the eventual benefit of the village institute.

Rattling over the moorland roads in the dark, it did occur to Sir William that he had perhaps been rather expansive. But after all the feller was a pleasant feller and a gentleman and a stranger in the land. Hands across the sea, eh, what? And all that.

Marion Alloway could not have explained why she had taken Cynthia's flat. She felt that one of "the family" ought to live in it, to guard it. From what? She did not know. But the instinct was very strong.

Cynthia, when cabled to for her approval, had cabled back, "Delighted." After a few days Marion found that the anonymity and independence, the color and variety of London life, rested her nerves as the country quiet had failed to do. She started her arts and crafts lessons with something like her old confidence and good spirits.

Her fellow pupils were mainly young women destined for the teaching profession and she found them pleasant enough; direct and unaffected in manner. When one of them, Ella Marcus, said: "There's that man in a raincoat following us again!" Marion did not put it down to a silly vanity. She felt a twinge of real fear which she tried to overcome by wheeling round.

"Where, Miss Marcus?"

"I can't see him now," said her companion, "but he was behind us the first time we left the class together and yesterday, too; I thought it was just coincidence. But three times running seems deliberate, doesn't it?"

"O, perhaps he works somewhere near and always leaves at this time."

"Perhaps. I turn off here. Goodnight."

Marion continued along the brightly lit street. She felt relieved when she had gained the flat. She shut the door, lit the fire, drew the curtains—was that the outline of a coated man in that doorway over the street? At such a distance, and from such a height, she couldn't tell. She began to prepare her supper. For Marion's country sense revolted from the highly priced restaurant food that other bachelor girls took as a matter of course. She ordered the provisions she needed thru Wadstoke, the porter, and cooked them on her return from her class.

She had just served herself an appetizing little meal when there came a ring at the door.

She removed her overall and went to open it. Against the dim light of the landing outside a man's figure was visible. He said something in a voice she did not recognize, a cultured, slightly drawling voice, and she felt a faint surprise that a man who sounded like a gentleman and wore such good tweeds did not remove his hat, but kept it well down over his eyes.

"Have you perhaps come to see my sister-in-law?" she asked. "She's no longer——"

"O, no, Miss Alloway. I know where Cynthia is—I know all about her, in fact. It's you I want a chat with." He took a sudden step forward and, too late, she realized that she had given back before him and that he was inside—was shutting the door. He swept off his hat.

The full light of the little hall fell upon his face and she stared at a man she had seen before. Somewhere.

"You're quite right," he drawled. "I was wearing a mustache when we met on your native moor. It makes quite a difference to a face, doesn't it?"

She knew who he was now. Rory Clarke. She continued to retreat before him, because the telephone was in the room behind her and the telephone was her first thought. Apparently it was in his mind also, for with one swift glance he located it and, snatching up its trailing cord, he hacked it thru with a knife.

Clarke smiled.

"It's the only way to avoid interruption, I assure you, in this age of clatter and fidget. May I sit down?"

"No. Say what you came to say and then go."

"I'm sorry you take that tone," he deprecated. "After all, I was at school with your brother."

"I daresay, but a good deal has happened since then." Marion was trembling with anger. "If my brother were here, he would do what I will—send for the police."

Clarke cocked an eyebrow at the dangling telephone cord and laughed softly.

"Not if he knew as much as I do about his charming wife," he declared. "And as you do," he added, as Marion's face betrayed the thrust. "He'd decide as you will—to help me cover up the real identity of Clara Brown."

"Do you mean to tell me," said Marion slowly, "that when you're caught, as one day you're bound to be, you'll be cad enough to give away a woman?"

She felt, and sounded, utterly incredulous, and her incredulity had an unexpected effect on Clarke. A dull flush mounted to his forehead and altho he recaptured his hard cynicism, he seemed to do it with an effort.

"Really, this is most refreshing," he sneered. "Your brother and I used to talk like that at school. But we're all grown up now, I'm afraid, and unless you can see your way to writing a bearer check to—let me see—" he consulted a visiting card—"to Mr. Reuben E. Treitser, your ideals and your brother's are going to be rudely shattered."

Marion stood helpless.

"I absolutely refuse," she began. "Even if I had a hundred pounds, which I haven't."

GASOLINE 'ALLEY.—HAPPY BIRTHDAY.

Perhaps Child Is Nervous, Or Only Seems So

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Marie's such a nervous little thing," we hear some one say. "She can't keep still a minute."

"Sonny's gotten to be so nervous lately," declares Sonny's mother. "He won't let me put out the light in his bedroom and he doesn't want me to shut the door when I leave him."

"Barbara's gotten so nervous since she started school. She doesn't finish her breakfast and she fidgets till it's time to leave," bewails Barbara's mother.

And Christine's parents are seriously disturbed because she has developed jerky nervous movements, which they "try to get her to control."

Parents have a way of using the term "nervous" to describe various sorts of conditions, some of which are real nervousness and some of which are not, some of which have a cause lying near the surface and easily removed, and some of which go deeper and are more involved, and so are more difficult to cope with and take longer to cure.

Let us run over the comments above, of these four mothers and consider them.

While it's quite possible that Marie may be in a state of nervousness, the chances are that she's just a very lively, alert, interested child, one with a great deal of physical energy.

Sonny, it's likely, isn't nervous. He may be sensitive, to be sure, but the explanation of his behavior is apt to lie in the fact either that he's been hearing or seeing frightening tales or pictures, or that he's reached a point in his growth where his imagination at play in the darkness turns familiar objects into fearsome figures. Or it may be just the mystery of the dark that disturbs him.

Barbara has become tense and apprehensive—not a serious sort of nervousness—due to the rush of getting off to school, her desire not to be late, the excitement of the newness and many human contacts, and perhaps a teacher who has not made her feel at ease.

Last there's Christine, who may or may not have chorea, but who assuredly needs the attention of a good pediatrician or wise family doctor. She is definitely nervous, physiologically or psychologically, or both.

Before you think of your child as nervous, look him over carefully. But whatever you do, don't parade the fact before him, saying, "He's a very nervous child"—and don't try to deal with it by a series of "don'ts," "stops," and "sit stills."

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

A careful "counting out of the hand" is just as necessary to a defender as to a declarer. In point of fact, not only is it as necessary, but since it is usually a much easier process there is less excuse for a defender to go astray in this vital department.

Most of the "pseudo" coups executed by wily declarers depend for their success on a failure to count by one or both defenders. Today's hand is a good illustration of this point.

North, dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

	NORTH
	♠ 10 9 6 ♥ A 3 2 ♦ A 10 6 5 2 ♣ 7 3
WEST		EAST
♠ K 5 ♥ K 10 8 ♦ K Q J 5 4 ♣ A 10 4		♠ 4 ♥ 7 6 5 4 ♦ 9 3 ♣ Q J 9 6 5 2
	SOUTH ♠ A Q J 8 7 3 2 ♥ Q J 9 ♦ 7 ♣ K 8

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	4 spades	Double
Pass	Pass,	Pass

South's spade preempt probably was the best bid after partner's pass, and against vulnerable opponents.

West opened the diamond king, dummy's ace won, and the ten of spades was led and finessed. West won with the king and led the queen of diamonds. Declarer ruffed, drew the remaining outstanding trump from West's hand [East discarding a low club], and then led the queen of hearts, West covering with the king and dummy's ace winning. On a heart return from dummy declarer finessed the nine spot in his own hand, losing to West's ten.

At this point West worried himself into a very bad analysis. He feared that declarer had started out with four hearts headed by Q J 9 and that one of dummy's clubs could be discarded on the long heart. To prevent this he laid down the ace of clubs, hoping, in spite of his partner's club deuce previously mentioned, that the king was held by East. After that, of course, declarer claimed the rest of the tricks and contract.

That West's analysis was completely superficial is provable by this one point: declarer had actually shown a seven card trump suit and only one diamond. If, as West "feared," declarer had also held four hearts, then he would have started with only one club and it would do no good to lay down the club ace—the contract could not be defeated! That being true, West might well "fear" a four card heart suit, but since he could do nothing about it should have actually played for a more favorable supposition.

Bright Clothes Will Help You Forget Winter

BY REA SEEGER.

One sure way to forget winter scenes is to keep your eyes and mind on the pastel and highly colored clothes in tweeds and soft wool. They have the most alluring hint of spring.

Dull, dark winter clothes have been swished out of sight; straw hats, sheer white blouses, thin as nothing at all, printed silk, and gay footwear, are potent tantalizers for spending any burning supplies of cash.

One eye blinding showing of three piece wool ensembles, sufficiently warm to wear during the nippiest kind of weather, flaunts such brilliant color schemes that the village fire departments will be called out to quench the conflagration unless the alarmist look the second time. Not since the lusty era of outsize horse blanket plaids have there been so many dazzling colors in daring size and contrast. One carbon blue and yellow get-together slides over a gold colored jacket with a biting blue colored gored skirt . . . another has tangerine and citron green for a shocker, with a somewhat cooling down idea in the bright blue suit. A third screamer uses red and yellow defiantly double crossed with a shrinking violet dress under the coat. Stripes that streak vertically from coat hem to shoulder are jaunty, but only the most rebellious soul will don them without slight hesitation . . . these ensembles are frankly loud and optically startling, but the patterns are exhilarating, different, and what a welcome sight after too many weeks of somber stuff.

Good Morning!

If this piece weren't so awkwardly worked out, it would—quite likely—have proved a humdinger.

The plot has a really original slant and, toward the last, there are several interesting and laugh provoking situations, crowned with an unexpected and clever finale. Then too, the acting—swell! It's just a downright pity that "Remember" would have to RAMBLE so for about two-thirds of its footage.

Greer Garson — she was "Mrs. Chips" — recollect? — Robert Taylor and Lew Ayres, form an odd sort of triangle. . . . Robert marries Lew's gal, but Lew still sticks around as pal to the newlyweds. . . . The marriage goes on the rocks to be saved by, er—a philter. Which MUST be all from me to you if you're to get the kick you should from the last part of the picture.

"Remember" incorporates so much good material that you feel you'd like to have it done over again—right,

The best kind of valentine to give one's family is an edible one, so why don't we stir up a cake, an especially good spice cake, and present it tomorrow at table?

The batter might be baked in valentine cake molds or in cupcake pans to be decorated in valentine fashion with frosting and candies or nuts. But a plain loaf or layer spice cake is a sweet valentine whether decorated or served plain.

These are my own favorite spice cakes. Perhaps you've seen one or another of them in these columns in previous years, for they're all "repeaters."

Sour Cream Spice Cake.
[Loaf pan.]

1 cup thick, naturally soured, whipping cream
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
2¼ cups sifted cake flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup chopped nuts
½ cup raisins
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine sugar and sour cream, beating well. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Sift together dry ingredients several times and stir into the liquid mixture. Beat until smooth. Add nuts, raisins, and vanilla. Bake at 375 degrees for about 35 minutes. Frost with mocha icing or any uncooked icing. Caramel, butterscotch, and maple frostings are particularly good with this or any of the other spice cakes.

Don't make this cake with culture soured cream from the dairy. It will be rubbery in texture if you do. Home soured whipping cream gives a fine, tender texture.

Coffee Spice Cake.
[Two 9-inch layers.]

2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ginger
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
¾ teaspoon cloves
¾ teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, beaten
3 tablespoons molasses
7 tablespoons cold, strong coffee

Sift flour, baking powder, and spices together three times. Cream butter thoroly and add sugar gradually. Beat until light. Add eggs and beat well. Add molasses and blend. Alternately add flour mixture and coffee, a little at a time, beating until smooth after each addition. Bake in two greased nine inch layer pans at 375 degrees for 25 minutes, or until done. Frost with any butter frosting, or with seven minute icing.

The layers may be put together with apple sauce or sliced bananas if desired.

Banana Spice Cake.
[Loaf pan.]

½ cup butter
1½ cups sugar
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 cup mashed bananas
2 cups sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon soda
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup sour milk or buttermilk
½ cup chopped nuts

Cream butter and sugar together thoroly and add eggs. Beat well and add bananas. Sift flour with soda, salt, and spices several times. Add in alternate portions with milk. Beat batter smooth. Add nuts. Bake in a greased loaf pan for 40 minutes, or until done. Frost with a butter icing.

Honor Women for Years of Public Service

Five women past 70 were special guests at an unusual valentine party yesterday at the Woman's City club, 410 South Michigan avenue.

"Saint Valentine went about doing good all his life," Mrs. Laura Hughes Lunde, chairman of the party, told the special guests, "so we thought this would be a good time to show you how much we appreciate what you have done and still are doing for Chicago."

The five—Mrs. William F. Dummer, Mrs. Hannah G. Solomon, Mrs. William S. Hefferan, Mrs. John T. Mason, Mrs. Edward L. Murfey—heard their contributions to Chicago's betterment described by long standing associates.

Two others, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen and Miss Flora J. Cooke, who also were to have been special guests, were praised in their absence. Mrs. Bowen is ill at home with a cold. Miss Cooke is ill at the Presbyterian hospital.

"Mrs. Dummer is the reason why Illinois is a leading state in the treatment of the insane," asserted Dr. Paul L. Schroeder, director of the Institute of Juvenile Research. He discussed Mrs. Dummer's pioneer work in the field of mental hygiene and of child guidance.

"Mrs. Bowen is Chicago's civic conscience," quoted Miss Charlotte Carr, head resident of Hull House. Mrs. Bowen at 81 still is active president of the settlement house and keeps office hours there each day.

Rabbi Louis L. Mann said that Mrs. Solomon keeps young "because she champions not yet popular causes." Mrs. Solomon founded the National Council of Jewish Women.

Miss Cooke, who was principal of the Francis Parker school from 1900 to 1934, was lauded as a pioneer in education by Carlton Washburn, superintendent of the Winnetka schools.

The career of Mrs. John T. Mason, who led the movement to obtain a woman's reformatory for Illinois, was discussed by Mrs. William E. Lewis, club leader. Mrs. Mabel Simpson told of contributions made to education by Mrs. Hefferan, long a member of the school board. Miss Harriet Vittum, director of the Northwestern university settlement, spoke of Mrs. Murfey's work as secretary of the Woman's City club and of other organizations.

Children's Aid Plans Gay Party to Open Crystal Exhibition

Gay plans are being made for a benefit showing of the Steuben Glass exhibition of "Twenty-Seven Artists in Crystal" which is to open on April 19 at 900 North Michigan avenue. The Illinois Children's Home and Aid society will receive the proceeds from the three weeks that the beautiful crystal urns, plates, and vases will be on view.

Mrs. Robert S. Pirie, president of the woman's board of the society, and some of those who will give their time to make the exhibit a success met yesterday to talk over arrangements. Plans include a grand opening on the night of the 19th. The opening will not be until after the dinner hour, but those who have purchased $5 admission tickets may drop in earlier for a look at the crystal. The regular price of admission is to be 25 cents on all days excepting Mondays, which will be free days.

Numerology By Evelyn Holmes

Feb. 13, 1940.

Complications coming up! This isn't going to be a lucky 13 for some. Be sure you are the one who is genuinely seeking peace in a peaceful way and not belligerently joining in the shouting and the tumult. If this is your birthday you musn't expect too much, but be grateful for small favors. Keep the small worries down to their real size, and try not to become involved in disputes.

The best kind of valentine to give one's family is an edible one, so why don't we stir up a cake, an especially good spice cake, and present it tomorrow at table?

The batter might be baked in valentine cake molds or in cupcake pans to be decorated in valentine fashion with frosting and candies or nuts. But a plain loaf or layer spice cake is a sweet valentine whether decorated or served plain.

These are my own favorite spice cakes. Perhaps you've seen one or another of them in these columns in previous years, for they're all "repeaters."

Sour Cream Spice Cake.
[Loaf pan.]

1 cup thick, naturally soured, whipping cream
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1¾ cups sifted cake flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup chopped nuts
½ cup raisins
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine sugar and sour cream, beating well. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Sift together dry ingredients several times and stir into the liquid mixture. Beat until smooth. Add nuts, raisins, and vanilla. Bake at 375 degrees for about 35 minutes. Frost with mocha icing or any uncooked icing. Caramel, butterscotch, and maple frostings are particularly good with this or any of the other spice cakes.

Don't make this cake with culture soured cream from the dairy. It will be rubbery in texture if you do. Home soured whipping cream gives a fine, tender texture.

Coffee Spice Cake.
[Two 9-inch layers.]

2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ginger
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, beaten
3 tablespoons molasses
7 tablespoons cold, strong coffee

Sift flour, baking powder, and spices together three times. Cream butter thoroly and add sugar gradually. Beat until light. Add eggs and beat well. Add molasses and blend. Alternately add flour mixture and coffee, a little at a time, beating until smooth after each addition. Bake in two greased nine inch layer pans at 375 degrees for 25 minutes, or until done. Frost with any butter frosting, or with seven minute icing.

The layers may be put together with apple sauce or sliced bananas if desired.

Banana Spice Cake.
[Loaf pan.]

½ cup butter
1½ cups sugar
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 cup mashed bananas
2 cups sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon soda
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup sour milk or buttermilk
½ cup chopped nuts

Cream butter and sugar together thoroly and add eggs. Beat well and add bananas. Sift flour with soda, salt, and spices several times. Add in alternate portions with milk. Beat batter smooth. Add nuts. Bake in a greased loaf pan for 40 minutes, or until done. Frost with a butter icing.

Honor Women for Years of Public Service

Five women past 70 were special guests at an unusual valentine party yesterday at the Woman's City club, 410 South Michigan avenue.

"Saint Valentine went about doing good all his life," Mrs. Laura Hughes Lunde, chairman of the party, told the special guests, "so we thought this would be a good time to show you how much we appreciate what you have done and still are doing for Chicago."

The five—Mrs. William F. Dummer, Mrs. Hannah G. Solomon, Mrs. William S. Hefferan, Mrs. John T. Mason, Mrs. Edward L. Murfey—heard their contributions to Chicago's betterment described by long standing associates.

Two others, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen and Miss Flora J. Cooke, who also were to have been special guests, were praised in their absence. Mrs. Bowen is ill at home with a cold. Miss Cooke is ill at the Presbyterian hospital.

"Mrs. Dummer is the reason why Illinois is a leading state in the treatment of the insane," asserted Dr. Paul L. Schroeder, director of the Institute of Juvenile Research. He discussed Mrs. Dummer's pioneer work in the field of mental hygiene and of child guidance.

"Mrs. Bowen is Chicago's civic conscience," quoted Miss Charlotte Carr, head resident of Hull House. Mrs. Bowen at 81 still is active president of the settlement house and keeps office hours there each day.

Rabbi Louis L. Mann said that Mrs. Solomon keeps young "because she champions not yet popular causes." Mrs. Solomon founded the National Council of Jewish Women.

Miss Cooke, who was principal of the Francis Parker school from 1900 to 1934, was lauded as a pioneer in education by Carlton Washburn, superintendent of the Winnetka schools.

The career of Mrs. John T. Mason, who led the movement to obtain a woman's reformatory for Illinois, was discussed by Mrs. William E. Lewis, club leader. Mrs. Mabel Simpson told of contributions made to education by Mrs. Hefferan, long a member of the school board. Miss Harriet Vittum, director of the Northwestern university settlement, spoke of Mrs. Murfey's work as secretary of the Woman's City club and of other organizations.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

North side novice boxers began their Golden Gloves campaign last night in Loyola gymnasium. For hours the thump of gloves blended with the clamor of the crowd while slugging went on in two rings without a letup.

A Hunt for New Talent.

At the end of the evening the field had been cut from 199 to 132 contenders, but two more sessions will be necessary to reduce the north side novice contingent to its final proportions. Fighting will continue in Loyola gymnasium tonight and will be concluded tomorrow.

Last night's program, which was packed with action from start to finish, gave the north side fans a sample of the spectacular fighting that had entertained west and south side followers of the sport last week. Some of the more ardent admirers of the north side novices predicted that several might go a long way in Golden Gloves competition with another year or so of experience.

One of the interesting aspects of Golden Gloves events is the occasional swift rise of a particularly talented boxer. The fans like to discover these boys for themselves. Later they enjoy recalling how they spotted this or that brilliant young fighter early in his career.

So the crowd which watched the novices in Loyola gymnasium was ever on the alert for some youngster who will be worth following. Many of the same fans will be back again tonight and tomorrow night to see some of the boxers who didn't appear on the first program.

Simultaneous Excitement.

Sixty-seven advanced in last night's bouts, one by default. With two rings in operation there was never a tiresome moment. While Anton Sonju was knocking down Dean Voight in one ring, Richard Flores and Bill Hearn were standing up for some toe to toe slugging in the other.

Then Voight was fighting back and taking the lead from Sonju while Flores was piling up points against Hearn. The next thing the crowd knew, Sonju had stretched Voight to the canvas with a tremendous right to the jaw ending the bout—and before the fans could turn their heads back to the other ring, the referee was stepping into stop it after Hearn had sent Flores to the floor.

Never a Dull Moment.

Meanwhile Edgar Hansen had climbed into the ring vacated by Sonju and Voight and had dropped Clyde Cable with a wallop to the chin. Cable got up but failed to weather the next round. And so it went for hours without a let up while the fans cheered one of the fastest shows of the season.

Of course, the competition in the all-Chicago tournament in the Coliseum Feb. 20, 21, and 22, will be much too tough for most of the boys who become eligible thru surviving the novice eliminations on the north, south, and west sides. Each section will send 16—two in each weight division. Nevertheless, the fans are seeing such a display of courage and eagerness during the novice tournaments that they are convinced that these youngsters will at least give a good account of themselves if they go on to the bouts in the Coliseum.

A Real Test Ahead.

The all-Chicago tournament will bring out the tightest local competition in Golden Gloves history because every first class amateur fighter will have to meet all comers in Champaign, Ill., Feb. 12 [Special.]—Capt. Bill Hapac sank a field goal with 50 seconds of play remaining to give Illinois a 35 to 33 victory over Northwestern in a Western Conference basketball game tonight.

Northwestern, which led practically all the way, had a 24 to 14 margin at the half. The Illini, after an uphill struggle, took a 33 to 32 lead with two and one-half minutes to play on Harold Shapiro's long shot. George Bensen then made good on the second of two free shots to set the stage for Hapac's winning goal, a one-hander from near the free throw line.

Wildcats Build Up Lead.

Capt Ad Vance of Northwestern was the offensive star of the evening with 10 points on four baskets and two free throws. Hapac led the Illini with nine points.

Shepard's long shot sent the Wildcats away to a 2 to 0 lead, but Wukovits' basket and free throw gave the Illini the only advantage they held until the final minutes. A long shot by Vance put the Wildcats back in front, and they went on to build up a comfortable lead as their fast break, interspersed with long shots by Vance and Benson, caught the Illinois' defense before it could get set.

Illinois Closes In.

The Wildcats settled into a defensive game in the second half, and the Illini came up the court in quest of the ball. Hocking's long shot opened the Illinois' rally. A few minutes later Shepard sank a long shot and then a short one for Northwestern's only baskets of the second half.

Hocking, Evers, and Hapac built up the Illini total, but with about 13 minutes left Northwestern led, 31 to 23. Then two baskets by Shapiro and one each by Hocking and Evers gave Illinois its 32 to 31 lead. Lineups:

INDIANA WINS, 57-30

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 12 [Special]. The entire Indiana university basketball squad of 21 players saw action here tonight as the Hoosiers walloped Michigan, 57 to 30, to maintain coleadership in the Big Ten title chase.

Coach Branch McCracken of Indiana poured reserves into the game by the twos and threes after the Crimson first team raced away to a 5 point lead and increased the margin to 29-13 at half time. Coach Benny Oosterbaan, seeking futilely to keep pace with the speedy Hoosiers, used seven reserves.

Michigan tied the count three times in the first period but after the Hoosiers, who were never behind, shot into a 16 to 11 lead, they turned the game into complete rout.

Indiana ran the score to 44 to 13 in the first five minutes of the second half, while Crimson substitutes kept streaming onto the floor. The Hoosiers hit the hoop on 25 out of 78

Casters Get a New Chance to Show Skill

BY BOB BECKER.

Chicago fishermen, after nine days of competition in the Tribune casting tournament just completed at the National Boat and Sports show, have only a few days to wait before they may go into action again in the second Chicagoland tournament which starts Sunday in the International amphitheater.

Held during the International Outdoor Sports show, Feb. 17-25, the program of casting competition will be the most complete of any Tribune tournament ever held with several bait casting and two fly casting events scheduled. Women casters, fishermen, members of casting clubs, and boys and girls will have a chance to win more than $150 worth of rods, reels, lures and other fishing equipment which will be awarded to the winners.

Offer Expert Instruction.

The next tournament sponsored by THE TRIBUNE also offers the novice fisherman-caster an excellent opportunity to improve his skill with either a fly or bait casting rod. Several nationally known casting instructors will have regular hours during the afternoons and evenings for demonstrations and free coaching for novice fishermen who are anxious to learn more about the use of rod and reel. There will be no entry fee for any of the competitive events and all casting instruction will be free.

This year, for the first time, two casting pools will be in continuous use. One will be located in the main arena of the amphitheater, the other in the north hall. Competitive events will be staged at both pools.

Repeat Obstacle Casting.

Events on the week's schedule include competition in dry fly, bass bug, skish, and obstacle casting. Obstacle casting was inaugurated in last year's Tribune tournament at the Amphitheater, and the experiment was so popular that casters asked that it be included again this year. In this type of casting the contestants have to toss their lures over logs, close to vegetation, and at other targets similar to those an angler finds during an actual fishing trip.

All contestants [except members of the four Chicago casting clubs] must fill in the entry blank in the sports section and send it to this department.

Confucius Say—

I'm beginning to be a bit baffled
About hearing night and day
The things so ponderous and so wise
That Confucius used to say.

Confucius say this, Confucius say that,
It's actually quite perplexing,
Where all these witty slants on life
Confucius was annexing.

Somehow I'd always pictured him
As a quiet and thoughtful man,
Constructed on the silent
And the esoteric plan.

But if he really uttered
All of those bon mots rare,
How could he keep on gabbing
And never come up for air?

I really hate to say it
Of a man so wise and deep
But how COULD he have said even half those things
Unless he talked in his sleep?

And if Confucius really said
ALL I've heard since the fad began,
I can only say to Confucius:
"O, you nasty man!"

THREE CHAMPION DOGS REPEAT AS BEST OF BREED

Keep Titles as New York Show Opens.

BY HERBERT VEDDER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 12.—Three 1939 champions turned back the challenge of the best in dogdom again today in best-of-breed competition which opened the 64th annual show of the Westminster Kennel club, world's blue ribbon canine event, in Madison Square Garden.

Champion Nornay Saddler, 4 year old smooth-haired dog who has won 51 best-in-show awards, stood off the threat of Flornell Checkmate, year and a half smoothie just imported from England. Then this premier black and white show dog went on to take the measure of Ch Foxhunter of Wildoaks, who had been judged king of the wirehairs, to gain the title of best fox terrier here for the second straight year.

My Own Brucie, a black American cocker, remained king of the cocker spaniels by taking the measure of Faircourt Black Knight, leading English cocker. Brucie had some of his toughest competition in the American division from his own son, Dungarven Display, which was best particolor.

Final Tests Tomorrow.

The third 1939 group winner to repeat was Ch. Meadow Lark Draftsman, beagle king, from the Foxcatcher farm of Mrs. William du Pont Jr. Draftsman's next test will come Wednesday when he meets winners of other hound breeds for the group title he won last year. Nornay Saddler will meet other terrier winners, and My Own Brucie will face other gun-dog group winners in Wednesday's group clashes.

More best-of-breed battles will continue thru morning, afternoon, and evening sessions tomorrow. Then on Wednesday will come group awards, the obedience competition, and other last day features climaxed by the best-in-show award. Last year's champion of champions, the Dobermann Pinscher, Ferry von Rauhfelson, is not one of the 2,738 dogs competing this year.

Chicago Dogs Win Awards.

A number of Chicagoland dogs were among ribbon winners today and others are to compete tomorrow. Blackmoor Brilliance was judged best English type cocker spaniel bitch. She is owned by the Gonfalon kennel of Paul Moser and Doris Flagg, who brought her from England last fall. Moser is president of the Cocker Spanie; Club of the Central States.

Rose Tarantella, a second of the kennel's recent English cocker imports, was second in the open competition for bitches. Christopher of Bridge, American bred English cocker, was fourth for the kennels in the open competition, trailing Faircourt Black Knight.

Champion Donniedhu Brick failed Janet H. Henneberry of Golf, Ill., in the special competition—a sort of tournament of champions—among English springer spaniels. Top honors as best springer of the show went to Champion Showman of Shotton, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Q. Quay of Chagrin Falls, O.

Best American-Bred Springer.

Mrs. Henneberry, one of whose champions was judged best springer here two years ago, took some consolation today in her Donniedhu's Roderick Dhu being named best American-bred springer dog. He lost in the final judging of dogs. Her Zephyr of Breeze was third among American bred bitches, and her Dunoon Donella gained third, as Dunoon Heatherbell went unplaced, in the open competition for bitches. Dunoon Thistledonn topped the novice bitches for Mrs. Henneberry.

Harold M. Florsheim of Highland Park, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Orrin H. Baker of Chicago took several ribbons with their pointer entries. Their Pennine Pivot won in the limited dog

Kinnick Gets Trophy No. 16, but No. 1 to Him

Iowa City, Ia., Feb. 12 [Special.]—"I have secretly possessed a desire to be judged worthy of receiving THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's trophy ever since I enrolled in college." Nile Kinnick, Iowa's all-American half back, said as he was presented with the silver football emblematic of the "most valuable player" in the Big Ten conference here tonight. The presentation ceremonies were held in the Iowa Memorial union with 500 in attendance.

Pays Tribute to Football.

Wilfrid Smith of THE TRIBUNE sports staff, who presented the award, termed football the most democratic sport in our democratic nation, and continued:

"If we are forced to go to war in another few years to continue this democracy it will be the men trained on the gridiron who will form the bulwark of our defense."

"Of all the trophies I have received this fall," said Kinnick, who has won 16, including THE TRIBUNE's silver football, "this is the one I shall cherish most because of what it stands for."

Dr. Anderson Speaks.

Other speakers introduced by the toastmaster, Dr. Karl E. Leib, chairman of the board in control of athletics, was Dr. Eddie Anderson, Iowa coach, who introduced the squad members, and President Eugene A. Gilmore of the university.

Smith made a second presentation of the trophy between halves of the Iowa-Ohio State basketball game for the benefit of those who did not attend the banquet.

Rep. Shafer Asks Ending of Army, Navy Athletics

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12 (AP).—Charging that athletic rivalries between the Army and Navy led eventually to waste and duplication in the nation's defense program, Representative Shafer [R., Mich.] suggested today that the annual Army-Navy football game and all other sports contests between West Point and Annapolis be eliminated.

Bradley Beats De Paul, 34-33; Loyola Loses

BY JAMES SEGRETI.

Loyola university's Ramblers, traveling along the rockiest road in their basketball history, stopped off in the 132d Armory last night and picked up their 14th consecutive defeat. The Ramblers' conquerors this time were St. John's Redskins, champions of the New York Metropolitan area. The score was 43 to 27, accomplished in the presence of 3,500.

As a delegation of 500 Peorians cheered their every move, Bradley Tech's Braves snatched a 34 to 33 victory over De Paul in the second game of the double header. The Blue Demons' rally fell short in the last few minutes, the Braves scoring their eleventh triumph in 15 games on a long shot by Paul McCall, sophomore forward, in the final seconds.

Bradley led the Blue Demons, 22 to 12, at the intermission with Kenneth Olson, Bradley's 6 foot guard, getting two free throws and two field goals.

Bradley maintained a 30 to 21 advantage after the first 10 minutes of the second half.

With five minutes remaining, the Blue Demons trailed by only two points, 30 to 28.

De Paul went to the front for the first time in the game, 32 to 30, when Sachs scored as the clock showed only two minutes remaining. A brilliant long shot by McCall tied the score again half a minute later, however. Then Gainer, fouled by Bortel, put De Paul in front on a free throw, but the Braves returned to the lead with a field goal by McCall, 34 to 33, with 30 seconds left.

VALDINA FILLY WINS JUVENILE STAKE AND $8,250

Strong Arm 2d in Dash at Santa Anita.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 12 (AP).—Valdina Myth won the $5,000 added Santa Catalina Nursery stakes for 2 year olds in a special holiday racing card at Santa Anita today. Strong Arm was second and Hover third in the three furlongs event.

The Valdina Farms' black filly, never far away, came strongly under hard urging to get to the front near the finish and win going away. Her time was 33 1-5 seconds and the victory was worth $8,250.

Strong Arm quickly raced to a forward position and held it under urging. Hover was going strongly at the end.

Come On Sam, the favorite in the betting, swerved in the last sixteenth and finished sixth. Satin Coat and Tin Pan Alley collided soon after the start. After Dawn bolted early in the race. Rio Macaw, Swain, Hada Star, Doll Baby, Hunter, Matzos, Valdina Jill and Sagalle Tyee were other entries.

The winner paid $9.20, $3.60 and $3.40 across the board. Strong Arm returned $5.80 and $5.20, while Hover paid $11.40. The handle on the race was $77,330.

KIEFER TO SEEK NEW RECORDS IN TOWER CLUB POOL

When the Chicago Towers club's girls swimming team face the Whiting Community Center team this evening in the Towers club pool. Adolph Kiefer, world and Olympic backstroke champion, will try for two new world records.

Extremes Along the Golden Gloves Trail

Wilson's Left Jabs Covelli Into Defeat

Jackie Wilson, Pittsburgh Negro boxer, retained National Boxing association recognition as No. 5 featherweight contender by defeating Frankie Covelli of Brooklyn in a 10 round bout in Marigold Gardens last night. The decision of Referee Johnny Behr and Judges James Lynch and Dr. E. Allen Frankel was unanimous.

Wilson scored points in the majority of the rounds with a left jab to the face. In the sixth a right opened a cut on Covelli's left eye. Wilson weighed 129, one-half pound more than his opponent. Gross receipts were $1,473 and attendance 1,299.

Gene Spencer, South Chicago lightweight, was awarded a split decision in eight rounds over Phil Saeli of the northwest side last night in Civic center auditorium, Hammond. A crowd of 2,000, which paid an estimated $1,200, booed the verdict. Referee Pat Patton voted for Saeli, 41-39, but Judge G. R. Heimstock scored 43-37, and W. S. Koraczy, the other judge, 41-39, for Spencer. Booker Beckwith, 1938 international and intercity Golden Gloves middleweight winner, scored his fourth consecutive professional triumph by beating Selman Martin, 208 pound south side fighter, in a six round secondary feature. Booker was outweighed 29 pounds.

Dizzy Fails to Crack Wrigley Bankroll Line

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Mr. Dizzy Dean, the one man broadcasting system, has gone away from our town—temporarily. But he did not take the $10,000 offered him for what he might or not might do as a member of the Cub pitching staff this coming season.

However, the one time Great Diz wasn't idle before boarding a train which whisked him away to Jackson, Miss., where he is going to do some professoring in the Doan Baseball college.

Diz again resorted to the telephone as a possible means of breaking thru Owner P. K. Wrigley's defense but he made no headway, whereupon he pulled the moth eaten gag about quitting baseball. Last week Diz declared he'd starve before he'd take $10,000.

Dean waited until almost noon yesterday before deciding the Cubs were not exactly excited about his publicity campaign. The Cubs didn't contact him so he phoned Wrigley, who was at Lake Geneva. Diz immediately announced it was a swell conversation. He said Wrigley had done some talking about $25,000 and $15,000 salaries and he was going to take the "offers" under consideration.

The Wrigley version was slightly different. The Cub boss, in answer to questions from Diz granted that if Diz could win 22 games he [Diz] probably would wind up the season with $25,000 in pay, that if Diz won 15 games he undoubtedly would be fixed up with about $15,000.

Then Diz got down to the possibilities of winning 10. What would he be worth then? Wrigley replied the answer for that one was the same $10,000 that Dean says is driving him back to the farm [at least until the Cubs report at Catalina island Feb. 22].

Tom Gregory beat Fred White, 100 to 39, in 18 innings.

his weight class before he can advance to the Tournament of Champions in the Stadium Feb. 26, 27, and 28. In other years, the open division fighters qualified in sectional events and often some of the best went into the Stadium without meeting their most formidable local rivals.

This season Chicago will send only eight into the Tournament of Champions but each of these boys will advance by proving that he is the best amateur fighter of his weight class in Chicago. This city will be assured, therefore, of a team strong enough to cope with the powerful challenge of the Golden Glove forces which are now being mustered in 23 states.

Champions already have been decided in several of the 43 centers where newspapers are coöperating with Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., in conducting elimination events. Many more sectional finals will be run off this week.

Championship bouts were held last night in Dayton, O., Oklahoma City, Okla., and Des Moines, Ia. Meanwhile earlier rounds were run off in nine other cities.

Muncie and Fort Wayne, Ind., will be the only towns to pick their squads tonight, but semi-finals will be held in four Illinois centers—Kenosha, Joliet, Danville, and Centralia. Seven other cities will put on earlier stages of their tournaments.

The rush for tickets on an over-the-counter basis began yesterday in the two Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby. Seats are on sale for both the Chicago event in the Coliseum and for the Tournament of Champions.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 12 [Special].—University of Detroit ended Marquette university's three year winning streak at home tonight with a 29 to 25 victory.

Servus Sport also went unplaced in the Brace class when teamed with Florsheim's Kelvin Specialist of Harham, second place winner among limit dogs of this breed. Kelvin Masterpiece of Harham also failed to place for Florsheim in the open dog competition for Irish terriers.

Nelson Shoots 70; Wins Texas Open by Stroke

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 12—(AP).—National Open Champion Byron Nelson shot his first round of golf out of the 60s in two years of the Texas open, but his 70 was good enough to beat out Ben Hogan of White Plains, N. Y., by a stroke in the 1940 title play-off at Brackenridge park today. They had tied at the end of the regular 72 hole play at 271, 13 strokes under par.

The victory was worth $1,500 to Nelson and second place returned Hogan $750.

The United States open champion got his second birdie of the day on the 16th hole to take a stroke lead that held up the rest of the way.

MAYBE I'm too fussy about serving beer at the right temperature. But ice-cold beer is wrong. There's no use putting the finest grains in a brew just to have the flavor over-chilled so you can't recognize it. We might as well add sugars or syrups and save time and money. We might as well add artificial gas when we bottle instead of using only natural draft beer carbonation created in the beer itself.
Beer flavor, good or bad, shows up at about 50 degrees. If you want to know what kind of beer you're drinking, drink it at 50 degrees. That means, take an ice-cold bottle out of the refrigerator and let it stand until it's the proper temperature.
Do that and you'll never again say, "Give me a bottle of Beer." You'll know it pays to ask for the brand you prefer. For 49 years we've made a beer for the 50-degree drinkers—the beer cranks. Order Meister Bräu today and I'll stake my reputation on your verdict if you make the "50-degrees" test.

TRADE BARRIERS QUESTION SPLITS SUPREME COURT

Up to Congress, Say 3 New Justices.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12 (AP).—Three Supreme court justices advocated today that the courts leave to congress the question of "the constantly increasing barriers to trade among the states."

Justice Frankfurter, one of dissenters.

The trio—Justices Black, Frankfurter, and Douglas—dissented from a majority decision enjoining Arkansas from imposing a tax on gasoline [in excess of 20 gallons] carried in the fuel tanks of interstate buses when the gasoline is for use in other states.

Saying that congress, "sole constitutional legislative repository of power over that commerce, has enacted no regulation prohibiting Arkansas from levying a tax," the dissenting justices added:

Urge Integrated Rules.

"Judicial control of national commerce—unlike legislative regulations—must from inherent limitations of the judicial process treat the subject by the hit and miss method of deciding single local controversies upon evidence and information limited by the narrow rules of litigation.

"Spasmodic and unrelated instances of litigation cannot afford an adequate basis for the creation of integrated national rules which alone can afford that full protection for interstate commerce intended by the constitution.

"We would, therefore, leave the questions raised by the Arkansas tax for consideration of congress in a nation-wide survey of the constantly increasing barriers to trade among the states.

"Diverse and interacting state laws may well have created avoidable hardships. But the remedy, if any is called for, we think is within the ample reach of congress."

Nominated by Roosevelt.

These justices were among the five nominated to the tribunal by President Roosevelt. Justice Reed, a fourth Roosevelt nominee, agreed with the majority opinion. The litigation was argued before Justice Murphy, the President's fifth appointee, took his seat.

Justice McReynolds delivered the majority opinion. He said the tax would be permissible "if, considering all the circumstances" it "reasonably can be regarded as proper compensation for using the roads."

"But," he added, "the facts disclosed are incompatible with that view. A fair charge could have no reasonable relation to such gasoline."

Cook County Leads Nation in Value of Manufactures

Cook county led all counties of the nation in value of manufactures produced in 1937, the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce disclosed yesterday in an analysis issued at Washington, D. C. Factory output of Cook county was placed at $3,647,785,127, compared with $3,409,350,909 for Wayne county, Mich., which covers the Detroit area, and $2,498,878,377 for New York county. These counties ranked second and third.

Federal Power Plan Survives High Court Test

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—The New Deal's vast hydro-electric power program survived a constitutional test today by an equally divided Supreme court, which dismissed the original suit of the state of Oklahoma to restrain construction of the $54,000,000 Denison dam and reservoir project on the Red river.

Altho the court's action was noted on the order list without comment, the case had been argued by Attorney General Robert H. Jackson and Mac Q. Williamson, attorney general of Oklahoma. The court, therefore, was acquainted with the merits of the constitutional controversy and it may be assumed that the 4 to 4 division of the justices would have stood on a final determination of the case.

No Ground Is Cited.

The court denied the motion of Oklahoma for leave to file its bill of complaint. There was no indication as to the ground on which the action was based.

The case involved not only the fate of the Red river project, which Oklahoma's Democratic governor, Leon C. Phillips, has repeatedly denounced, but the validity of the flood control act of 1938, designed to form the basis of a nation-wide system of TVA's. The constitutional question involved the validity of the power development aspects of the TVA itself, since that half billion dollar experiment in socialism hangs the government's power program on the constitutional pegs of navigation, flood control, and national defense.

The government sought to justify the Denison dam project under the general welfare clause of the constitution.

Precedent in AAA Decision.

In the first AAA case, decided in 1936, the Supreme court held that congress may tax and spend for the general welfare without regard to the specific enumerated powers. It added, however, that congress may not tax and spend in the name of the general welfare to achieve an unconstitutional end, such as the regulation of agricultural production. Whether congress may tax and spend in the name of the general welfare, specifically in the guise of flood control, to develop hydro-electric power, was the issue in the Denison dam case.

Recalling that the Supreme court has held in the past that the Red river is a nonnavigable stream, the Oklahoma attorney general argued that the government's undertaking violated the powers reserved to a state by the constitution.

In another case the court ruled that the Federal Housing administration was subject to garnishment for money due an employé.

AFTER SEVEN YEARS.

I think I read that R-K-O has been reorganized and a new company has taken over the business. Would you please review the reorganization plan? What did the common stock holders get?—J. W.

Answer: Radio-Keith-Orpheum corporation emerged last Jan. 26 from court supervision seven years after it entered equity receivership. The financial reconstruction of the film holding company was completed under the federal bankruptcy act.

Assets of the former company were acquired by a new firm of the same name. The new R-K-O has no funded debt and cannot assume more than $3,000,000 in long term debt so long as any preferred stock is outstanding. Authorized capitalization consists of 8 million common shares of $1 par value and 130,000 shares of 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock of $100 par value. The preferred is convertible into common stock within eight years at the rate of eight common shares for one preferred share.

Under the terms of the amended reorganization plan confirmed by the federal court the following treatment is provided for creditors and stockholders of the former company:

Rockefeller Center, Inc., receives 415,000 new common shares for an unsecured claim.

For each $100 of face value and unpaid interest of old debentures, holders receive either one share of new preferred and five shares of new common stock, or 1.43 shares of new preferred stock.

Holders of other unsecured and allowed claims get 10 new common shares for each $100 claimed.

For each old common share, holders receive one-sixth share of new common and an option warrant entitling the owner to buy for a period of ten years one share of new common at $15 each, or for a period of five years one-half share at $10 a share.

The new company also offered to unsecured creditors 500,000 additional shares of new common stock at $3 a share. The offer was underwritten by the Atlas corporation, a large holder of old common stock and debentures.

As Live Stock Goes, So Goes Farms' State

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

[This is the sixth in a series of articles discussing the effects of the Roosevelt administration's reciprocal trade treaties on agriculture and industry in the United States.]

Gone forever are the days when the American cattle industry was confined to the vast ranges of the old west. Gone also is the rangy, long-horned steer. The modern beef industry has no market for his sinewy flesh and enormous bones.

Live stock raising, now specialized and scientific, has been taken over by the American farmer, who has become something of a scientist himself in developing heavy, compact, and small boned beef cattle. The state of the live stock industry—and this includes hogs—now has a vast deal to do with the state of the farmer.

Any change in America's foreign meat trade—for better or for worse—is felt quickly by the farmers and by the kindred industries. The farmers were told in 1934 that an early change—for the better—was certain. This occurred when Secretary of State Cordell Hull was negotiating the first of the reciprocal trade treaties, under the trade agreements act.

Expected Quick Gain.

Meat and meat products were high on the list of more than 1,000 commodities being given attention by the treaty makers. An announcement that 10 countries had granted tariff concessions on American meat encouraged the industry and agriculture generally.

Many foresaw, as a result of these concessions, a quick gain in the climb of meat exports. A slow, uncertain recovery had begun after a depression drop that had been devastating. In 1929, the last good year before the deluge, exports of meat products had totaled 445,529,000 pounds, against imports of 203,541,000 pounds, according to records of the United States bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. By 1932 exports had dropped to 191,013,000 pounds.

Treaties Bring Decline.

In 1934, the year the treaties were launched, this figure had risen to 251,393,000 pounds. The next year, however, exports sagged under the treaties to 155,347,000 and continued downward to 123,640,000 in 1937, ris-

Securities Acts Curb Markets, Bankers Told

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 12 [Special].—Philip W. Russell, a governor of the New York Stock exchange, today attacked the administrative policies behind the federal securities acts in an address before the Indiana Bankers' conference.

"The securities act of 1933 and the securities exchange act of 1934 designed to prevent fraud and to prevent unfair market practices have been twisted in their administration to prevent the free flow of capital into industry," he said.

"The acts are in themselves 75 per cent good and 25 per cent bad, but their administration has reversed that ratio," said Russell, who is senior partner of Fenner & Beane.

Cites Differences in Aim.

He called attention to the difference between a bill designed to compel disclosure of facts and to prevent fraud and a bill conceived to govern an individual's judgment.

"The first protects the public by disclosing all the facts," Russell said. "The other undertakes to protect the public by substituting the judgment of the government for that of the individual in the administration of his own affairs."

New security issues sold in 1939 totaled approximately three billion dollars, or slightly more than half of those issued in 1936, Russell declared. He said the cause can be traced to the administration of the acts.

Urges Limit on Powers.

"The acts are capable of great abuse if administered under the leftist philosophy," Russell said. "The administrative powers of the commission should be definitely limited so that it is not prosecutor, jury, and judge in one." Russell demanded that congress untangle the restrictions placed on the securities markets. Russell quoted from an indictment of King George III. of England, contained in the Declaration of Independence:

"He has erected a multitude of new offices and sent hither swarms of officers to harrass our people and eat out their substance."

WINNIPEG GRAIN HIGHER ON POOR CROP FORECAST

Dust Causes Damage in Winter Belt.

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 12 (AP).—Pessimistic crop reports from the United States winter wheat belt lifted wheat futures today, but light offerings and restricted export demand pared gains to fractions. At the close quotations were ⅝ to ½ cent a bushel higher.

Lower estimates of the probable yield in the winter wheat belt of the United States followed reports of duststorms in Kansas.

Here is the modern way to manage your securities

Many people are finding in a Northern Trust Agency arrangement a diligent, full-time service for their securities. A Northern Trust Agency arrangement appeals especially to three groups of men and women. First, those prominently active in the professions or business, whose time for the handling of personal affairs is limited. Secondly, those who wish to travel or to locate elsewhere for long periods of time. Thirdly, those who find that the problems of investing require a specialized knowledge and an increasing vigilance, which they are unable to give to them.

It is simple to arrange for a Northern Trust Agency account. And the cost is moderate. You retain complete control of your securities, title and registration of which remain unchanged. But you place in experienced and responsible hands the tasks of safekeeping, cutting coupons, collecting interest and dividends, meeting calls, maturities and conversions and other details in the management of your securities. You may also arrange for investment analyses and advice. The payment of taxes and personal bills will also be attended to at your direction. Services rendered you under an Agency agreement may be just as complete or as limited as you wish them to be.

A Northern Trust Agency account may be the answer to increasing demands upon your time. It will provide a means of managing your securities—a modern way that will guarantee you more freedom. You are invited to write or call our Trust Department for complete information.

ing somewhat to 158,300,000 in 1938. Spokesmen for the administration attributed the decline to the drouth years, 1934 and 1936, and declared there was real merit in the trade agreements.

But the export trade of 1935-'38 was of two types: [1] that with the concession countries, and [2] that with all other countries. Federal trade bureau figures show that the former dropped from 17,644,000 pounds in 1935 to 15,175,000 in 1938, or 14 per cent. Exports to nonagreement nations, however, increased from 137,703,000 in 1935 to 143,125,000 pounds in 1938—a rise of 3.9 per cent.

Buy Less American Meat.

Thus the concession countries bought less meat than they had in any year since 1935. Examination of the figures from 1929 thru 1938 discloses that during the first three depression years, 1930, 1931, and 1932, the world bought less and less American meat.

In 1933-'34 exports increased, but during the three following years they again declined. This was the period when the Agriculture Adjustment administration was destroying live stock and food crops, attempting to raise farm prices thru artificial scarcity.

The increase in 1938 over the previous year came about, AAA critics assert, because nature balked at the scarcity policy. At the end of 1938 exports to concession countries were only 20.2 per cent of the 1929 level, but those to all other nations totaled 38.6 per cent.

The greatest activity of the scarcity advocates, headed by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, came at the same time as the major drive for reciprocal tradé treaties, conducted by Secretary Hull. These were the years 1934-'37.

Records Show Changes.

Commerce bureau records reflect the reaction of export and import trade in meat products for this period:

Year—	Exports.	Imports, in lbs.
1934	251,393,000	65,363,000
1935	155,347,000	115,959,000
1936	135,380,000	152,498,000
1937	123,640,000	191,917,000

The 75.9 per cent increase in imports in 1935 admittedly was due somewhat to the drouth. But the report of one group of economists says in part:

"This was due . . . in a much larger measure to the price pegging and crop restriction policies of the Roosevelt administration."

Charges that the trade treaties not only failed to open up new foreign markets of importance for American pork, but actually lowered the tariff so that foreign countries might flood this market with imports were bolstered last week by Representative Harold Knutson [R., Minn.]. He quoted records of the department of agriculture.

"The figures furnished by Mr. Wallace's own department show a tremendous falling off in the percentage of important agricultural exports," Representative Knutson said. "It is shown that in 1929 we exported 5.7 per cent of our pork products. By 1938 we exported but 1-10 per cent of our total production of pork."

Reveal Treaties' Weakness.

In the revised Canadian treaty of 1939 the duty on hams and bacon was lowered from 3¼ cents a pound to 2 cents—a reduction of 38.5 per cent in the tariff. This cut, under the most-favored-nation clause, means that all nations except those that discriminate against American products may take advantage of it.

This reduction was agreed to in the face of the fact that both Poland and the Netherlands were exporting more hams and bacon to this country than was Canada. The European war put an end to Poland's exportations, but critics of the Hull treaties offer as an example of carelessness, lack of proper knowledge, and of poor judgment, which they declare mark many of the treaty negotiations.

[How John Bull and Canada outtraded Uncle Sam and are depriving him of wartime meat sales will be discussed in a subsequent article.]

COTTON

Liverpool Market.

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 12 (AP).—Prices in the Bombay cotton market declined today, the selloff attributed to a new strike of workers there. Liverpool prices reacted accordingly, with opening quotations down as much as 16-100 of a penny a pound.

Trading thereafter was narrow and prices moved irregularly. The market recovered as much as 7 points, declined again in mid-afternoon only to pick up near the close. They finished 5 to 12 points net lower.

Quoted values were easily influenced by scattered liquidation on one side and local support on the other.

New Orleans Cotton Exchange.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 12 (AP).—Poor cables, hedge selling and long realising eased cotton futures here today. Closing prices were steady, at net declines of five to seven points. Spot cotton closed quiet, six lower. Sales, 509: low middling, 9.74c; middling, 10.84; good middling, 11.29; receipts, 12,373; stock, 803,588. Futures prices follow:

Banks Co-operate to Hold Mexican Peso Rate Steady

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 12 [Special].—The Bank of Mexico has asked all banking institutions doing business in the country to coöperate in an effort to pin the peso exchange to the present level of six to the dollar. The banks have agreed drastically to reduce credits except for legitimate needs. The success of the program will depend largely on whether the United States treasury continues to purchase foreign silver.

A lawsuit is disagreeable at best . . . and ruinous at worst. And one can spring so easily from an automobile accident!

You may not be at fault. Yet your interests compel you to engage an attorney . . . and an adverse decision may cost you $5,000, $10,000 . . . even $50,000 or more.

Ask your agent or broker to give you an exact quotation for Continental Complete-Coverage Automobile Insurance. The cost is surprisingly low . . . and may encourage a decision which someday you will regard as the most prudent of your life.

Maj. Gen. B. C. Freyberg (left), commander of New Zealand forces which landed at Suez, and Lieut. Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey, who heads the Australian army. (Story on page 1.)

Developments in the near east yesterday heightened the belief that a new war front may develop in the Balkans or Caucasus in the spring. A large contingent of Australian and New Zealand troops landed at Suez after a 10,000 mile voyage. Other developments are told in captions in the map and oil sources, the center of possible conflict, are shown. Inset map gives route of Anzac troops. (Story on page 1.)

Herbert Lehman's proposed $396,700,000 budget. Police compelled the marchers to give up banners at door. (Story on page 1.)
